FEC PUBLISHES LIST OF JANUARY 31 YEAR-END REPORT "NON-FILERS"

WASHINGTON -- The Federal Election Commission today published the names of candidate committees which failed to file a 1979 Year-End Report of Receipts and Expenditures, as required by the Federal Election Campaign Act. The report, due on January 31, 1980, was required of all political committees supporting candidates for Federal office. It covered activity for the Fourth calendar quarter of 1979 and summarized activity for the entire year.

The published list contains only the names of principal campaign committees of House, Senate or Presidential candidates. Other types of political committees having federal election activity are not included.

The Commission notified the committees of their filing obligation in December, prior to the reporting date. Then, on March 14, another notice was sent to those committees which still had not filed, and they were advised that they had 30 days to respond before their names would be published.

The following lists those committees which have failed to meet the filing requirements:
