Subject: Draft AO 2022-07 (Swalwell) Draft B

Attached is a proposed draft of the subject advisory opinion. We have been asked to place this draft on the Agenda by one or more Commissioners.

Members of the public may submit written comments on the draft advisory opinion. We are making this draft available for comment until 9:00 a.m. (Eastern Time) on July 14, 2022.

Members of the public may also attend the Commission meeting at which the draft will be considered. The advisory opinion requestor may appear before the Commission at this meeting to answer questions.

For more information about how to submit comments or attend the Commission meeting, go to https://www.fec.gov/legal-resources/advisory-opinions-process/.

Dear Ms. Olson:

We are responding to your advisory opinion request on behalf of Congressman Eric Swalwell and Swalwell for Congress (the “Committee”) concerning the application of the Federal Election Campaign Act, 52 U.S.C. §§ 30101-45 (the “Act”), and Commission regulations to the proposed use of campaign funds to pay certain of Congressman Swalwell’s childcare expenses. Commission regulations state that certain expenses for travel, or portions of travel, involving campaign or officeholder activities do not constitute personal use when a candidate committee uses campaign funds to pay for them. The Commission concludes that it is similarly not personal use for the Committee to use campaign funds to pay Congressman Swalwell’s childcare expenses that result directly from such travel, or any portion of such travel.

Background

The facts presented in this advisory opinion are based on your letter received on May 26, 2022.

Congressman Swalwell currently represents California Congressional District 15. He also serves as Co-Chair of the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee, which is a party leadership position that can be held only by a Member of Congress. His duties as Co-Chair “include getting more Democrats elected to Congress.”¹ In addition,

Congressman Swalwell is a candidate for California Congressional District 14 in the 2022 elections. The Committee is his principal campaign committee.\footnote{See Swalwell for Congress, Statement of Candidacy, FEC Form 2 (Jan. 15, 2022), \url{https://docquery.fec.gov/pdf/513/202201159474990513/202201159474990513.pdf} (last viewed June 21, 2022)}

Congressman Swalwell and his wife work full-time and have three young children at home. Congressman Swalwell often pays for childcare when conducting campaign activities locally. In addition, Congressman Swalwell “is often expected to travel and be away from home, including overnight,” “[a]s part of his duties as” an officeholder, candidate, and fundraiser for other Democratic candidates.\footnote{AOR001.} Further, “because of his status as a well-known member of Congress,” Congressman Swalwell also receives invitations, including invitations from foreign governments for information gathering visits, “that may require him and sometimes his spouse to be away for multiple days.”\footnote{Id.}

Questions Presented

1. \textit{May Congressman Swalwell use campaign funds to pay for overnight childcare if he travels for campaign events for his campaign or other campaigns, if his spouse is not available to care for the children?}

2. \textit{May Swalwell for Congress pay for childcare expenses for Congressman Swalwell’s children if he travels at the request of foreign governments or other entities because of his status as a Member of Congress? If yes, would that include the expenses for overnight childcare as well?}

Legal Analysis and Conclusions

1. \textit{May Congressman Swalwell use campaign funds to pay for overnight childcare if he travels for campaign events for his campaign or other campaigns, if his spouse is not available to care for the children?}
2. May Swalwell for Congress pay for childcare expenses for Congressman Swalwell’s children if he travels at the request of foreign governments or other entities because of his status as a Member of Congress? If yes, would that include the expenses for overnight childcare as well?

Yes, Congressman Swalwell may use campaign funds to pay for overnight childcare if he travels for campaign events for his campaign or other campaigns to the extent such expenses would not exist irrespective of Congressman Swalwell’s campaign or duties as a holder of federal office.

