

IN THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT

PHILIP J. BERG,)
)
Plaintiff-Appellant,)
)	No. 08-4340
v.)
)	MOTION
BARACK OBAMA, et al. ,)
)
Defendants-Appellees.)

DEFENDANT FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION’S MOTION FOR SUMMARY AFFIRMANCE

Plaintiff Philip J. Berg (“Berg”) has sued President-Elect Barack Obama (“Obama”), the Democratic National Committee (“DNC”), the Federal Election Commission (“Commission”), and others in an attempt to prevent Obama from becoming the next President. He alleges that Obama is ineligible for that position because he is not a “natural born” citizen as required by Article II, Section 1 of the Constitution (the “Natural Born Citizen Clause”). On October 24, 2008, the District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania correctly dismissed Berg’s First Amended Complaint and its eight separate counts, holding that he lacked standing under Article III to bring a challenge under the Natural Born Citizen Clause and that he had otherwise failed to plead a valid cause of action under any of the various federal statutes he invoked. Berg v. Obama, 574 F. Supp. 2d 509 (E.D. Pa. 2008) (FEC Exh. 1). The Commission respectfully moves this Court, pursuant to Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 27 and Local Appellate Rule 27.4, to summarily affirm the judgment of the court below entered on October 24, 2008.

This Court may summarily dispose of an appeal when no substantial question is presented. See 3d Cir. L.A.R. 27.4 (2008); Reyes-Vasquez v. U.S. Atty. Gen., No. 07-4498, 2008 WL 5351842, at *2 (3rd Cir. Dec. 23, 2008). The Court’s review of the lower court’s decision to grant a motion to dismiss is plenary. See Angstadt v. Midd-West School Dist., 377 F.3d 338, 342 (3rd Cir. 2004); Gallo v. City of Philadelphia, 161 F.3d 217, 221 (3rd Cir. 1998).

BACKGROUND

On August 21, 2008, Berg filed a complaint for declaratory and injunctive relief and a motion for a temporary restraining order and for expedited discovery against Barack Obama, the Democratic National Committee, the Federal Election Commission, and Does 1-50. In his complaint and motion for a TRO, Berg alleged that then-Senator Obama was constitutionally ineligible to become President of the United States because was a not a “natural born” citizen as required by Article II, Section 1. Berg sought a declaration that Obama could not become President, as well as permanent injunctions barring him from running for the office, and barring the DNC from selecting him as the party’s nominee.

On October 6, 2008, Berg filed an Amended Complaint for declaratory and injunctive relief that added several defendants, including Pedro Cortes, the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the U.S. Senate Committee on Rules and Administration as well as its Chairman, Senator Dianne Feinstein. The Amended Complaint also added seven new claims to the original National Born Citizen Clause allegation (Count 1). The new claims were brought under 42 U.S.C. §§ 1983, 1985, and 1986 (Counts 2-4, respectively), as well as provisions of the Federal Election Campaign Act (“FECA”), 2 U.S.C. § 437 (Count 5); the Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”), 5 U.S.C. § 552 (Count 6); and the Immigration and Nationality Act (“INA”), 8 U.S.C. § 1481(b) (Count 8). Berg’s Amended Complaint also included a claim for Promissory Estoppel (Count 7). Counts 1-6 are directed to all defendants. The promissory estoppel claim (Count 7) is directed to defendants Obama and the DNC, while the INA claim (Count 8) is directed only to the former.

Pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6), Obama and the DNC moved to dismiss Berg's First Amended Complaint on October 20, 2008. The following day, the Commission moved to dismiss this action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1). Three days later, on October 24, the district court dismissed Berg's Amended Complaint. Taking as true the well-pleaded facts of the Amended Complaint, the court held that Berg had not established injury-in-fact, and therefore standing, to bring a challenge under the Natural Born Citizen Clause. Berg, 574 F. Supp. 2d at 515-521. The court also held that Berg had not otherwise brought a claim for which relief could be granted. Id. at 521-30.

Berg filed a notice of appeal in this Court on October 30, 2008, as well as an Emergency Motion for an Immediate Injunction to Stay the Presidential Election of November 4, 2008, pending resolution of the appeal.¹ This Court denied Berg's Emergency Motion on October 31. The Court held that "[f]or the reasons ably expressed by the District Court — and not addressed in [Berg's] Emergency Motion — it appears that [Berg] lacks standing to challenge Senator Obama's candidacy for the Presidency of the United States. Accordingly, [Berg] has not shown a likelihood of success with respect to his appeal."

On December 4, 2008, Berg returned to this Court moving for an Immediate Injunction Pending the Resolution of Petitioner's Appeal. In his motion, Berg asked the Court to stay the certification of electors, stay the Electoral College from casting any votes for Obama on December 15, 2008, and to stay the counting of any votes in Congress on January 6, 2009. The ¹ On that same day, October 31, 2008, Berg filed a Petition for Writ of Certiorari Before Judgment in the Supreme Court, as well as an application with Justice Souter for an Immediate Injunction to Stay the Presidential Election of November 4, 2008 Pending Resolution of the Petition for Certiorari. Justice Souter denied Berg's motion on November 3, 2008. A little more than two months later, on January 12, 2009, the Court denied his petition for a writ of certiorari.

Court denied Berg's Motion on December 9, once again finding that he had not shown a likelihood of success with respect to his appeal. The Court explained, "As ably expressed by the District Court, it appears that [Berg] lacks standing to challenge the election of Barack H. Obama to the Presidency of the United States. Even if [Berg] possessed standing to raise the issue of President-Elect Obama's constitutional eligibility to be President, no justiciable controversy is presented, as [Berg] seeks adjudication of a political question."

The Court should summarily affirm the district court's decision. No substantial question is presented by Berg's appeal.

ARGUMENT

I. THE DISTRICT COURT CORRECTLY HELD THAT BERG LACKS STANDING TO BRING A CLAIM UNDER THE NATURAL BORN CITIZEN CLAUSE AND THEREFORE CORRECTLY DISMISSED THIS CLAIM FOR WANT OF JURISDICTION

The court below correctly dismissed Berg's Natural Born Citizen Clause claim for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Berg lacks standing to bring this claim, and thus fails to bring a "case or controversy" under Article III of the Constitution. Whitmore v. Arkansas, 495 U.S. 149, 155 (1990). The dispute Berg raises is not one "appropriately resolved through the judicial process." Id.

"Standing must be determined as a threshold jurisdictional matter." Kucinich v. Bush, 236 F. Supp. 2d 1, 3 n.5 (D.D.C. 2002) (citing Whitmore, 495 U.S. at 155, and Steel Co. v. Citizens for a Better Env't, 523 U.S. 83, 101-02 (1998)). The doctrine of standing identifies those disputes that are properly resolved through the judicial process. See Valley Forge Christian Coll. v. Americans United for Separation of Church & State, Inc., 454 U.S. 464, 471-76 (1982).

"The party invoking federal jurisdiction bears the burden of establishing the elements of standing, and each element must be supported in the same way as any other matter on which the [party] bears the burden of proof . . .” FOCUS v. Allegheny County Court of Common Pleas, 75 F.3d 834, 838 (3rd Cir. 1996) (internal quotations and citation omitted). In deciding this case, “the court must only consider the allegations of the complaint and documents referenced therein and attached thereto, in the light most favorable to the plaintiff.” Gould Elecs., Inc. v. United States, 220 F.3d 169, 176 (3rd Cir. 2000); McCann v. Newman Irrevocable Trust, 458 F.3d 281, 290 (3rd Cir. 2006). This Court’s threshold inquiry into standing “in no way depends on the merits of [Berg’s] contention that particular conduct is illegal . . .” Warth v. Seldin, 422 U.S. 490, 500 (1975) (citations omitted).

Three elements constitute the “irreducible constitutional minimum” of standing: (1) an injury-in-fact, (2) a causal connection between the injury and the challenged conduct of the defendant, and (3) a likelihood that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision of the court. Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560-61 (1992) (citations omitted). The injury-in-fact required by Article III is an invasion of a legally protected interest that is “concrete and particularized” as well as “actual or imminent,” rather than “conjectural” or “hypothetical.” Id. at 560 (citations omitted). “[P]articuliarized” “mean[s] that the injury must affect the plaintiff in a personal and individual way.” Lujan, 504 U.S. at 560 n.1. Thus, the injury cannot be merely a generalized grievance about the government that affects all citizens or derives from an interest in the proper enforcement of the law. FEC v. Akins, 524 U.S. 11, 23 (1998); Lujan, 504 U.S. at 573-74; see also Warth, 422 U.S. at 499 (“[W]hen the asserted harm is a ‘generalized grievance’ shared in substantially equal measure by all or a large class of citizens, that harm alone normally does not warrant exercise of jurisdiction.”).

“Standing has been a consistent barrier to lower courts hearing generalized, undifferentiated claims by voters and citizens.” See Berg, 574 F. Supp. 2d at 517-18 (citing cases). “[A] voter fails to present an injury-in-fact when the alleged harm is abstract and widely shared or is only derivative of a harm experienced by a candidate.” Id. at 518 (quoting Crist v. Comm’n on Presidential Debates, 262 F.3d 193, 195 (2nd Cir. 2001)). Any injury alleged by Berg is undifferentiated and widely-shared, and thus fails to satisfy the injury-in-fact requirement for standing. Berg never asserts that the purportedly unconstitutional candidacy of Barack Obama results in any harm that redounds particularly to his detriment. Rather, he broadly identifies those who may suffer as: “Plaintiff as well as other Democratic Americans,” Am. Compl. ¶ 7; “Plaintiff and the American Citizens,” id. ¶133; and “Plaintiff and the American people,” id. ¶¶ 134, 135.

Thus, as the lower court correctly held, Berg’s stake is “no greater and his status no more differentiated than that of millions of other voters.” 574 F. Supp. 2d at 517. Berg does not claim that he has suffered any injury or harm that, if true, would not also be shared by every American, all of whom would appear to suffer, if at all, in equal measure. Because it is well-settled that claims advanced on behalf of such all-encompassing groups do not satisfy the injury-in-fact requirement, Berg’s generalized grievance on behalf of the American citizenry cannot satisfy Article III. See Crist 262 F.3d at 195 (citing cases) (“Several other Circuit Courts have also concluded that a voter fails to present an injury-in-fact when the alleged harm is abstract and widely shared or is only derivative of a harm experienced by a candidate.”). Accordingly, the court below correctly concluded that the harm allegedly suffered by Berg and “other Democratic Americans” is “too vague and its effects too attenuated to confer standing on any and all voters.” 574 F. Supp. 2d at 519. Because Berg does not have standing to bring a claim under the Natural Born Citizen Clause, the Court should summarily affirm the dismissal of this claim for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

II. THE COURT SHOULD SUMMARILY AFFIRM THE DISMISSAL OF BERG'S REMAINING CLAIMS, NONE OF WHICH STATES A VALID CAUSE OF ACTION

In his First Amended Complaint, Berg added seven claims to his Natural Born Citizen Clause claim. Five of those additional claims, Counts 2-6, were directed at all the defendants, including the Federal Election Commission. Counts 2-6 alleged violations of 42 U.S.C. §§ 1983, 1985, 1986, FECA, and FOIA, respectively. The court below correctly dismissed these claims for failure to state a claim. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 521-24. Because no substantial question is presented by Berg's appeal of the district court's decision on these counts, this Court should summarily affirm it.

