Why OPEC Is Cutting Its Production

Sam Hamod

03/31/04 "ICH" -- Many have asked why OPEC is cutting its production when the price is already over OPEC's projected market design price. This has caused consternation in the Bush administration, upset Kerry and allegedly puzzled many American financial analysts who think the price is already too high for America's and the world's economies.

The answer is simple: the OPEC countries are tired of Bush and his administration trying to tell them how to run their countries – from Saudi Arabia, Kuwait to Venezuela – they are all tired of Bush trying to be the dictator and government framer of the world.

If you will notice, in the past six months, American politicians have instituted a campaign to tell Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Yemen, Indonesia and Venezuela how to “reform” their governments, and in the case of