Under the Act and Commission regulations, a candidate’s authorized committee may use campaign funds for several specific purposes, including “for otherwise authorized expenditures in connection with the campaign for Federal office of the candidate or individual” and “for ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in connection with duties of the individual as a holder of Federal office.” Additionally, an authorized committee has wide latitude to use campaign funds “for any other lawful purpose” that does not constitute conversion of campaign funds to “personal use.”\(^5\) The Act and Commission regulations define “personal use” as the use of campaign funds “to fulfill any commitment, obligation, or expense of a person that would exist irrespective of the candidate’s election campaign” or duties as a federal officeholder.\(^6\)

The Act and Commission regulations provide a non-exhaustive list of expenses that, when paid using campaign funds, constitute per se personal use.\(^7\) For expenses not included on this list, the Commission determines, on a case-by-case basis, whether the use is a prohibited “personal use” — that is, whether the expense would exist irrespective of the candidate’s campaign or federal officeholder duties.\(^8\) Officeholder duties include fact-finding meetings and appearances or speeches made in an official capacity.\(^9\)

The Act and Commission regulations do not expressly address childcare expenses. The Commission, accordingly, determines whether the proposed use of campaign funds for childcare expenses would exist irrespective of the candidate’s campaign for federal office or federal officeholder duties.

In previous advisory opinions, the Commission has considered whether federal candidates may use campaign funds to pay childcare costs incurred as a result of their own campaigns. In Advisory Opinion 2018-06 (Liuba for Congress), for example, a federal candidate who had given up her in-home consulting work in order to campaign and hired a caregiver for her children proposed to use campaign funds to pay childcare expenses when her campaign responsibilities prevented her from caring for the children herself.\(^{10}\) Similarly, in Advisory Opinion 2019-13 (MJ for Texas), a federal candidate who had left her job to work full-time on her campaign proposed to use campaign funds to pay for full-time daycare for her children when her campaign activities prevented her from providing the care herself.\(^{11}\) In both advisory opinions, the Commission concluded that the candidates could use campaign funds to pay childcare expenses to the extent the expenses were a “direct result of campaign activity,” because such expenses would not have existed irrespective of the candidates’ campaigns.\(^\text{12}\)

The requestors state that Congressman Swalwell’s campaign activities will occasionally require him to be away from home overnight, and that he will incur expenses for overnight childcare during those times when his wife is unavailable to care for their children. To the extent that Congressman Swalwell’s overnight childcare expenses will be a direct result of Congressman Swalwell’s travel for his own campaign activities, the Commission concludes that those expenses would not exist irrespective of his campaign and, therefore, may be paid with campaign funds.\(^\text{13}\) This conclusion is consistent with the Commission’s conclusions in Advisory Opinion 2018-06 (Liuba for Congress) and Advisory Opinion 2019-13 (MJ for Texas).

Although the Commission has not explicitly addressed whether an authorized committee may use campaign funds to pay for childcare needs that arise from a candidate’s or officeholder’s travel for another candidate’s campaign or for official events based on his status as an officeholder, the Commission’s analysis and conclusions in the previous advisory opinions apply equally here.

Congressman Swalwell serves as Co-Chair of the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee. His official House website states that he “was selected by Democratic Leader Pelosi and elected by [his] colleagues to help lead this committee, which sets the Democratic policy agenda and nominates Democratic Members for committee assignments. The requestors describe the position of Co-Chair as “a party leadership position that can only be held by a Member of Congress.”

The requestors state that Congressman Swalwell’s duties as Co-Chair of the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee “include getting more Democrats elected to Congress,” and he “often is expected to travel and be away from home, including overnight,” “[a]s part of his duties.”

The requestors further state that Congressman Swalwell receives invitations, including invitations from foreign governments for information-gathering visits, “because of his status as a well-known Member of Congress.” These invitations may require Congressman Swalwell and, occasionally, his accompanying spouse, to be away from home for several days at a time.

Commission regulations state that certain expenses for travel, or portions of travel, involving campaign or officeholder activities do not constitute personal use when a candidate committee uses campaign funds to pay for them. The Commission concludes that it is similarly not personal use for the Committee to use campaign funds to pay for Congressman Swalwell’s childcare expenses that directly result from such travel, or any portion of such travel. To the extent that other expenses associated with the tavel, or a portion of the travel, would constitute personal use if paid for with campaign funds, childcare expenses arising directly from that travel or that portion of travel would also constitute “personal use.”

U.S. House of Representatives to the proposed activities, because those rules are not within the Commission’s jurisdiction.
