Dear Sir,

I'm learning that your commission is intending on slapping restrictions on political internet web sites that may even involve penalties. As one tax paying citizen, I strongly urge you not to legislate anything that imposes penalties on political information on web sites and blogs on the internet.

The free exchange of information on the internet helped Howard Dean and helped expose the deception by Dan Rather on CBS. Keeping restrictions off of the web will allow the information handlers to grow and evolve and become a watchdog on the other forms of media.

I'm sure you agree that bias in the TV networks is everywhere. At least on talk radio celebrities acknowledge their position. Web site leaders need total freedom. True, organized hate, child sex, and those that encourage violence need to be watched and hindered. But Republican and Democratic discourse must be free from regulation.

Thank You.
