Re: Illegal expenditures and misuse of federal campaign funds by The Committee to Re-elect Artur Davis to Congress, Respondent

Please accept this letter as a formal complaint concerning illegal expenditures and misuse of campaign funds by The Committee to Re-Elect Artur Davis to Congress, P.O. Box 1845, Birmingham, AL 35201 ("The Committee") directly for the benefit of Congressman Artur G. Davis' 2010 state campaign for Governor of Alabama. All statements made below are based on information and belief and are documented by exhibits which are referenced and attached.

Illegal Expenditures

Federal campaign finance law related to permissible use of campaign funds provides that federal candidates and officeholders may make donations to state and local candidates subject to the provisions of state law (2 U.S.C. Section 439a(5), emphasis added). Clearly any expenditure made by a federal candidate or official in violation of applicable state law would not be permissible under Section 439a.

According to The Committee's quarterly reports filed with the Federal Election Commission for April 2009 and June 2009, it made more than $72,000 in expenditures between January 13, 2009 and June 1, 2009 for expenses directly attributable to Davis' Alabama gubernatorial campaign. The Committee also raised more than $100,000 in federal contributions during the same time period before transferring $1,000,000 to his state account on June 1, 2009 leaving a balance of less than $65,000. The Committee's fundraising activity and expenditures violated multiple provisions of Alabama law and afforded Davis an illegal advantage over his gubernatorial opponents.

The Committee's expenditures were clearly impermissible because they violated the following provisions of Alabama law:

State Campaign Finance Law Violations

- Failure to timely file Principal Campaign Committee Form: Davis' federal campaign finance report for the first quarter of 2009 indicates an expenditure of $27,000 dollars paid to Anzalone/Liszt Research for a "polling report invoice" on January 13, 2009 (See Exhibit 1). A Davis campaign press release dated January 26, 2009 and found on the website for his gubernatorial campaign discussed the results of a gubernatorial poll conducted by Anzalone/Liszt from January 8-14, 2009. (See Exhibit 2). According to the press release, the poll tested Davis against potential Democratic and Republican gubernatorial candidates and also tested whether respondents thought Alabama was ready to elect a black governor. Nothing in the press release regarding the poll indicates that any issue related to a congressional campaign was tested. Davis also discussed the methodology used in his polling for governor in a video interview conducted with Birmingham Weekly in early February 2009 (See <http://www.bhamweekly.com/2009/02/06/interview-artur-davis-%E2%80%94-part-one/> at the 8:30 mark).

If this expenditure was not made for a federal purpose it was made for his state gubernatorial campaign. The Alabama Fair Campaign Practices Act (FCPA) defines a candidate to be anyone who has raised or expended more than "$25,000 with a view toward bringing about nomination or election" to any statewide office (FCPA Section 17-5-2(a)(1)(b)(1) Code of Alabama, 1975) (For this and other statutory references, Please See Exhibit 3 for full text of statutes). The FCPA defines an expenditure as "A purchase, payment, distribution, loan, advance, deposit, or gift of money or anything of value made for the purpose of influencing the result of an election" (FCPA Section 17-5-2(a)(2)(i)(4)). The FCPA considers as a contribution any "gift, subscription, loan, advance, deposit of money or anything of value, a payment, a forgiveness of a loan, or payment of a third party for the purpose of influencing the result of an election" (FCPA Section 17-5-2(a)(2)(a)(1)) or "any transfer of anything of value received by a political committee from another political committee, political party, or other source" (FCPA Section 17-5-2(a)(2)(a)(3)). The FCPA considers the value or cost of polling data and voter preference data and information to be a contribution to a campaign "if the information was compiled with the advance knowledge and approval of the candidate or political committee" utilizing the data (FCPA Section 17-5-2(a)(2)(b)(6)).

Davis became a candidate the moment that the $27,000 was spent for gubernatorial polling on January 13, 2009. Alabama law requires all candidates to file a statement appointing a principal campaign committee within 5 days of becoming a candidate for state office (FCPA Section 17-5-4). Davis' failure to file this statement with the Alabama Secretary of State before January 18, 2009 is a clear violation of campaign finance law.

