RE: MUR 5719

Dear Sir,

The complaint fails to make any specific claim that would warrant action by the commission. The complaint failed to show that there was ever any expenditure of funds either by the Francine Busby for Congress campaign or by California State University, San Marcos. In fact, the posting of the biography was done by a volunteer and there was no expenditure of funds.

The website, which contained Busby's profile, was made available for students in the class in order to provide background on their instructor. Part of Busby's background was the fact that she had run and was running again for Congress. Never does the complaint provide any evidence that Busby ever solicited funds or support through her official position as an Adjunct Professor.

The text did not compel or request contributions, either financial or in-kind, for Busby's campaign. Instead, the biography provided information on Busby's background and political priorities.

The commission should find that the partisan complaint fails to allege any specific wrongdoing and does not warrant any action.

Regards,

Xavier Martinez
