"Since I took office, I've spent nearly every weekend back in Idaho, traveling from one end of my district to the other.

I've been meeting with residents, workers, employers and officials to learn about all opportunities to jump-start our economy, cut federal red tape and get Idaho working again.

I've met with representatives from Idaho's top employers and have heard many of them say they want to get on up-close with us at their operations, speak with the workers and talk about how my office can help Idaho businesses retain and add employees.

I've directed my staff to reach into every community to help with issues ranging from assistance with unemployment benefits to reducing home loans to applications for small business loans.

Getting Idahoans back to work is my number one priority."

Sincerely,

Barack Obama

MINNICK'S SOLDIERS OVERDUE MEDALS FOR WAR HERO

Minnick's soldiers and their families are waiting for the War Department to award them the medals they earned in the Korean War.

In February 1945, Kenneth Minnick was a Navy aviator who earned the rank of lieutenant and spent the day dodging bullets while he landed in the wounded.

But Minnick never received all the medals he earned for his service.

His daughter, Sandra Minnick, contacted Congressman Walt Minnick and asked for help. Minnick's office started the medals and presented them to Minnick at a ceremony in London at the White House.

The medals are now being sent to Minnick's family.

For his service, Minnick earned the Bronze Star, the Purple Heart, and the Navy and Air Force Medals of Honor. Minnick's daughter, Sandra Minnick, is a member of the American Legion, and is a member of the Minnick Family.

MINNICK AMENDMENT HELPS VETERANS RECEIVE COLLEGE DEGREES

Many of the young Americans who are receiving a National Day Ceremony in Rome.

Other soldiers do not have money options for attending college while they are serving their country. Many have to pick up their education when they get off when our nation could then be served.

With Minnick's amendment to The Student Aid and Financial Responsibility Act ensures the credit those veterans worked so hard to earn will transfer more easily to the colleges and universities they attend later in life.

The veterans who have no money and nobody around our nation deserves no less than a full opportunity to earn a college education and prepare themselves for the 21st century workforce.

Providing more educational opportunities

MINNICK HELPS R VETERANS GET THE MEDICAL CARE THEY

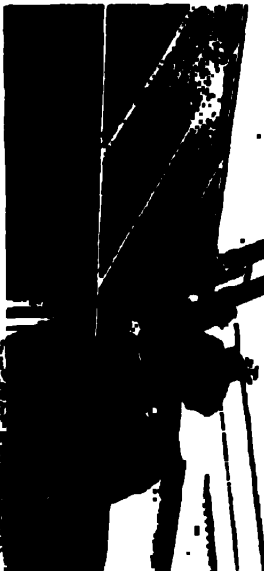

With Minnick's bill to help help funding of the American Legion Hall in Chicago to help ensure the nation's most vulnerable veterans.

Because many veterans live in Minnick's world, they need financial help for living on welfare, often during periods of unemployment, to replace the support Veterans Hospital or other. They deserve to be rewarded for their financial expenses and to make sure they get home safely.

That's why With Minnick's amendment The Veterans Health Insurance Act legislation that provides reimbursement for food and lodging any time a veteran has to travel to a VA medical facility for a service-connected injury.

The bill has bipartisan support in the House and has been endorsed by the long and Affiliated Veterans of America and the American Legion.

With Minnick is working to make sure Latinos have the education and opportunities they need to get back to work in these tough times.

As important that workers, many of whom are unemployed, are given every opportunity to achieve self-sufficiency, diligence and qualifications for the jobs and businesses need to fill.

That's why With Minnick endorsed a new initiative to offer training for these workers, and to do it in a smart, effective way so that employer dollars are spent to create that purposeful education for the high-tech jobs of the future.

Minnick Cuts Through Barriers To Create New Jobs And Begin In Latino's Rural Communities

With Minnick is working with Latino community groups and economic development associations to help them secure a portion of the more than $7 billion set aside for broadband Internet infrastructure.

Increased access to the Internet helps businesses and workers stay connected and informed. It is one of the best economic development tools available to rural areas such as Idaho, and can help bring high-tech jobs to areas that need most them.

Minnick is helping create nationwide the complicated federal application process so many Idaho communities have a shot at funding for broadband, which is critical to business growth and educational opportunity.

What Atlantic is working to make sure laborers have the education and opportunities they need to get back to work in these tough times.

It's important that workers, many of whom are unskilled, are given every opportunity to achieve proficiency, develop and qualifications for the jobs and businesses need to fill.

That's why What Atlantic endorsed a new initiative to offer training for these workers, and to do it in a smart, efficient way so that temporary workers are given the ways that prepare laborers for the high-tech jobs of the future.

Atlantic Cuts Through Bureaucratic Red Tape To Create New Jobs And Expand Internet Access In Labor's Rural Communities

What Atlantic is working with labor community groups and economic development associations to help them secure a portion of the more than $7 billion set aside for broadband Internet infrastructure.

Increased access to the Internet helps businesses and workers stay connected and informed. It is one of the best economic development tools available to rural areas such as labor, and can help bring high-tech jobs to areas that most need them.

Atlantic is helping outline strategies for the complicated federal application process so more labor communities have a shot of landing for broadband, which is critical to business growth and educational opportunity.

"High-speed Internet access is one of the best tools we can offer to help smaller communities improve their economy. I am committed to helping those who applied for funding and those who want to apply for future funding by cutting through bureaucratic red tape and advocating for labor."

H.R. 4173

Everyone should not have to bail out anyone on Wall Street, and government should stop borrowing what it spends. Unfortunately, there have become accepted practices in Washington, D.C.

Wall Street is working to end the bad habits and bring accountability to Washington.

Attacks crafted by provisions of the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, a measure to improve the most stringent reforms and brought accountability Wall Street has seen in 75 years.

H.R. 4173 overhauls regulations governing our nation's financial system and requires big banks and businesses to keep adequate reserves, disclose their books and submit to federal government regulation.

Most importantly, this bill will make sure that the failure of any firm will not put Middle businesses, families and local governments at risk. If a big financial firm does fail, this bill makes sure that taxpayers won't suffer the loss.

Wall Street is working to make sure the American taxpayer will never again be forced to bail out Wall Street, Detroit or anyone else so under lower big or powerful a business business.

"I am pleased to have helped craft this bill, and I am confident that it will not only level the playing field, but will also make it easier for the American people to understand the risks of doing business in Washington, D.C."