A. 42 U.S.C. § 1983

The court below properly concluded that Berg had failed to allege a cognizable § 1983 claim. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 521-23. Section 1983 provides a cause of action against [e]very person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State or Territory or the District of Columbia, subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws.

42 U.S.C. § 1983. See generally Richardson v. McKnight, 521 U.S. 399, 403 (1997). "A § 1983 claimant must allege violations of 'rights independently secured by the Constitution and laws of the United States.'" Berg, 574 F. Supp. 2d at 522 (quoting Gonzaga Univ. v. Doe, 536 U.S. 273, 285 (2002)). Thus, the district court properly framed the relevant inquiry as whether Berg had alleged a violation of a right under the Natural Born Citizen Clause that would entitle him to relief under section 1983. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 522. The Court correctly concluded that he had not. Id. at 522-23.

The district court was unable to find any cases that even suggested that the Natural Born Citizen Clause creates a federal right for which violations are redressable under section 1983. Id. at 522. The court also noted that the parties had offered none, id.; the Commission is indeed unaware of any case that suggests that the Natural Born Citizen Clause creates such a right. Absent any precedent supporting Berg, the court properly concluded that the Natural Born Citizen Clause “does not confer an individual right on citizens or voters.” Id. at 522-23. This Court should summarily affirm that Berg has no cognizable claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

B. 42 U.S.C. § 1985

The court below properly concluded that Berg had failed to allege a cognizable section 1985 claim. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 523-24. Section 1985 creates a cause of action for various conspiracies which deprive individuals of federal rights or privileges. As the court below observed, however, “where there is no federal right that creates a basis for a § 1983 claim there is similarly no basis for a § 1985 claim.” Id. at 523. Accordingly, the court properly held that because Berg had not stated a cognizable § 1983 claim, he could not state a cognizable § 1985 claim. Id.

Moreover, as the court below specifically explained, id. at 523-24, section 1985(1) involves interference with officers of the United States, section 1985(2) creates a claim for conspiracies to intimidate witnesses, jurors, or parties in a federal case, and section 1985(3) involves alleged conspiracies motivated by racial animus. Because Berg has not made any factual allegations that would support any claims under any of the three subsections, this Court should summarily affirm that Berg has not stated any cognizable claims under section 1985.

C. 42 U.S.C. § 1986

It is well-settled that a plaintiff must state a cognizable claim under § 1985 in order to state a claim under section 1986, and the court below correctly concluded that Berg had not stated a cognizable claim under that section. See 574 F. Supp. 2d at 524; Clark v. Clabaugh, 20 F.3d 1290, 1295 (3rd Cir. 1994) (“§ 1986 constitutes an additional safeguard for those rights protected under 42 U.S.C. § 1985, and transgressions of § 1986 by definition depend on a preexisting violation of § 1985 . . .”) (citation, footnote, and internal quotation marks omitted). This Court should summarily affirm that ruling.

D. Federal Election Campaign Act, 2 U.S.C. §§ 431-55

The court below also properly concluded that Berg had failed to state a cognizable claim under FECA. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 524-26. Berg alleges that the defendants have allowed Obama’s purportedly illegal campaign to receive more than $450 million in donations (Am. Comp. ¶ 141) and that this somehow entitles him to the information he seeks regarding Obama’s citizenship. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 524.

The court below correctly held, however, that no provision of FECA entitles Berg to such information. Id. at 525-26. Indeed, FECA only regulates the financing of federal campaigns: regulating the organization of campaign committees; the raising, spending, and disclosing of campaign funds; and the receipt and use of public funding for qualifying candidates. See generally, 2 U.S.C. §§ 431-55. Nothing in FECA addresses determinations of the constitutional eligibility of federal candidates or otherwise requires the Commission to provide information regarding their eligibility. As the court below aptly explained, “[i]t seems clear that the [Federal Election] Campaign Act does not address the sort of corruption that [Berg] alleges in his Complaint.” 574 F. Supp. 2d at 525. Berg has failed to state a claim under FECA for which relief can be granted, and this Court should summarily affirm the district court's dismissal of this claim.

E. Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. §§ 552 et seq.

Finally, the court below correctly held that Berg had failed to state a cognizable FOIA claim against any of the defendants, including the Commission. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 526-28. As the court explained, id. at 526, FOIA applies only to government agencies. See 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(2) (requiring "each agency" to make certain records available for public inspection and copying). Because the Commission is the only government agency defendant here within the meaning of FOIA, the district court correctly concluded that Berg had not stated a FOIA claim against the non-FEC defendants. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 526-27.

Although the Commission is subject to FOIA, the court below properly held that Berg had failed to state a FOIA claim against the Commission for at least two reasons. First, Berg does not allege that he actually made a FOIA request to the Commission, let alone that he complied with the FEC's regulations for making such a request. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 527. The court below correctly held these failures sufficient to dismiss Berg's FOIA claim. Id. Second, a FOIA claimant must exhaust available administrative remedies before bringing a FOIA suit; the exhaustion requirement allows an agency sufficient time to exercise its discretion and compile a record supporting its decision. See Wilbur v. CIA, 355 F.3d 675, 676-77 (D.C. Cir. 2004). As detailed by the district court, however, Berg's complaint contains no allegations that any applicable FOIA deadlines expired before he brought suit under the statute. 574 F. Supp. 2d at 527-28. Consequently, Berg's FOIA claim presents no substantial question, and this Court should summarily affirm the dismissal of this count.²

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Federal Election Commission respectfully asks this Court to summarily affirm the district court's order dismissing Berg's Amended Complaint.

Respectfully submitted,

Thomasenia P. Duncan
General Counsel

David Kolker
Associate General Counsel

Kevin Deeley
Assistant General Counsel

/s/ Steve N. Hajjar

Steve N. Hajjar
Attorney

FOR THE APPELLEE
FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION
999 E Street, N.W.
Washington, DC 20463
(202) 694-1650

January 16, 2009

² The Court should also summarily affirm sua sponte the dismissal of the remaining two counts of Berg's Amended Complaint against the other defendants. See 3d Cir. L.A.R. 27.4 (2008). The promissory estoppel claim (Count 7) is frivolous on its face, and it is beyond dispute that the INA does not establish the alleged cause of action (Count 8). See Berg, 574 F. Supp. 2d at 528-30.

IN THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT

_____)
PHILIP J. BERG,)
)
Plaintiff-Appellant,)
)
v.)	No. 08-4340
)
BARACK OBAMA, et al. ,)	FEC Exhibit
)
)
Defendants-Appellees.)
_____)

FEC EXHIBIT 1

BERG v. OBAMA

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

• DENIED as to the following allegations without prejudice to be raised at a later stage in the litigation:

- Causing the Bucks County land to be transferred to a Mignatti related company without having first established a fair market value price for the land;
- Causing the land profits derived from the transfer price of the Bucks County land to be reduced by transferring the property to a Mignatti related company at less than fair market value;
- Causing the transfer and/or development of the Bucks County land to be delayed by, inter alia, construction of the Heritage Creek project; and
- Anticipatorily breaching the Bucks County and LC agreements.

• Defendants' Motion to Dismiss Counts IV and V (Tortious Interference) is DENIED without prejudice to be raised again at a later stage in the litigation.

• Defendants' Motion to Dismiss Count VI (Civil Conspiracy) is DENIED without prejudice to be raised again at a later stage in the litigation.

• Defendants' Motion to Dismiss Count VII (Unjust Enrichment) is:

- GRANTED as to the LC Agreement; and
- DENIED without prejudice to be raised again at a later stage in the litigation as to the Bucks County Agreement.

• Defendants' Motion to Dismiss Count VIII (Declaratory Judgment) is DENIED without prejudice to be raised again at a later stage in the litigation.

• Defendants' Motion to Dismiss Count IX (the Request for Accounting) is DENIED without prejudice to be raised again at a later stage in the litigation.

• All claims against Tracy Mignatti in her individual capacity are DISMISSED.

Philip J. BERG,

v.

Barack OBAMA, et al.

Civil Action No. 08-4083.

United States District Court
E.D. Pennsylvania.

Oct. 24, 2008.

Background: Voter sued Democratic Party's nominee for President, Democratic National Committee (DNC), and Federal Election Commission (FEC), seeking declaratory judgment that nominee was ineligible to be President under Constitution's Natural Born Citizen Clause, and seeking to enjoin his candidacy. Defendants moved to dismiss.

Holdings: The District Court, Surrick, J., held that:

- (1) voter lacked standing to bring Natural Born Citizen Clause claim;
- (2) Natural Born Citizen Clause did not create federal right enforceable via § 1983;
- (3) voter failed to state claim that defendants violated federal statute prohibiting conspiracy to interfere with civil rights;
- (4) voter had no cause of action under Federal Election Campaign Act (FECA);
- (5) voter failed to state claim against FEC under Freedom of Information Act (FOIA);

- (6) DNC's national platform could not give rise to claim of promissory estoppel; and
- (7) expatriation provision of Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) did not give rise to private cause of action.

Motions granted.

1. Federal Civil Procedure ⇌103.2, 103.3

Elements of Article III standing are: (1) party must have experienced injury in fact, i.e. invasion of legally protected interest which is concrete and particularized and actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical; (2) there must be causal connection between injury in fact and defendant's conduct that is fairly traceable to challenged action of defendant, and not result of independent action of some third party not before court; and (3) favorable decision must be likely to redress complained-of injury. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 3, § 2.

2. United States ⇌26

Voter, who identified himself as life-long Democrat, lacked standing to challenge Democratic Party's nominee for President based on allegation that nominee was ineligible to hold office under Natural Born Citizen Clause; voter's stake was no greater and his status no more differentiated than that of millions of other voters, and thus voter fell short of injury-in-fact criterion for standing. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 2, § 1, cl. 4; Art. 3, § 2.

3. United States ⇌26

Candidate's ineligibility for office of President under Natural Born Citizen Clause does not result in injury in fact to voters, within meaning of Article III standing requirement. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 2, § 1, cl. 4; Art. 3, § 2.

4. Civil Rights ⇌1029

Natural Born Citizen Clause did not create federal right, violation of which is cognizable under § 1983; Clause did not confer an individual right on citizens or voters. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 2, § 1, cl. 4; 42 U.S.C.A. § 1983.

5. Conspiracy ⇌18

Voter failed to state claim that Democratic Party's nominee for President, Democratic National Committee (DNC), and Federal Election Commission (FEC) had violated federal statute prohibiting conspiracy to interfere with civil rights by promoting and assisting nominee's candidacy knowing that nominee was ineligible to take office under Natural Born Citizen Clause; voter made no allegations that purported conspiracy was motivated by racial animus. 42 U.S.C.A. § 1985.

6. Conspiracy ⇌7.5(2)

Where there is no federal right that creates basis for a § 1983 claim, there is similarly no basis for claim under federal statute prohibiting conspiracy to interfere with civil rights. 42 U.S.C.A. §§ 1983, 1985.

7. Civil Rights ⇌1039

Plaintiff must establish valid claim under federal statute prohibiting conspiracy to interfere with civil rights in order to state claim under statute creating right of action for neglect to prevent such conspiracy. 42 U.S.C.A. §§ 1985, 1986.

8. Elections ⇌317.5

Voter who sought judicial review after Federal Election Commission (FEC) failed to act on his administrative complaint charging violation of Federal Election Campaign Act (FECA) could not proceed in any federal district court other than the District of Columbia. Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, § 309(a)(1, 8), 2 U.S.C.A. § 437g(a)(1, 8).

9. Elections ⇌317.5

Voter had no cause of action under Federal Election Campaign Act (FECA) to

BERG v. OBAMA

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

511

seek to compel Democratic Party's nominee for President, Democratic National Committee (DNC), and Federal Election Commission (FEC) to release information concerning nominee's birth and citizenship history, which voter believed would reveal violation of Natural Born Citizen Clause; information sought was outside FECA's disclosure requirements. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 2, § 1, cl. 4; Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, § 309(a)(1), 2 U.S.C.A. § 437g(a)(1).

10. Elections ⇌317.2

Purpose of Federal Election Campaign Act (FECA) is to combat corrupting influence of money on the political process. 2 U.S.C.A. § 431 et seq.

11. Records ⇌51

Nominee for President, Democratic National Committee (DNC), United States Senator, and Senate's Commission on Rules and Administration were not subject to Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), since they were not federal executive departments. 5 U.S.C.A. §§ 551(1), 552.

12. Records ⇌63

Voter failed to state Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) claim against Federal Election Commission (FEC) by failing to show that he had complied with FEC guidelines for record requests, and failing to make clear what type of request he had made to FEC, or if he had made any such request. 5 U.S.C.A. § 552; 11 C.F.R. § 4.7.

13. Records ⇌63

Voter failed to allege administrative exhaustion element of his Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) claim against Federal Election Commission (FEC), by merely alleging that FEC had "ignored" his information request; voter did not cite expiration of any FOIA deadlines, or other facts that would allow invocation of FOIA's constructive exhaustion doctrine. 5 U.S.C.A. § 552.

14. Records ⇌63

Before bringing Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) claim in federal court, plaintiff must exhaust available administrative remedies. 5 U.S.C.A. § 552.

15. Estoppel ⇌85

Democratic National Committee's (DNC) statement of party's national platform did not state any enforceable promises, and thus could not serve as basis for claim of promissory estoppel; alleged promises in platform were statements of principle and intent.

16. Action ⇌3Aliens, Immigration, and Citizenship ⇌684(2)

Expatriation provision of Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), stating that "[w]hensoever the loss of United States nationality is put in issue ... the burden shall be upon the person or party claiming that such loss occurred," did not establish private cause of action to challenge citizenship of Presidential candidate on grounds of expatriation; provision merely set up rules of evidence. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 2, § 1, cl. 4; Immigration and Nationality Act, § 349(b), 8 U.S.C.A. § 1481(b).

Philip J. Berg, Law Offices of Philip J. Berg, Lafayette Hill, PA, for Philip J. Berg.

John P. Lavelle, Ballard, Spahr, Andrews & Ingersoll, LLP, Philadelphia, PA, for Barack Obama.

MEMORANDUM & ORDER

SURRICK, District Judge.

Presently before the Court are the Motion of Defendant Democratic National Committee and Senator Barack Obama to Dismiss First Amended Complaint (Doc.

No. 20) and the Defendant Federal Election Commission's Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction (Doc. No. 24). For the following reasons, the Defendants' Motions to Dismiss will be granted.

I. BACKGROUND

A. Procedural History

Philip J. Berg (hereinafter "Plaintiff") is an attorney who is representing himself in this matter. On August 21, 2008, just prior to the Democratic National Convention, Plaintiff filed a Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief (Doc. No. 1) and a Motion For Temporary Restraining Order and for Expedited Discovery (Doc. No. 2 "TRO") against Barack Obama ("Obama"), the Democratic National Committee ("DNC"), the Federal Election Commission ("FEC"), and Does 1-50 Inclusive. The Complaint and request for TRO alleged that Obama is not eligible to run for the Office of President of the United States because he is not a "natural born citizen" as required by Article II, Section 1, Clause 4 of the United States Constitution (the "Natural Born Citizen Clause"). Plaintiff sought a TRO prohibiting Obama from running for President and enjoining the DNC from selecting Obama as the nominee. Plaintiff also sought declaratory and injunctive relief in the form of a declaration that Obama is ineligible to run for the office of President under the United States Constitution and a permanent injunction enjoining Obama from running for President and enjoining the DNC from making Obama the Democratic presidential nominee.

On August 22, 2008, a hearing was held on Plaintiff's Motion for Temporary Restraining Order.¹ At the conclusion of the hearing an Order was entered denying the Motion. (Doc. No. 4.)

On September 9, 2008, service of the summons and Complaint was made on Defendants Barack Obama and the DNC. (Doc. No. 7.) On September 12, 2008, service was made on Defendant FEC. (Doc. No. 9.) On September 24, 2008, a Motion to Dismiss was filed by Barack Obama and the DNC. (Doc. No. 12.) Plaintiff's Response in Opposition to the Motion to Dismiss was filed on September 29, 2008. (Doc. No. 13.) On October 6, 2008, Plaintiff filed a Motion for Leave to File a First Amended Complaint. (Doc. No. 14.) Plaintiff's First Amended Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief ("Amended Complaint") was attached to the Motion. (Doc. No. 14-2.)² In addition to Defendants Barack Obama, the DNC, and the FEC, Plaintiff's Amended Complaint includes the following Defendants: the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Department of State, Pedro A. Cortés; Secretary of the Commonwealth in his Official Capacity; Diane Feinstein, Chairman of the U.S. Senate Commission on Rules and Administration in her Official Capacity; U.S. Senate Commission on Rules and Administration; and Does 1-50 Inclusive.³ On

1. Defendants were not represented at the hearing. Plaintiff advised the Court that he had faxed a copy of the Complaint and Motion for Temporary Restraining Order as well as notice of the hearing to Defendants, but that he could not confirm that they had been received by Defendants. (Hr'g. Exs. P-1, P-2, & P-9.)

2. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15(a) provides that "a party may amend its pleading once as a matter of course . . . before being served with a responsive pleading." A motion to dismiss is not a responsive pleading. The motion seeking leave to amend was unnecessary. The Amended Complaint is deemed filed.

3. As of this date, there is no indication in this record that any of these newly added Defendants have been served.

BERG v. OBAMA

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

513

October 20, 2008, a Motion of Defendant Democratic National Committee and Senator Barack Obama to Dismiss First Amended Complaint was filed. (Doc. No. 20.) On October 21, 2008 Defendant Federal Election Commission's Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1) was filed. (Doc. No. 24.)

The Amended Complaint adds claims that were not included in the original Complaint. In addition to the claim that Obama is not a "natural born citizen" and is therefore not eligible to be President, Plaintiff alleges that the Defendants have deprived him of his rights in violation of 42 U.S.C. § 1983, 42 U.S.C. § 1985, and 42 U.S.C. § 1986 (Counts Two, Three, & Four). The Amended Complaint also adds a Claim for Promissory Estoppel (Count Seven) and includes claims for violation of the Federal Election Campaign Act ("Campaign Act"), 2 U.S.C. § 437 (Count Five), violation of the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA"), 5 U.S.C. § 552 (Count Six), and a Claim of Loss of Nationality under 8 U.S.C. § 1481(b) (Count Eight).⁴

B. Factual Background

The Amended Complaint alleges that Plaintiff is a life-long member of the Democratic Party (Doc. No. 14-2 ¶ 3) who fears that Defendant DNC's nomination of Defendant Obama as the Democratic Party's presidential nominee for the 2008 election will result in irreparable harm to Plaintiff and other "Democratic Americans." (Id. ¶ 7.) Obama cannot be a presidential nominee, Plaintiff contends, because Obama is not a "natural born citizen" of the United States and is therefore barred from holding the office of President by the Natural Born Citizen Clause.⁵ (Id. ¶ 36.)

Plaintiff claims that if the evidence shows that Obama is not a natural born citizen, his nomination (and presumably his election to the Presidency if he wins) will be null and void. (Id. ¶ 7.) Plaintiff asserts that Defendants' collective knowledge of this fact, or their failure to assist Plaintiff in obtaining information from Obama and the DNC, has deprived Plaintiff of "liberty, property, due process of law and equal protections of the laws," (id. ¶ 89), and has caused "significant disenfranchisement of the Democratic Party" generally (id. ¶ 173).

Various accounts, details, and ambiguities from Obama's childhood form the basis of Plaintiff's allegation that Obama is not a natural born citizen of the United States. To support his contention, Plaintiff cites sources as varied as the Rainbow Edition News Letter, (id. ¶ 39), and the television news tabloid Inside Edition (id. ¶ 45). These sources and others lead Plaintiff to conclude that Obama is either a citizen of his father's native Kenya, by birth there or through operation of U.S. law; or that Obama became a citizen of Indonesia by relinquishing his prior citizenship (American or Kenyan) when he moved there with his mother in 1967. Either way, in Plaintiff's opinion, Obama does not have the requisite qualifications for the Presidency that the Natural Born Citizen Clause mandates. The Amended Complaint alleges that Obama has actively covered up this information and that the

4. The claims in Counts Five, Six and Eight were not included as claims in Plaintiff's original Complaint; however, they did appear in Plaintiff's brief in opposition to the Motion to Dismiss (Doc. No. 13) as arguments in support of Plaintiff's standing to bring this lawsuit.

5. The Natural Born Citizen Clause reads: "No Person except a natural born Citizen, or a Citizen of the United States, at the time of the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the Office of President. . . ." U.S. Const. art. II, § 1, cl. 5.

other named Defendants are complicit in Obama's cover-up.

Plaintiff seeks the following relief from the Court:

1. An order compelling Defendants to turn over: (a) a certified copy of Obama's "vault" (original long version) birth certificate; (b) certified copies of all reissued and sealed birth certificates of Obama in the names referred to in the caption of this lawsuit; (c) a certified copy of Obama's Certification of Citizenship; (d) a certified copy of Obama's Oath of Allegiance taken upon age of majority; (e) certified copies of Obama's admission forms for Occidental College, Columbia University and Harvard Law School; and (f) certified copies of any court orders or legal documents changing Obama's name from Barry Soetoro to Barack Hussein Obama;
2. A declaration that Obama is not a natural-born citizen or naturalized citizen of the United States;
3. A declaration that Obama is ineligible to run for the President under the United States Constitution, Article II, Section 1;
4. A preliminary and permanent injunction enjoining Obama from any further campaigning and from running for President;
5. An order compelling the FEC, Feinstein and the U.S. Senate Commission on Rules and Administration to immediately open and conduct an investigation into the fraudulent tactics of Obama and immediately open and conduct an investigation into the citizenship status of Obama; and
6. A preliminary and permanent injunction enjoining the DNC, the Pennsylvania Department of State, Pedro A. Cortés, Pennsylvania Secretary of the Commonwealth, and the Bureau of Commissions, Elections and Legislation from placing Obama's name on the presidential election ballot.

II. LEGAL STANDARD

A. Rule 12(b)(1)—Lack of Jurisdiction

Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1), a court must grant a motion to dismiss if it lacks subject matter jurisdiction over the case. Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(b)(1). The party asserting that jurisdiction is proper bears the burden of showing that jurisdiction exists. Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 511 U.S. 375, 377, 114 S.Ct. 1673, 128 L.Ed.2d 391 (1994); Packard v. Provident Nat'l Bank, 994 F.2d 1039, 1045 (3d Cir.1993). A challenge to jurisdiction may be either factual or facial. See CNA v. United States, 535 F.3d 132, 145 (3d Cir.2008) (citing 5B Charles Alan Wright & Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1350, at 147–55 (3d ed.2004)). Where the challenge is facial, as Obama and the DNC's is here, courts must take the well-pleaded facts of the complaint as true and must draw all inferences in a manner most favorable to the plaintiff, as with ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss. See Mortensen v. First Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 549 F.2d 884, 891 (3d Cir.1977).

