As for the remaining respondents, the Commission accepted this Office's initial recommendation that the Commission take no action at that time against respondent David Boies because of the absence of evidence to indicate that he was the actual contributor.⁷ First General Counsel's Report, p. 9. As this Office indicated in a previous Report, after reviewing Habie's financial records for the relevant period, there is no

⁷ The entirety of the information implicating Boies in the reimbursement scheme is that portion of the complaint in which complainant states as follows:

Ms. Habie told me that David Boies made tens of thousands of dollars of such [reimbursed] contributions to different congressmen annually and that she helped him in doing so by enlisting the aid of her relatives, friends, and business associates, as she was doing with me. She said that Senator Kennedy also received such donations from Mr. Boies.

In addition to denying that he reimbursed any of the straw donors, Boies submitted an affidavit from Habie in which she indicated that she was the actual contributor in the reimbursement scheme.
