17 STATES REPORT UNOFFICIAL VOTES FOR MINOR PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES IN 1984 ELECTION

WASHINGTON--Unofficial tallies of votes cast in the 50 States and District of Columbia in the 1984 Presidential election show that 53,375,811 went to Ronald Reagan and 37,028,194 to Walter Mondale.

However only 17 of the States have come up with a tally of votes for the 16 minor party candidates who appeared on ballots.

This information appears in an interim report by the Federal Election Commission based on vote counts from individual state election offices. An official count, including totals for minor party presidential candidates, will be prepared by the Commission after the states have completed their canvass of votes and make their official certification of the results. Dates for certification vary from state to state based on individual statutory requirements.

Of the minor party candidates, Libertarian David Bergland received 110,597 in the 17 states reporting out of the 39 states in which he was on the ballot. Populist Party candidate Bob Richards received 41,765 votes in the four states reporting out of the 14 in which he was on the ballot.

Following is a list of the other minor party candidates, showing party, votes reported by states, and the number of states in which each was on the ballot:

CANDIDATE	PARTY	VOTES	STATES REPORTING