B Rule 12(b)(6)—Failure to State a Claim

When considering a motion to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), this Court must "accept all factual allegations as true, construe the complaint in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, and determine whether, under any reasonable reading of the complaint, the plaintiff may be entitled to relief.” Pinker v. Roche Holdings Ltd., 292 F.3d 361, 374 n. 7 (3d Cir.2002). However, “a court need not credit a complaint’s ‘bald assertions’ or ‘legal conclusions’ when deciding a motion to dismiss.” Morse v. Lower Merion Sch. Dist., 132 F.3d 902, 906 (3d Cir.1997) (citations omitted).⁶

BERG v. OBAMA

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

515

Thus, both the 12(b)(1) and the 12(b)(6) challenges to the Amended Complaint raise strictly legal questions. For purposes of this opinion, we take as true the well-pleaded facts of the Amended Complaint.⁷

6. Obama and the DNC are the only Defendants that have moved this Court to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6). (See Doc. No. 20.) However, we evaluate Plaintiff’s claims against all Defendants. The Court “may on its own initiative dismiss the complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, pursuant to [Rule] 12(b)(6), where the inadequacy of the complaint is apparent as a matter of law.” Coggins v. Carpenter, 468 F.Supp. 270, 279 (E.D.Pa.1979) (citing 5 Wright and Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1357). This practice “promotes the prompt and efficient disposition of cases and protects valuable judicial resources by expediting the dismissal of cases that lack ‘a shred of a valid claim.’” Pa. State Troopers Ass’n v. Pennsylvania, No. 06-1079, 2007 WL 853958, at *9 (M.D.Pa. Mar.20, 2007), modified, 2007 WL 1276914 (M.D.Pa. May 1, 2007) (citing Baker v. U.S. Parole Comm’n, 916 F.2d 725, 726 (D.C.Cir.1990)). The court must accept all of a plaintiff’s allegations as true, as we have done here. See Bryson v. Brand Insulations, Inc., 621 F.2d 556, 559 (3d Cir.1980). In addition, the court must give the plaintiff notice and an opportunity to be heard on the legal viability of his complaint. See Dougherty v. Harper’s Magazine Co., 537 F.2d 758, 761 (3d Cir.1976); Pourghoraihi v. Flying J, Inc., 449 F.3d 751, 765 (7th Cir.2006); see also Bethea v. Nation of Islam, 248 Fed.Appx. 331, 333 (3d Cir.2007) (“However, although disfavored, a . . . dismissal may stand even if the plaintiff is not provided notice and an opportunity to respond where it is clear that the plaintiff cannot prevail and that any amendment would be futile.”). This notice and opportunity to be heard may be provided by the

III. LEGAL ANALYSISA. Count One – The Natural Born Citizen Clause⁸

Defendants Obama and the DNC argue that Plaintiff does not have Article III standing to bring a challenge under the Natural Born Citizen Clause and that as a result this Court does not have jurisdiction to hear the case. That Article III “restricts the federal ‘judicial Power’ to the resolution of ‘Cases’ and ‘Controversies’” is a “basic doctrinal principle.” Sprint Commc’ns. Co. v. APCC Servs., — U.S. —, 128 S.Ct. 2531, 2535, 171 L.Ed.2d 424 act of a single defendant who raises a defense applicable to all defendants. See Pourghoraihi, 449 F.3d at 765-66; Coggins, 468 F.Supp. at 279 (dismissing the complaint with respect to defendants who were not properly served, where other defendants had filed motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)). In the instant case, Plaintiff is on notice that Obama and the DNC raised a Rule 12(b)(6) defense applicable to all Defendants. (See Doc. No. 20 (discussing all counts of the Amended Complaint and alleging that “none of the additional counts contained in the Amended Complaint sets forth any viable federal cause of action”).) Since the filing of the Motion to Dismiss First Amended Complaint (Doc. No. 20), Plaintiff has filed five different Motions, including a Motion for Summary Judgment. (See Doc. Nos. 21, 22, 25, 26 & 27). We assume that if Plaintiff wished to respond to those issues raised in the Motion to Dismiss First Amended Complaint that he did not already address in his Response in Opposition to the initial Motion to Dismiss (Doc. No. 13) he would have done so.

7. We note that while we take Plaintiff’s allegations as true for purposes of this motion (as we must), Defendants Obama and DNC characterize them as “patently false.” (Doc. No. 20 at 9.)

8. Because we dispose of Count One on jurisdictional grounds, we need not address whether Plaintiff can state a claim for relief under the Natural Born Citizen Clause. See Ibraimi v. Chertoff, No. 07-3644(DMC), 2008 WL 3821678, at *6, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 61406, at *12 (D.N.J. Aug. 12, 2008).

(2008). The requirement that there be a case or controversy “is satisfied only where a plaintiff has standing.” Id.

Standing can be a difficult concept for lawyers and non-lawyers alike. The doctrine was so vague that it led Justice Douglas to quip, “[g]eneralizations about standing to sue are largely worthless as such.” Ass’n of Data Processing Serv. Org. v. Camp, 397 U.S. 150, 151, 90 S.Ct. 827, 25 L.Ed.2d 184 (1970). Judge Posner has framed the topic in the following way:

[D]esire does not create standing. If you become indignant reading about a case of police brutality, you cannot sue the responsible officers in federal court under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, though the (immediate) victim might well have a suit; much less can you sue to force the state to conduct a referendum on police brutality, even if the referendum would alleviate your outrage at the officers’ violation of federal civil rights law. If you happen to think it a scandal that less than half the eligible voters actually vote in most American elections, still you cannot sue the government demanding that it be ordered to punish nonvoters – and you could not even if, as in some other countries, the law required people to vote. The injury brought about by a violation of law must, to support a federal court action, be more direct and immediate than this. It must at least resemble the type of injury that would support a lawsuit under traditional principles of common law or equity; it must therefore affect one’s possessions or bodily integrity or freedom of action, however expansively defined and not just one’s opinions, aspirations, or ideology. It must in short be fairly describable as an injury personal to the plaintiff – a deprivation of his right – rather than a concern with another’s injury. . . .

[I]f you have no right to demand assistance the failure to assist you is not an injury that will support a federal suit, even though such a failure may make the rights you do have, which include the right of political advocacy, less fruitful in achieving your goals.

People for Organized Welfare and Employment Rights v. Thompson, 727 F.2d 167, 171–72 (7th Cir.1984) (Posner, J.) (citations omitted).

[1] The Supreme Court has clarified the doctrine since Justice Douglas’s time. It is now clear that standing is an “irreducible constitutional minimum” that has three elements. Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560, 112 S.Ct. 2130, 119 L.Ed.2d 351 (1992); see also Danvers Motor Co. v. Ford Motor Co., 432 F.3d 286, 290–91 (3d Cir.2005) (employing Lujan’s three-pronged test). First, a party must have experienced an injury in fact: “an invasion of a legally protected interest which is (a) concrete and particularized and (b) actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical.” Lujan, 504 U.S. at 560, 112 S.Ct. 2130 (citations and quotation marks omitted). Second, there must be a causal connection between the injury in fact and the defendant’s conduct that is “fairly . . . trace[able] to the challenged action of the defendant, and not . . . the result [of] the independent action of some third party not before the court.” Id. at 560–61, 112 S.Ct. 2130 (quoting Simon v. E. Ky. Welfare Rights Org., 426 U.S. 26, 41–42, 96 S.Ct. 1917, 48 L.Ed.2d 450 (1976)). Third, a favorable decision must be likely to redress the complained of injury. Lujan, 504 U.S. at 561, 112 S.Ct. 2130 (citations omitted). Where a plaintiff cannot establish each of the three elements, the plaintiff does not have standing and the court therefore does not have jurisdiction over the case and cannot rule on the merits. See Goode v. City of Phila., 539 F.3d 311, 327 (3d Cir.2008) (“[O]nce the District Court determined that [plaintiffs] did not have standing, it necessarily determined that it did not have jurisdiction and thus it could not decide the merits of the case.”).

BERG v. OBAMA

517

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

The Supreme Court has consistently held that a plaintiff raising only a generally available grievance about government – claiming only harm to his and every citizen’s interest in proper application of the Constitution and laws, and seeking relief that no more directly and tangibly benefits him than it does the public at large – does not state an Article III case or controversy.

Lujan, 504 U.S. at 573–74, 112 S.Ct. 2130. These decisions include the somewhat rare cases that have reached the Supreme Court where plaintiffs allege constitutional harms (other than taxpayer standing under the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment) that affect broadly-defined groups of citizens or voters. See Lance v. Coffman, 549 U.S. 437, 127 S.Ct. 1194, 1198, 167 L.Ed.2d 29 (2007) (per curiam) (holding that Colorado voters did not have standing under the Elections Clause of the Constitution, art. I, § 4, cl. 1, to challenge a provision of the Colorado constitution limiting the state’s congressional redistricting to once per census); Ex parte Levitt, 302 U.S. 633, 633, 58 S.Ct. 1, 82 L.Ed. 493 (1937) (per curiam) (holding that a citizen did not have standing to challenge appointment of Hugo Black to the Supreme Court under the Constitution’s Ineligibility Clause, art. I, § 6, cl. 2); see also Schlesinger v. Reservists Comm. to Stop the War, 418 U.S. 208, 220–21, 94 S.Ct.

2925, 41 L.Ed.2d 706 (1976) (holding that an anti-war group did not have standing to invoke the Incompatibility Clause, art. II, § 6, cl. 2, to have members of Congress stricken from the Armed Forces Reserve List); United States v. Richardson, 418 U.S. 166, 179, 94 S.Ct. 2940, 41 L.Ed.2d 678 (1974) (holding that a taxpayer did not have standing to obtain information about the expenditures of the Central Intelligence Agency under the Constitution’s Accounts Clause, art I, § 9, cl. 7).

Standing has been a consistent barrier to lower courts hearing generalized, undifferentiated claims by voters and citizens. See Crist v. Comm’n on Presidential Debates, 262 F.3d 193, 194 (2d Cir.2001) (per curiam) (affirming trial court’s determination that voter did not have standing to challenge policy of non-profit corporation responsible for organizing presidential debates); Becker v. FEC, 230 F.3d 381, 389–90 (1st Cir.2000) (holding that supporters of presidential candidate Ralph Nader did not have standing to challenge FEC’s debate regulations under which Nader experienced the alleged harm); Gottlieb v. FEC, 143 F.3d 618, 620–22 (D.C.Cir.1998) (holding that voters, among others, did not have standing to challenge FEC’s decision to dismiss an administrative complaint alleging violations of the Campaign Act); Jones v. Bush, 122 F.Supp.2d 713, 716–18 (N.D.Tex.2000) (holding that voters did not have standing to seek injunctive relief under the Twelfth Amendment to prevent Texas members of the Electoral College from casting votes for both George W. Bush and Dick Cheney).⁹ Most recently,

9. This is not to say that voters never have standing to challenge practices that restrict their rights as voters. See, e.g., Bullock v. Carter, 405 U.S. 134, 143–44, 92 S.Ct. 849, 31 L.Ed.2d 92 (1972) (allowing voters to intervene in suit challenging the constitutionality of prohibitively expensive filing fees that kept voters’ desired candidates off the ballot where the fees in question had a “real and appreciable impact on the exercise of the franchise”). At first blush what concerned the Supreme Court in Bullock appears to be present here: Plaintiff argues that if Obama is permitted to run and is subsequently shown to be ineligible, voters will be denied their “right” to vote for an eligible candidate. (Doc. No. 13 at 17.) However, upon further review, it becomes in a well-reasoned and concise opinion, Judge Laplante of the District of New Hampshire ruled on a question very similar to the one before us and determined that voters do not have standing to bring a claim under the Natural Born Citizen Clause to exclude a candidate from the presidential primaries. See Hollander v. McCain, 566 F.Supp.2d 63 (D.N.H. 2008).

1. Plaintiff Does Not Have Standing

[2,3] “[A] voter fails to present an injury-in-fact when the alleged harm is abstract and widely shared or is only derivative of a harm experienced by a candidate.” Crist, 262 F.3d at 193; Jones, 122 F.Supp.2d at 717 (holding that harm experienced by “Plaintiff[s] and all other American citizens” was too “undifferentiated and general nature” to confer standing on voters) (emphasis in original). The alleged harm to voters stemming from a presidential candidate’s failure to satisfy the eligibility requirements of the Natural Born Citizen Clause is not concrete or particularized enough to constitute an injury in fact sufficient to satisfy Article III standing. See Hollander, 566 F.Supp.2d at 68 (noting that such harm “would adversely affect only the generalized interest of all citizens in constitutional governance”) (citations omitted).

Hollander and Jones are instructive. In Hollander, the plaintiff alleged that the apparent that there are stark differences between Plaintiff’s position and the position of the voters in Bullock.

In Bullock, the plaintiffs (both voters and aspiring candidates) challenged the constitutionality of filing fees whose expense kept aspiring candidates off the ballot. Bullock, 405 U.S. at 135, 92 S.Ct. 849. The Supreme Court held that the filing fees were an unconstitutional legislative barrier that kept otherwise legitimate, aspiring candidates from appearing on the ballot. Thus, state action, in the form of a statute, prevented voters from voting for legitimate candidates of their choice. That concern is not present here.

Republican party primary candidate, John McCain,¹⁰ was ineligible to be President because he was born in the Panama Canal Zone and, therefore, was not a “natural born citizen” as that term is used in the Natural Born Citizen Clause. Hollander, at 64–69. The plaintiff believed that if the Republican National Committee were permitted to nominate McCain, and McCain were subsequently found ineligible to run for President, then plaintiff and “100 million additional voters” would be disenfranchised. Id. at 668. The district court ruled that the plaintiff did not have standing because the harm plaintiff alleged was too generalized.

Id. at 67.

In Jones, the plaintiffs alleged that George W. Bush and Dick Cheney were both inhabitants of Texas and that members of the Electoral College from Texas could not cast votes for both of them in the 2000 presidential election because of the Twelfth Amendment’s requirement that Electors “shall . . . vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of that same state with themselves.” Jones, 122 F.Supp.2d at 715 (quoting U.S. Const. amend. XII). The plaintiffs claimed their status as voters was sufficient to confer standing. Id. According to the plaintiffs, by casting ballots for both Bush and Che-

Moreover, the Court in Bullock did not limit or in any way invalidate votes that had already been cast; nor did it void the results of the elections that had taken place. See id. at 136–37, 149, 92 S.Ct. 849 (affirming trial court’s permanent injunction of the filing fee law). By contrast, Plaintiff would have us derail the democratic process by invalidating a candidate for whom millions of people voted and who underwent excessive vetting during what was one of the most hotly contested presidential primary in living memory.

10. John McCain has since secured the Republican Party’s nomination for President.

BERG v. OBAMA

519

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

ney, the Texas Electors would be “infringing [plaintiffs’] right to cast a meaningful vote.” Id. at 717. The court found plaintiffs’ alleged harm insufficient to establish standing because it was not a “particularized, palpable injury.” Id.

Plaintiff’s allegations of harm in the instant case suffer from the same fundamental flaws as the plaintiffs’ allegations in Hollander and Jones: Plaintiff’s stake is no greater and his status no more differentiated than that of millions of other voters. Plaintiff acknowledges as much in the Amended Complaint when he avers that he and “other Democratic Americans” (Doc. No. 14–2 ¶ 7) will experience irreparable harm.¹¹ This harm is too vague and its effects too attenuated to confer standing on any and all voters. See Becker, 230 F.3d at 390 (holding that voter-plaintiffs’ “concern for corruption of the political process ‘is not only widely shared, but is also of an abstract and indefinite nature,’ comparable to the ‘common concern for obedience to law’” (quoting FEC v. Akins, 524 U.S. 11, 23, 118 S.Ct. 1777, 141 L.Ed.2d 10 (1998))).

The party asserting that jurisdiction is proper must establish each of the elements established by the Supreme Court in Lujan. 505 U.S. at 561, 112 S.Ct. 2638 (“Since [elements of standing] are not mere pleading requirements but rather an indispensable part of the plaintiff’s case, each element must be supported in the same way as any other matter on which the plaintiff bears the burden of proof . . .”) (emphasis added). Failure to establish any of the elements leaves the

11. One substantive problem with Plaintiff’s disenfranchisement theory is that it is unlikely that “the removal of an elected official by non-electoral means amounts to ‘disenfranchisement’ of the voters who put him there.” Hollander, at 69 (citing Powell v. McCormack, 395 U.S. 486, 547, 89 S.Ct. 1944, 23 L.Ed.2d 491 (1969)); see also id. at 70 n. 7 (“There is also the question of whether the ‘disenfranchisement’ resulting from a vote for an ineligible candidate is [a] sort of ‘self-inflicted’ harm caused by the voter, rather than any state actor, which therefore does not amount to an infringement of the franchise right.”) (citing 1 Lawrence H. Tribe, American Constitutional Law § 13–24, at 1122–23 (2d ed.1988)).

2. Plaintiff’s Standing Arguments are Unpersuasive

Plaintiff attempts to establish standing on several additional grounds, but his arguments do not solve the fundamental problem that the harm he alleges does not constitute an injury in fact. His most reasonable arguments attempt to distinguish Hollander. (Doc. No. 13 at 16–17.) For example, he asserts that the harm he has experienced is sufficient to constitute an injury in fact under Akins (id. at 18–22). However, Plaintiff ventures into the unreasonable with arguments based on a number of federal statutes (id. at 17–18, 22–27). We give consideration to each argument.

(a) Hollander v. McCain

In an effort to establish standing, Plaintiff attempts to distinguish Hollander on four grounds. First, he asserts that the plaintiff in Hollander challenged McCain’s candidacy at the primary stage, and thus McCain’s alleged ineligibility was “hardly a restriction on voters’ rights.” (Id. at 69.) By contrast, Plaintiff argues that Obama is now a candidate in the general election, which “prevents citizens from voting for Hillary Clinton despite her immense popularity.” (Id. at 69.) Plaintiff is correct that the narrow issue in Hollander was the inclusion of an allegedly ineligible candidate in a primary of multiple (presumptively) eligible candidates. See 566 F.Supp.2d at 67. Whereas a Republican in New Hampshire could vote for any one of twenty-one Republican candidates in the primary (id. at 69 n. 6), Plaintiff, as a life-long Democrat, arguably faces a Hobson's choice in the general election: Obama or nothing. Thus, we do not expect Plaintiff to take solace in the Hollander court's admonition that "McCain's candidacy for the presidency, whatever his eligibility, is 'hardly a restriction on voters' rights' because it in no way prevents them from voting for somebody else." Id. at 69 (citation omitted).

chisement’ resulting from a vote for an ineligible candidate is [a] sort of ‘self-inflicted’ harm caused by the voter, rather than any state actor, which therefore does not amount to an infringement of the franchise right.”) (citing 1 Lawrence H. Tribe, American Constitutional Law § 13–24, at 1122–23 (2d ed.1988)).

That does not mean, however, that Plaintiff has experienced an injury in fact. The plaintiff and the court in Hollander specifically contemplated McCain winning his party's nomination:

Unlike [plaintiff's] other "disenfranchisement" theory, this one does not depend on the failure of his chosen candidate because of McCain's alleged ineligibility, but on the success of [plaintiff's] chosen candidate – who is McCain in this scenario – despite his alleged ineligibility. On this theory, however, [plaintiff's] alleged "disenfranchisement" flows not

12. Plaintiff's argument that Obama's nomination will deny him "the constitutional right to vote for an eligible candidate" is the same as the argument that the plaintiff made in Hollander. (Doc. No. 13 at 17.) The fact that the plaintiff in Hollander called the harm "disenfranchisement" and Plaintiff identifies it as a constitutional right to vote for an eligible candidate is a distinction without a difference. Indeed, Plaintiff does not appear to distinguish between the two terms. (Compare Doc. No. 13 at 17 with Doc. No. 14-2 ¶ 173 (alleging disenfranchisement will result from Obama's nomination and election).)

13. We find Chief Justice Burger's observation in Richardson pertinent here:

from the actions he has challenged here, i.e., McCain's presidential campaign or the RNC's likely selection of him as its nominee, but from his subsequent removal from office at the hands of someone else (presumably one of the co-equal branches), resulting (presumably, yet again) in a President different from the one [plaintiff] helped to elect.

Id. at 70 (emphasis in original).¹² The court found that the plaintiff still could not meet the standing requirements on causation grounds; the harm experienced was not traceable to the defendants' conduct "but to the conduct of those – whoever they might turn out to be – responsible for ultimately ousting McCain from office." Id.

We agree that such causation considerations pose an impediment to a plaintiff obtaining standing in this context, but we also believe that, regardless of questions of causation, the grievance remains too generalized to establish the existence of an injury in fact. To reiterate: a candidate's ineligibility under the Natural Born Citizen Clause does not result in an injury in fact to voters.¹³ Cf. Lance, 127 S.Ct. at 1198 (voters did not allege harm sufficient to invoke the Elections Clause); Ex parte Levitt, 302 U.S. 633, 633, 58 S.Ct. 1, 82

It can be argued that if respondent is not permitted to litigate this issue, no one can do so. In a very real sense, the absence of a particular individual or class to litigate these claims gives support to the argument that the subject matter is committed to the surveillance of Congress, and ultimately to the political process.

418 U.S. at 179, 94 S.Ct. 2940. If, through the political process, Congress determines that citizens, voters, or party members should police the Constitution's eligibility requirements for the Presidency, then it is free to pass laws conferring standing on individuals like Plaintiff. Until that time, voters do not have standing to bring the sort of challenge that Plaintiff attempts to bring in the Amended Complaint.

BERG v. OBAMA

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

521

L.Ed. 493 (citizen could not articulate harm under the Ineligibility Clause). By extension, the theoretical constitutional harm experienced by voters does not change as the candidacy of an allegedly ineligible candidate progresses from the primaries to the general election.

Plaintiff's second attempt to distinguish Hollander folds into his first. He argues that because he is denied his constitutional right to vote for an eligible candidate, his harm is more particularized than the plaintiff's in Hollander. (See Doc. No. 13 at 17.) As we explained above, however, there is no meaningful distinction between the harm alleged here and the harm alleged in Hollander.

