Re: ADR 238 (MUR 5529)

Dear Mr. Spiro:

On September 15, 2004, the Federal Election Commission (“FEC” or “Commission”) notified Crash Mansion/BLVD, of a complaint alleging certain violations of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended. A copy of the complaint was enclosed with the notification.

After considering the circumstances of this matter, the Commission has determined to exercise its prosecutorial discretion and to take no action against the Respondent Crash Mansion/BLVD in its memorandum to the Commission, dated September 6, 2005, this office stated and recommended:

The Complainant, Brad Hoylman, alleges that the Committee failed to report disbursements and expenditures for such things as advertising, rent on two campaign offices and administrative expenses. The complaint also alleges Respondents received excessive and/or prohibited contributions, and failed to have disclaimers on public communications. The Committee contends that one “campaign office” was, in fact, the candidate’s residence and the second, in a building scheduled for demolition, was reported as an in-kind contribution from the buyer of the building. The Committee concedes the need for clarification on some items and filed amended reports accordingly. While the Committee also contends that the Committee received no prohibited or excessive contributions, it concedes that their website and electronic communications may not have had adequate disclaimers as required. The Committee argues that the sign on the truck used for advertising did have a disclaimer on it, and additional disclaimer notices were added to the website and e-mail communications.
