ADVISORY OPINION 2021-09

Chris Truax, Esq.
Chief Executive Officer
Certified Voter, LLC
P.O. Box 2127
La Mesa, CA 91943

Dear Mr. Truax:

We are responding to your request for an advisory opinion on behalf of Certified Voter, LLC (“Certified Voter”) concerning the application of the Federal Election Campaign Act, 52 U.S.C. §§ 30101-45 (the “Act”), and Commission regulations to Certified Voter’s proposal to sell its sponsored advertisement services to political committees. The Commission concludes that Certified Voter may provide these services for a commercially reasonable fee as proposed because in doing so it does not make any in-kind contribution to client political committees.

Background

The facts presented in this advisory opinion are based on your letters received on August 16, 2021, Advisory Opinion Request (“AOR”) at AOR001, and September 27, 2021. AOR Supp. at 001. Certified Voter is a limited liability company that proposes to offer a commercial service to political committees by creating, storing, and distributing custom sponsored advertisements (“sponsored ads”) that identify and can be shared by the committees’ contributors. Id.

The request describes Certified Voter’s services as follows: a political committee that retains Certified Voter’s services would send a fundraising solicitation to the committee’s donors. This solicitation would notify supporters that if they contribute a certain minimum amount to the committee, they would be offered the option to receive a customized sponsored ad from the campaign. A supporter would then be directed to the committee’s website where they would make the contribution\(^1\) and, if they choose to receive a sponsored ad, select the advertisement they wish to customize from one or more video advertisements that “have already been created [and paid for] by” the committee.\(^2\) AOR001. Next, the committee would transmit to Certified Voter the contributor’s information along with the contributor’s chosen advertisement. Certified Voter’s “system” would use this information to generate a sponsored ad by inserting a “brief message” at either the beginning or end of the committee’s video advertisement. AOR001-02. This message would include a “voice-over indicating the [advertisement] has been sponsored” and “a page of text consisting of the name of the ‘sponsor,’ the sponsor’s hometown and, possibly, other identifying information such as [the sponsor’s] social media address.” AOR001. Finally, Certified Voter would deliver the sponsored ad to the committee. You “anticipate that the sponsored ad [would] then [be] shared” with the contributor, who would be encouraged “to share the sponsored ad with friends and family via social media.” AOR002. Distribution and use of the sponsored ad after it is transmitted by Certified Voter to the committee, however, “is strictly within the control of” the committee and, presumably, the recipient contributor. Id.

You further “anticipate that the entire sponsored ad process will, from the [contributor’s] point of view, take place entirely within the website of the campaign or PAC.” Id. Certified Voter will exclusively act behind-the-scenes as a “commercial vendor” that digitally generates sponsored ads for its political committee customers at “a commercially-reasonable fee.”\(^3\) AOR001.

Question Presented

Is Certified Voter’s proposal to sell sponsored advertisement services to political committees for a commercially reasonable fee permissible under the Act and Commission regulations?

\(^1\) The request clarifies that contributors who choose to receive a sponsored ad “will not be paying directly for [political] advertising.” Contributions made by those who wish to receive a sponsored ad will be used by the recipient political committees “as it deems appropriate just as with any other contribution.” AOR002.

\(^2\) The request stipulates and the Commission assumes for purposes of this advisory opinion that all political advertisements produced by political committees will comply with all applicable legal requirements (including, without limitation, disclaimer requirements) under the Act and Commission regulations. AOR001.

\(^3\) See AOR001-02 (“During this entire process, [contributors] will be interacting with the campaign or PAC rather than directly with Certified Voter.”). The Commission is not opining on any activity involving Certified Voter collecting, processing, or forwarding contributions to political committees. See AOR Supp. at 001.
Legal Analysis and Conclusion

Yes, Certified Voter may sell sponsored advertisement services to political committees for a commercially reasonable fee as proposed because in doing so it would not make an in-kind contribution to any committee.

The Act and Commission regulations prohibit corporations, including limited liability companies that have elected to be treated as corporations for federal tax purposes, from making a “contribution,” which includes “any direct or indirect payment, distribution, loan, advance, deposit, or gift of money, or any services, or anything of value . . . to any candidate, campaign committee, or political party or organization, in connection with any [federal] election.” 52 U.S.C. § 30118(a), (b)(2); 11 C.F.R. § 114.2(b); 11 C.F.R. § 110.1(g)(3); see also 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8)(A)(i); 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(a). “[A]nything of value” includes all in-kind contributions, such as the provision of goods and services without charge or at less than the “usual and normal charge.” See 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(d)(1). Commission regulations define “usual and normal charge” as the price of goods in the market from which they ordinarily would have been purchased at the time of the contribution, or the commercially reasonable rate prevailing at the time the services were rendered. See 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(d)(2).

In sum, the question of whether Certified Voter’s activities would result in a contribution under the Act and Commission regulations turns on whether its political committee customers would pay Certified Voter the usual and normal charge (or other consideration of equal value) for its services.

Certified Voter intends to provide a specific service to political committees: attaching custom sponsorship statements identifying certain individual contributors to the committees to political advertisements that have already been produced and paid for by these committees. AOR001-02. In exchange for this service, the request states that political committees will pay Certified Voter a “commercially-reasonable” fee. AOR001. Because the requestor will provide its services to client committees at a “commercially-reasonable” fee, it is not providing goods or services at less than the “usual or normal charge” and is not making an in-kind contribution to its political committee customers.