Plaintiff's third and fourth arguments are factual in nature. He argues that the harm created by Obama's ineligibility is a result of subterfuge and fraud by Obama as opposed to the situation in Hollander where there was no substantive dispute about where McCain was born. (Id.) He also claims that Defendants – presumably in their Motion to Dismiss – “have failed to show that Mr. Obama is ‘unquestionably an American citizen.’” (Id. (quoting Hollander, at 65).) These distinctions fail to take into account the procedural posture of the case here and in Hollander. We have taken Plaintiff's factual allegations as true and drawn all inferences in his favor. The court in Hollander operated under the same standard. Hollander, at 63. Raising these factual discrepancies is unavailing to Plaintiff.

(b) Statutory standing arguments

Plaintiff also attempts to obtain standing to bring his Natural Born Citizen Clause claim under the Campaign Act, 2 U.S.C. § 431 et seq.; the Administrative Procedure Act (“APA”), 5 U.S.C. § 702; the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1481(b); FOIA, 5 U.S.C. § 552; 28 U.S.C. § 1343; and 28 U.S.C. § 1331.

Plaintiff cites no authority under which any of these statutes would confer standing on him to bring his Natural Born Citizen Clause claim and we are aware of none. We therefore find that Plaintiff's attempt to use these statutes to gain standing to pursue his Natural Born Citizen Clause claim are frivolous and not worthy of discussion. Plaintiff avers violations of some of these statutes as free-standing causes of action in the Amended Complaint. We address the merit of those causes of action below.

B. Counts Two, Three, & Four – Civil Rights Violations, 42 U.S.C. § 1983, 42 U.S.C. § 1985, and 42 U.S.C. § 1986

The Amended Complaint alleges deprivation of Plaintiff's civil rights in violation 42 U.S.C. § 1983 (Count Two), 42 U.S.C. § 1985 (Count Three), and 42 U.S.C. § 1986 (Count Four). The DNC and Obama argue that Plaintiff has failed to properly allege a deprivation of his constitutional or statutory rights by state action and has failed to properly allege a conspiracy. We address each of Plaintiff's claims in turn.

1. 42 U.S.C. § 1983

[4] Plaintiff makes several allegations that he believes entitle him to § 1983 relief. First, he claims that he “has been deprived of money and billable hours by fraudulent means as a result of donating money and billable hours to secure, as promised, an eligible Democratic candidate for Office of the President . . . [and that he] has been deprived of his right to vote for an eligible Democratic Nominee for the U.S. Office of the President.” (Doc. No. 14-2 ¶ 93.) Second, he claims that he has been a victim of racial animosity perpetrated by Obama's supporters, including being labeled in public as a racist for bringing this suit. (Id. ¶¶ 94–99.) Third, he claims that Defendants are “attempting to change our United States Constitution without proper due process of law by allowing Obama to continue his campaign. . . .” (Id. ¶ 100.) Fourth, he claims that his “Life, Liberty and Property rights guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution will further be violated if Obama is allowed to be voted into the position of President. . . .” (Id. ¶ 101.) Finally, he claims that all the Defendants (other than Obama) have damaged Plaintiff by failing to act in their official capacities to stop Obama from running. (Id. ¶¶ 104–08.)

Section 1983 protects civil rights. It creates a cause of action against [e]very person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State or Territory or the District of Columbia, subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws.

42 U.S.C. § 1983. A § 1983 claimant must allege violations of “rights independently ‘secured by the Constitution and laws’ of the United States.” Gonzaga Univ. v. Doe, 536 U.S. 273, 285, 122 S.Ct. 2268, 153 L.Ed.2d 309 (2002). “One cannot go into court and claim a ‘violation of § 1983’ – for § 1983 by itself does not protect anyone against anything.” Id. (citing Chapman v. Houston Welfare Rights Org., 441 U.S. 600, 617, 99 S.Ct. 1905, 60 L.Ed.2d 508 (1979)). We therefore must inquire into whether Plaintiff has alleged a violation of a right that would entitle him to redress under § 1983.

The irreducible basis of all Plaintiff’s alleged violations is that Obama might be elected to the Office of President despite being constitutionally ineligible under the Natural Born Citizen Clause. This alleged fact underscores his claim that he has been deprived of money and billable hours, his claim that he has been insulted in public, his claim that he is being deprived of a chance to vote for an eligible candidate, his claim that he will be deprived of life, liberty and property, and his claim that the non-Obama Defendants are causing him harm by not stopping Obama. The question, therefore, is straightforward: Does the Natural Born Citizen Clause create a federal right the violation of which results in a cognizable § 1983 claim? We think not.

After a diligent search, we have been unable to find any cases that address the matter and the parties have not offered any. However, other courts have addressed the application of § 1983 in analogous situations. See, e.g., Dennis v. Higgins, 498 U.S. 439, 111 S.Ct. 865, 112 L.Ed.2d 969 (1991) (“The Supremacy Clause . . . is ‘not a source of any federal rights’; rather, it “‘secure[s]” federal rights by according them priority whenever they come in conflict with state law.’” (citing Chapman, 441 U.S. at 613, 99 S.Ct. 1905)); White Mountain Apache Tribe v. Williams, 810 F.2d 844, 848 (9th Cir.) (amended opinion), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1060, 107 S.Ct. 940, 93 L.Ed.2d 990 (1987) (“[T]he Supremacy Clause, standing alone, secures federal rights only in the sense that it establishes federal-state priorities; it does not create individual rights, nor does it secure such rights within the meaning of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983.”); Maryland Pest Control Ass’n. v. Montgomery County, 884 F.2d 160 (4th Cir.1989) (same); Gerling Global Reinsurance Corp. of Am. v. Garamendi, 400 F.3d 803, 811 (9th Cir. 2005) (Graber, J., concurring) (“[T]he foreign affairs power, like the Supremacy Clause, creates no individual rights enforceable under 42 U.S.C. § 1983.”). Like the Supremacy Clause and the foreign affairs powers, the Natural Born Citizen

BERG v. OBAMA523

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

Clause does not confer an individual right on citizens or voters. Therefore, Plaintiff cannot state a cognizable § 1983 claim.¹⁴

2. 42 U.S.C. § 1985

[5] The facts that Plaintiff alleges in support of his 42 U.S.C. § 1985 claim are substantively the same as the facts he alleges in support of his § 1983 claim.¹⁵ (See Doc. No. 14-2 ¶¶ 110-22.) He believes that the Defendants are promoting and assisting Obama's candidacy knowing that Obama is ineligible to take office. Plaintiff avers that Defendants' conduct amounts to a conspiracy in violation of § 1985. He does not, however, indicate the sub-section of § 1985 on which he premises his claim.

[6] As a preliminary matter, where there is no federal right that creates a basis for a § 1983 claim there is similarly no basis for a § 1985 claim. See Escamil- la v. Santa Ana, 606 F.Supp. 928, 934 (C.D.Cal.1985) (granting summary judgment to defendants on plaintiff's § 1985 and § 1986 claims where plaintiff could not establish a § 1983 claim); Wiggins v. Hitchens, 853 F.Supp. 505, 510 (D.D.C. 1994) ("There can be no recovery under section § 1985(3) absent a violation of a substantive federal right."). This alone stands as an impediment to Plaintiff stating a cognizable § 1985 claim.

Moreover, none of the § 1985 clauses apply here. Section 1985(1) deals with interference with officers of the United States, and Plaintiff has not alleged that he is an officer of the United States. See Silo v. City of Phila., 593 F.Supp. 870, 873 (E.D.Pa.1984). Section 1985(2) "creates a claim for conspiracy to intimidate witnesses, jurors, or parties in a federal case." Id. Plaintiff has made no allegations that would support such a claim. That leaves

14. State action is also a necessary element of a § 1983 claim. See Mark v. Borough of Hatboro, 51 F.3d 1137, 1141-45 (3d Cir.1995) (discussing state action requirement). While we do not need to reach this question because Plaintiff does not allege the violation of any legally protected right, we note that he would likely have difficulty showing that either Obama or the DNC are state actors or acting under color of law. We have found no cases where a presidential candidate has been treated as a state actor merely for running for office. To the contrary, the few cases that we have found suggest that presidential candidates are not state actors or engaged in state action for purposes of § 1983. See, e.g., Fulani v. McAuliffe, No. 04-6973, 2005 WL 2276881, at *5, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20400, at *17 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 19, 2005) (dismissing § 1983 claim against defendants, including the DNC and 2004 presidential candidate John Kerry, because they were not "acting under color of state law"); Riches v. Giambi, No. 07-0623, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53123, at *20 (N.D.Cal. Jan. 2, 2008) (dismissing § 1983 claim against 2008 Republican presidential candidate Mike Huckabee because he was a private individual). The claim that the DNC is not a state actor or acting under color of state law in conducting a presidential campaign is slightly more ambiguous, but the more recent cases appear to conclude that the DNC is not a state actor. See LaRouche v. Fowler, 152 F.3d 974, 990 (D.C.Cir.1998) ("If a party must produce the nation's 'uncontested choice' for President of the United State to qualify as a state actor, the Democratic (or Republican) Party plainly does not qualify"). But cf. Lynch v. Torquato, 343 F.2d 370, 372 (3d Cir.1965) ("The people, when engaged in primary and general elections for the selection of their representatives in government, may rationally be viewed as the 'state' in action, with the consequence that the organization and regulation of these enterprises must be such as accord each elector equal protection of the laws.').

15. Plaintiff makes additional claims about Obama and his campaign "abus[ing] their position and the law for intimidation purposes to stop people from free speech when the speech includes criticism or questioning of Obama. . . ." (Doc. No. 14-2 ¶ 115.) The Amended Complaint makes no attempt to allege facts in support of these claims, which standing on their own are nothing more than conclusory allegations.

§ 1985(3). A claim under § 1985(3) arises when:

(1) two or more persons conspire to deprive any person of the equal protection of the law; (2) one or more of the conspirators performs or causes to be performed any overt act in furtherance of the conspiracy; and (3) that overt act injures the plaintiff in his person or property or deprives the plaintiff of any right or privilege of a citizen of the United States.

Barnes Found. v. Twp. of Lower Merion, 242 F.3d 151, 162 (3d Cir.2001). In addition, § 1985(3) “requires allegation of ‘some racial, or perhaps otherwise class-based, invidiously discriminatory animus behind the conspirators’ action. . . .” Silo, 593 F.Supp. at 873 (citing Griffin v. Breckenridge, 403 U.S. 88, 102, 91 S.Ct. 1790, 29 L.Ed.2d 338 (1971)).

We do not reach an analysis of the three elements of § 1985(3) because Plaintiff has made no allegations that the purported conspiracy is motivated by racial animus.¹⁶ Instead, the Amended Complaint is focused entirely on an alleged conspiracy to conceal Obama’s true nationality. Therefore, Plaintiff cannot state a cognizable § 1985 claim.

3. 42 U.S.C. § 1986

[7] It is well settled that “[a] plaintiff must establish a valid § 1985 claim in order to state a claim under § 1986.” Carlington v. City of Jersey City, No. 06-5367, 2008 WL 2061147, at *7, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38808, at *19 (E.D.Pa. May 12, 2008) (citing Clark v. Clabaugh, 20 F.3d 1290 (3d Cir.1994)). Since the Amended Complaint does not articulate a cognizable § 1985 claim, Plaintiff’s § 1986 claim must fail as well.

