Hello,

I am writing while you are taking public comments regarding ACT BLUE. I am a disabled American who uses my computer as my virtually sole access to the world. When I discovered ACT BLUE it was a godsend. They do not solicit money and they list a number of candidates from all over the country whose political beliefs are congruent with mine. The most I have ever donated is about $28 dispersed to numerous candidates.
ACT BLUE is NOT a political action committee. It is only a website that gathers contributions from around the country and sends the contributions to multiple beneficiaries only as I direct them. The money I donate comes from my Visa card. They simply write one check to the candidates I choose, thus saving postage and paper. If there is a PAC, it is a committee of one, and I am it.