¹⁶ We note that the Amended Complaint alleges that Obama’s supporters have made racially charged remarks (see Doc. No. 14-2 ¶ 94) and that Obama “is furthering racial

C. Count Five – Campaign Act Claims, 2 U.S.C. § 431 et seq.

Count Five of the Amended Complaint alleges a violation of the Campaign Act, 2 U.S.C. § 431 et seq. Specifically, it alleges that “[t]he DNC, FEC, Feinstein and the U.S. Senate Commission on Rules and Administration” are aware of “Obama’s illegal activities, encouraging racial tension, encouraging violence, his fraudulent campaigning, fraudulently attempting to secure the position of President of the United States.” (Doc. No. 14-2 ¶ 139.) Despite this knowledge, these Defendants “have allowed Obama’s illegal and fraudulent campaign, [through] which Obama has received in excess of $450 Million in donations.” (Doc. No. 14-2 ¶ 141.) Plaintiff argues that this entitles him to the information regarding Obama that he seeks in the Amended Complaint.

The Amended Complaint does not allege any facts regarding Plaintiff’s attempts to obtain the information he seeks by means of the Campaign Act. However, Plaintiff’s Opposition informs us that he “complained” to the FEC prior to instigating his current suit and that the FEC has “completely ignored” him. (Doc. No. 13 at 18.) Although Plaintiff alleged these facts in his Opposition and not in the Amended Complaint, in the interest of rendering a decision that addresses Plaintiff’s arguments, we will construe the allegations in a light most favorable to Plaintiff and treat the Amended Complaint as if it had alleged that the FEC failed to act on an administrative complaint.

Congress has charged the FEC with administering the Campaign Act, 2 U.S.C. § 437c(b). “As commonly understood, the [Campaign Act] seeks to remedy any actu-tion” (see id. ¶ 96), but there are no factual allegations whatsoever that tie any Defendant to any racially motivated tortious conduct of the sort § 1985 was intended to redress.

BERG v. OBAMA

525

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

al or perceived corruption of the political process. . . .” Akins, 524 U.S. at 14, 118 S.Ct. 1777. The Campaign Act confers standing on “[a]ny person who believes a violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 has occurred” to file an administrative complaint with the FEC. 2 U.S.C. § 437g(a)(1). When the FEC fails to act on an administrative complaint, as Plaintiff seems to argue here, a party may file a suit in district court.¹⁷ 2 U.S.C. § 437g(a)(8); Stockman, 138 F.3d at 153, 156 n. 18 (5th Cir.1998) (noting that § 478g(a)(8) is the only private remedy afforded by the Campaign Act). There are, however, two fatal flaws with Plaintiff’s theory: one procedural and one substantive.

[8] First, if the FEC failed to act on a complaint filed by Plaintiff, this is the wrong court to hear the action. The Campaign Act specifically requires that grievances regarding the FEC’s failure to enforce the Act must be filed in the District Court for the District of Columbia. 2 U.S.C. § 437g(a)(8); Beam v. Gonzales, 548 F.Supp.2d 596, 611–12 (N.D.Ill.2008) (“[T]he only FECA provision empowering private parties to seek judicial review extends to administrative complainants. . . . Even if such a suit were proper [here], FECA would require that it be brought in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.”).

[9, 10] Second, neither the Amended Complaint nor the Opposition identifies a specific provision of the Campaign Act that entitles Plaintiff to information concerning Obama’s citizenship. Instead, Plaintiff relies on generalized arguments about political corruption and the purpose of the Campaign Act. (See Doc. No. 13 at 20–22.) Congress intended the Campaign Act to combat the corrupting influence of money on the political process. See Karl Rove & Co. v. Thornburgh, 39 F.3d 1273, 1281 (5th Cir.1994) (“The primary purpose of [the Campaign Act] . . . is to regulate campaign contributions and expenditures in order to eliminate pernicious influence – actual or perceived – over candidates by those who contribute large sums” (footnote omitted)). It seems clear that the Campaign Act does not address the sort of corruption that Plaintiff alleges in his Complaint. Nevertheless, Plaintiff cites to the Supreme Court’s decision in Akins, 524 U.S. 11, 118 S.Ct. 1777, 141 L.Ed.2d 10 passim, to support his claim of standing. (See Doc. No. 13 at 20–22.) Reliance on Akins, however, merely accentuates the problems with Plaintiff’s argument.

Akins involved a challenge by voters to the FEC’s determination that the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (“AIPAC”) was not a “political committee” within the meaning of the Campaign Act. 524 U.S. at 13, 118 S.Ct. 1777. The effect of this determination was to shield AIPAC from the Campaign Act’s disclosure requirements and deprive plaintiffs of information regarding, among other things, AIPAC’s lobbying activities. Id. at 15–16, 118 S.Ct. 1777. On certiorari, the Supreme Court addressed whether the plaintiffs (respondents) had “standing to challenge the [FEC’s] decision not to bring an enforcement action in this case.” Id. at 18, 118 S.Ct. 1777. In holding that the plaintiffs did have standing, the Court deter-

17. If we have extended Plaintiff too favorable an inference and he in fact did not file an administrative complaint, then he lacks standing to pursue the theory outlined in his Amended Complaint because section 437d(e) of the Campaign Act provides that “the power of the [FEC] to initiate civil actions . . . shall be the exclusive civil remedy for the enforcement of the provisions of this Act.” 2 U.S.C. § 437d(e) (emphasis added). See also Stockman, 138 F.3d at 152 (“The [Campaign Act] provides a strong basis for scrupulously respecting the grant by Congress of ‘exclusive jurisdiction’ to the FEC. . . .”).

mined that “[t]he ‘injury in fact’ that [plaintiffs] have suffered consists of their inability to obtain information – lists of AIPAC donors (who are, according to AIPAC, its members), and campaign-related contributions and expenditures – that, on [plaintiffs’] view of the law, the statute requires that AIPAC make public.” Id. at 21, 118 S.Ct. 1777. Plaintiff reasons that he has standing because his request for information is analogous to the plaintiffs in Akins. (See Doc. No. 13 at 21–22.)

Plaintiff’s argument has superficial appeal, but does not take into account the underlying consideration in Akins that was necessary to the Supreme Court’s determination. There, plaintiffs sought disclosures that were required by the Campaign Act. See Akins, 524 U.S. at 16, 118 S.Ct. 1777. Here, the Campaign Act does not require Defendants to disclose the sort of information that Plaintiff seeks in the Amended Complaint. Accordingly, even if Plaintiff had followed the proper administrative procedure, Plaintiff still would face an insurmountable obstacle to obtaining the information he now seeks through the courts. See Gottlieb, 143 F.3d at 620–21 (holding that voters did not have standing to challenge “supposed injury to their ‘ability to influence the political process’” because such a claim was too vague to constitute an injury in fact – even where voters had followed the appropriate procedure under § 437g(a)(8)). If Congress had intended the Campaign Act to require presidential candidates to make public disclosures of the sort that Plaintiff requests here – and therefore expose candidates to legal challenges permitted by the broad grant of standing pursuant to § 437g(a)(1) of the Act — then it would have done so explicitly.

18. Plaintiff does not assert that he “attempted to secure documents” under FOIA from Defendant Cortés, the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Even if he had, such

D. Count Six – Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. § 552 et seq.

In Count Six of the Amended Complaint, Plaintiff alleges violations of FOIA. 5 U.S.C. § 552 et seq. The gravamen of Plaintiff’s allegation is that he “attempted to secure documents proving the citizenship status of Obama from Obama[,] the FEC, DNC, Feinstein, [and the] U.S. Senate, Commission on Rules and Administration,” but “has been refused.” (Doc. No. 14–2 ¶ 146.) Plaintiff’s allegation fails to state a claim under FOIA for at least three reasons.

[11] First, FOIA applies only to government agencies. Here, all but one of the Defendants are not government agencies as Congress has defined them. Under FOIA, “[e]ach agency shall make available for public inspection and copying” certain government records. 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(2). Congress defined the term “agency” under FOIA to include:

any executive department, military department, Government corporation, Government controlled corporation, or other establishment in the executive branch of the Government (including the Executive Office of the President), or any independent regulatory agency.

Id. at § 552(f)(1) (emphasis added). Congress is not subject to FOIA. Id. at § 551(1) (noting that for purposes of FOIA, the term agency “does not include the Congress.”). Defendants Obama, the DNC, Feinstein, and the U.S. Senate, Commission on Rules and Administration are not federal executive departments. See id. at § 552(f)(1). They are not independent regulatory agencies. Id. Indeed, they are not even in the executive branch. Id. Accordingly, Plaintiff cannot state a claim against them under FOIA.¹⁸ See, e.g., an allegation would not state a claim. Defendant Cortés is an official of a Pennsylvania state agency. State agencies and officials are

BERG v. OBAMA

527

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

Sweetland v. Walters, 60 F.3d 852, 855 (D.C.Cir.1995) (affirming dismissal of FOIA complaint where the plaintiff sought records from an entity that “was not an agency”); St. Michael’s Convalescent Hosp. v. State of California, 643 F.2d 1369, 1373 (9th Cir.1981) (FOIA applies only to “agencies” as defined in 5 U.S.C. §§ 551(1) & 552(f)); Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Wash. v. Office of Admin., 559 F.Supp.2d 9, 19 (D.D.C.2008) (granting motion to dismiss and finding that plaintiff failed to state a FOIA claim where defendant was not an agency under FOIA); Aitro v. Clapper, No. 05–3120, 2005 WL 1384063, at *2 (W.D.Mo. Jun.8, 2005) (“As neither [entity] is a government agency, FOIA is inapplicable and Plaintiff has failed to state a claim . . . for which relief can be granted by this court.”).

[12] Second, FOIA requires a valid request for records, and Plaintiff does not allege that he made such a request from the FEC. The FEC is an independent regulatory agency, so it is subject to FOIA. FOIA “requires federal agencies to allow access to their records to any person who complies with the procedures set forth in the Act.” St. Mary Hosp. v. Phila. Prof. Standards Review Org., Inc., No. 78–2943, 1980 WL 19448, at *1 (E.D.Pa. June 25, 1980). However, Plaintiff does not allege that he complied with FEC guidelines regarding FOIA requests. See generally 11 C.F.R. § 4.7(b) (setting forth FEC guidelines for record requests under FOIA). It is entirely unclear from Plain-not subject to FOIA. See Dunleavy v. New Jersey, 251 Fed. App’x 80, 83 (3d Cir.2007) (unpublished opinion) (“FOIA does not impose [an] obligation on state agencies.”); Grand Central Partnership, Inc. v. Cuomo, 166 F.3d 473, 484 (2d Cir.1999) (“[I]t is beyond question that FOIA applies only to federal and not to state agencies.”); Philip Morris, Inc., v. Harshbarger, 122 F.3d 58, 83 (1st Cir.1997) (“FOIA . . . applies only to federal executive branch agencies”); Day v. Shalala, 23 F.3d tiff’s Amended Complaint what type of request he actually made to the FEC. This alone warrants dismissal of the claim. See, e.g., Caraveo v. EEOC, 96 Fed.Appx. 738, 740 (2d Cir.2004) (unpublished opinion) (affirming dismissal of FOIA claim where Plaintiff “failed to allege that he complied with [agency] guidelines regarding FOIA requests.”). Moreover, it is unclear when or if Plaintiff made his alleged FOIA request to the FEC. See 11 C.F.R. § 4.7(c) (establishing procedures and deadlines for the FEC to respond to FOIA requests). “Without any showing that the agency received the request, the agency has no obligation to respond to it.” Hutchins v. Dept of Justice, No. 00–2349, 2005 WL 1334941, at *1–2 (D.D.C. June 6, 2005).

[13, 14] Third, before bringing a FOIA claim in federal court, a plaintiff must exhaust the available administrative remedies. See Wilbur v. CIA, 355 F.3d 675, 676 (D.C.Cir.2004) (per curiam) (“Exhaustion of administrative remedies is a mandatory prerequisite to a lawsuit under FOIA.”); McDonnell v. United States, 4 F.3d 1227, 1240 (3d Cir.1993) (holding that plaintiff had an obligation to pursue administrative remedies prior to filing suit). In addition, a plaintiff must allege in his complaint that “he exhausted his remedies under FOIA” in order to properly plead a case. Scherer v. Balkema, 840 F.2d 437, 443 (7th Cir. 1988) (citing Hedley v. United States, 594 F.2d 1043 (5th Cir.1979)). Exhaustion allows “the agency [] an opportunity to exercise its discretion and expertise on the matter and to make a factual record to support its decision.” Wilbur, 355 F.3d 675, 677. “In the absence of such an allegation, [a plaintiff] states no claim upon which relief can be granted.” Scherer, 840 F.2d at 443. Plaintiff alleges that the FEC has “ignored” his request. (Doc. No. 14-2 ¶ 146.) While FOIA “recognizes a constructive exhaustion doctrine for purposes of judicial review upon the expiration of certain relevant FOIA deadlines,” Spannaus v. U.S. Dep’t of Justice, 824 F.2d 52, 58 (D.C.Cir.1987), Plaintiff does not allege expiration of any FOIA deadlines. Indeed, Plaintiff alleges no facts in his Amended Complaint that allow us to invoke the constructive exhaustion doctrine. Accordingly, Plaintiff’s FOIA claim must be dismissed for this additional reason.

1052, 1064 (6th Cir.1994) (APA “pertains to federal agencies”); Brown v. Kelly, No. 93–5222, 1994 WL 36144, at *1 (D.C.Cir. Jan.27, 1994) (per curiam) (FOIA does not apply to state agencies); St. Michael’s Convalescent Hosp. v. State of California, 643 F.2d 1369, 1373 (9th Cir.1981) (definition of “agency” under FOIA “does not encompass state agencies or bodies”); Johnson v. Wells, 566 F.2d 1016, 1018 (5th Cir.1978) (state board of parole not agency within meaning of FOIA).

E. Count Seven – Promissory Estoppel

[15] In Count Seven, Plaintiff brings a promissory estoppel claim against Obama and the DNC. (See Doc. No. 14-2 ¶¶ 153–79.) Plaintiff asserts that he has “donated money and billable hours to Democratic Presidential candidates as well as the Democratic National Committee.” (Id. ¶ 154.) In support of his claim, Plaintiff alleges, among other things, that the DNC promised to (a) “‘use technology to make government more transparent, accountable, and inclusive,’” (id. ¶ 159), (b) “maintain and restore our Constitution to its proper place in our government and return our Nation to the best traditions, including their commitment to government by law” (id. ¶ 161), and (c) “‘work fully to protect and enforce the fundamental Constitutional right of every American vote – to ensure that the Constitution’s promise is fully realized’” (id. ¶ 163). The source of these “promises” is a document titled “Renewing America’s Promise,” which presents the 2008 Democratic National Platform.

Plaintiff alleges that the DNC breached these promises by (1) promoting an “illegal candidate” to serve as President; (2) failing to investigate Obama’s citizenship; and (3) failing to provide “accurate information” about Obama’s eligibility for presidential office. (Id. ¶¶ 162, 165.) Plaintiff also asserts that Obama “has promised to uphold the United States Constitution and to be open and honest with all questions presented.” (Id. ¶ 167.) He claims that Obama has violated both of these promises by refusing to provide proof of his citizenship status and by running for office even though “he is aware he is ineligible to serve as the President [sic] of the United States.” (Id. ¶ 167.) Plaintiff also claims that Obama has breached his promise to uphold the Constitution by committing massive voter fraud to the tune of more than $450 million. (Id.) Plaintiff concludes:

All elements required to invoke Promissory Estoppel have been met by Plaintiff. The DNC and Obama made a promise to Plaintiff, which Plaintiff relied upon and expected. Not only has Plaintiff suffered economic losses; [sic] he has lost his constitutional right to vote for an eligible Democratic candidate who can serve as the President of the United States, if elected. The only way justice can be served is by the Court enforcing the promise of the DNC and Obama.

(Id. ¶¶ 177–78.)

Although Plaintiff does not specify the law on which he bases his claim, under any 30 definition of promissory estoppel there must be an enforceable promise. See, e.g., 168th & Dodge, LP v. Rave Reviews Cinemas, LLC, 501 F.3d 945, 955 (8th Cir.2007) (finding, under Nebraska law, that “[p]romissory estoppel requires evidence that the promisor made a ‘promise’ to the promisee. A statement of opinion or future intent is insufficient to give rise to a promise"); Garwood Packaging, Inc. v. Allen & Co., 378 F.3d 698, 702, 706 (7th Cir.2004) (finding, under Indiana law, that "the promise relied on to trigger an estoppel must be definite in the sense of being clearly a promise and not just a statement of intentions" and that "if the statements are not reasonably understood as legally enforceable promises there can be no action for promissory estoppel"); DeVoll v. Burdick Painting, 35 F.3d 408, 412 n. 4 (9th Cir.1994) (finding that, "[u]nder both California and federal common law, to establish an enforceable contract based on promissory estoppel, the promisee must show (1) the existence of a promise. . . ."); Ankerstjerne v. Schlumberger Ltd, No. 03-3607, 2004 WL 1068806, at *3, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9927, at *13-14 (E.D.Pa. May 12, 2004) (finding that, under Pennsylvania law, "[a] broad and vague implied promise is not enough to satisfy" the promissory estoppel requirement that a promisor make a promise that he should reasonably expect will induce action or forbearance on the part of promisee) (citing C & K Petroleum Prods., Inc. v. Equibank, 839 F.2d 188, 192 (3d Cir.1988)), aff'd 155 Fed.Appx. 48 (3d Cir.2005); see also Minehan v. United States, 75 Fed.Cl. 249, 260 (2007) (finding that "the IRS's mission statement ['to provide America's taxpayers top quality service by helping them understand and meet their tax responsibilities and by applying the tax law with integrity and fairness to all'] is aspirational, and it makes no specific promise or offer which could be deemed the basis for a contract"); Estate of Bogley v. United States, 206 Ct.Cl. 695, 514 F.2d 1027, 1033 (1975) (finding that the passing of a motion and adopting of a resolution by a corporation's board of directors did not constitute an offer or promise because "[a] gratuitous and unsolicited statement of policy or of intention which receives the concurrence of the party to whom it is addressed, does not constitute a contract" (quoting Goetz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 31 Wis.2d 267, 142 N.W.2d 804, 807 (1966))). The Restatement Second of Contracts provides that a "Promise Reasonably Inducing Action or Forbearance" is

BERG v. OBAMA529

Cite as 574 F.Supp.2d 509 (E.D.Pa. 2008)

[a] promise which the promisor should reasonably expect to induce action or forbearance on the part of the promisee or a third person and which does induce such action or forbearance is binding if injustice can be avoided only by enforcement of the promise. The remedy granted for breach may be limited as justice requires.

Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 90(1) (1981). The Restatement defines a promise as "a manifestation of intention to act or refrain from acting in a specified way, so made as to justify a promisee in understanding that a commitment has been made." Restatement § 2(1).

The "promises" that Plaintiff identifies are statements of principle and intent in the political realm. They are not enforceable promises under contract law. Indeed, our political system could not function if every political message articulated by a campaign could be characterized as a legally binding contract enforceable by individual voters. Of course, voters are free to vote out of office those politicians seen to have breached campaign promises. Federal courts, however, are not and cannot be in the business of enforcing political rhetoric.

F. Count Eight – Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1481(b)

[16] In Count Eight of the Amended Complaint, Plaintiff alleges "loss of nationality" under an expatriation provision of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1481(b). That provision provides:

Whenever the loss of United States nationality is put in issue . . . , the burden shall be upon the person or party claiming that such loss occurred, to establish such claim by a preponderance of the evidence. Any person who commits or performs . . . any act of expatriation . . . shall be presumed to have done so voluntarily, but such presumption may be rebutted upon a showing, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the act or acts committed or performed were not done voluntarily.

8 U.S.C. § 1481(b). The provision establishes the burden of proof in expatriation proceedings where “nationality is put in issue.” In such a case, the Act places the burden of proving loss of citizenship “upon the person or party claiming that such loss occurred.” Id. The provision on which Plaintiff relies sets up rules of evidence; it does not establish a private cause of action. See Vance v. Terrazas, 444 U.S. 252, 265, 100 S.Ct. 540, 62 L.Ed.2d 461 (1980) (citing H.R.Rep. No. 1086, 87th Cong., 1st Sess., 41, U.S.Code Cong. & Admin. News, p. 2985 (1961) (“The provision ‘sets up rules of evidence under which the burden of proof to establish loss of citizenship by preponderance of the evidence would rest upon the Government.’”)). Because the provision does not establish a cause of action, Plaintiff fails to state a claim under 8 U.S.C. § 1481(b).

IV. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, we will grant Defendants’ Motions to Dismiss. An appropriate Order follows.

ORDER

AND NOW, this 24th day of October, 2008, upon consideration of the Motion of Defendant Democratic National Committee and Senator Barack Obama to Dismiss First Amended Complaint (Doc. No. 20) and the Defendant Federal Election Commission’s Motion to Dismiss for Lack of

Subject Matter Jurisdiction (Doc. No. 24), it is ORDERED that:

1. The Motion of Defendant Democratic National Committee and Senator Barack Obama to Dismiss First Amended Complaint (Doc. No. 20) is GRANTED;

Defendant Federal Election Commission’s Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction (Doc. No. 24) is GRANTED; and Plaintiff’s First Amended Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief is DISMISSED.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

UNITED STATES of America

v.

Tyrone D. WILLIAMS, Defendant.

Criminal No. 3:2007-5.

United States District Court,
W.D. Pennsylvania.

Sept. 2, 2008.

Background: Defendant, indicted for unlawful possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, moved to suppress evidence.

Holdings: The District Court, Gibson, J., held that:

- (1) exigent circumstances did not justify warrantless entry and search of defendant’s home;
- (2) co-tenant’s actions constituted a governmental search;
- (3) police escort of co-tenant into defendant’s home constituted a seizure;

IN THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT

PHILIP J. BERG,)
)
Plaintiff-Appellant,)
)	No. 08-4340
v.)
)	CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE
BARACK OBAMA, et al. ,)
)
Defendants-Appellees.)

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I, Steve N. Hajjar, hereby certify that through the Court’s case management and electronic case filing system, I served copies of the Federal Election Commission’s Motion for Summary Affirmance upon the following counsel this 16th day of January, 2009.

Philip J. Berg, Esq.
555 Andorra Glen Court, Suite 12
Lafayette Hill, PA 19444-2531
philjberg@gmail.com

John P. Lavelle, Jr., Esq.
Morgan, Lewis & Bockius, LLP
1701 Market St.
Philadelphia, PA 19103-2921
jlavalle@morganlewis.com

/s/ Steve N. Hajjar
Steve N. Hajjar

January 16, 2009