- Davis' Expenditures directly from his federal campaign account to pay state campaign expenditures before June 1, 2009 violated Alabama Law: The FCPA provides that "No candidate shall expend any money in aid of his or her nomination or election except by contributing to the principal campaign committee designated by the candidate" (FCPA 17-5-4). Before Davis transferred $1,000,000 from his federal campaign to his state campaign on June 1, 2009 he made over $72,000 in expenditures from his Federal campaign fund to pay obligations relating to his state campaign. These expenditures included:
 - $27,000 to for polling to Anzalone/Liszt Research on January 13, 2009 (See Exhibit 1). A Davis campaign press release dated January 26, 2009 and found on the website for his gubernatorial campaign discusses the results of a gubernatorial poll conducted by Anzalone/Liszt from January 8-14, 2009. (See Exhibit 2). According to the press release, the poll tested Davis against potential Democratic and Republican gubernatorial candidates and also tested whether respondents thought Alabama was ready to elect a black governor. Nothing in the press release regarding the poll indicates that any issue related to a congressional campaign was tested. Davis also discussed the methodology used in his polling for governor in a video interview conducted with Birmingham Weekly in early February 2009 (See <http://www.bhamweekly.com/2009/02/06/interview-artur-davis-%E2%80%94-part-one/> at the 8:30 mark).
 - Four expenditures totaling more than $10,000 to Harbert Realty for "office space-rent and parking" ($2536.67 on 2/2/2009; $2536.67 on 3/2/2009; $2536.67 on 4/8/2009; and $2536.67 on 5/1/2009) Davis' Birmingham campaign headquarters for his gubernatorial campaign opened shortly after he announced that he would be running for Governor on February 6, 2009. According to his gubernatorial campaign website, www.arturdavis2010.com, the office is located at 2 North 20th Street, Suite 500, Birmingham AL 35203, an address shared by Harbert Realty. According to Davis' federal campaign finance reports there were no expenditures out of his federal campaign for office rental in Birmingham prior to his gubernatorial announcement or after May 12, 2009. Davis' annual report for 2009 filed with the Alabama Secretary of State shows that Davis' state campaign committee assumed monthly expenditures in similar or identical amounts to Harbert Realty beginning in June 2009 ($2536.67 on 6/3/2009; $2536.67 on 7/2/2009; $2677.67 on 8/10/2009; $2677.67 on 9/2/2009; $2617.67 on 10/2/2009; 2771.67 on 11/1/2009; and $2724.07 on 12/1/2009).

- o Davis' April 2009 quarterly report from his federal campaign committee lists a $205 expenditure on 3/2/2009 to the Harbert Center for "Space Rental-Announcement Event." Davis announced his plans to run for Governor at the Harbert Center on February 6, 2009 (See Exhibit 4). The report also reflects an expenditure of $7080.00 to Chan Strategy Message and Media for "AV Equipment Rental" on January 30, 2009, less than a week before Davis publicly kicked off his 2010 gubernatorial campaign on February 6, 2009 at the Harbert Center and other locations across the state.
- o Davis' federal campaign made a number of expenditures to Daryl Perkins ($120.37 for "reimbursement campaign travel expenses" on 3/24/2009; $292.28 for "reimbursement campaign travel expenses" on 3/31/2009; $7398.77 for "payroll" on 4/15/2009; and 6479.27 for "payroll" on 5/1/2009). The Associated Press published an article on February 20, 2009 stating that Daryl Perkins would be "switching to Davis' campaign for governor. Perkins has been the district director for the Birmingham congressman since 2003. Davis says Perkins will become a senior staffer and strategist for the governor's race. The congressman says Perkins is being replaced next month by Frank Adams Jr., who has been manager for governmental affairs and business development for Brookwood Hospital. Adams also served on the Birmingham City Council" (See Exhibit 5). Davis' annual report for 2009 filed with the Alabama Secretary of State reflects that his gubernatorial campaign continued to make expenditures to Perkins after June 1, 2009 for administrative expenses until Perkins left the campaign later in the summer of 2009.
- o Davis' federal campaign made payroll expenditures to current gubernatorial campaign spokesperson Anna Ruth Williams ($2,466.25 on 5/1/2009) and current gubernatorial finance director Katherine Baker ($3,501.25 on 5/1/2009) after his state campaign committee was formed on April 17, 2009. Davis' state campaign began paying Williams ($2466.25 on 6/1/2009) and Baker ($3,501.25 on 6/1/2009) in identical amounts beginning in June 2009. Baker had served previously as a fundraiser for Davis' federal campaign committee and had been paid prior to 2009. Williams' first appearance on Davis' "federal" payroll was an expenditure of $2,066.50 on January 8, 2009, less than a month before he made his public announcement announcing his gubernatorial campaign.
- o Davis' federal campaign made two expenditures to Liberty Concepts, Inc., $3,200.00 for "Website construction fee" on 3/24/2009 and $3600.00 for "website construction and maintenance" on 4/16/2009. Davis' annual report for 2009 filed with the Alabama Secretary of State reflects that the gubernatorial campaign made website maintenance expenditures to Liberty Concepts starting in June 2009 ($400 on 6/24/2009; $400 on 7/10/2009; $900 on 10/8/2009; and $900 on 11/3/2009) Davis' gubernatorial website, www.governordavis2010.com, is currently maintained by Liberty Concepts (See Exhibit 6). There is little doubt that these expenditures could have been for anything other than his gubernatorial campaign website because Davis' official congressional website is not paid for by his congressional campaign.

- o Davis' federal campaign made three expenditures on behalf of his gubernatorial campaign even after June 1. Davis' July quarterly report filed by his federal campaign lists two expenditures made to the Schenck Group New York ($303.66 on 6/15/2009 and $59.38 on 6/15/2009) for "Campaign Travel". He also lists an expenditure of $208.20 to Delta Airlines for "Campaign Travel" on 6/5/2009. These expenditures were made after he had transferred $1,000,000 from his federal account on 6/1/2009, but are not listed as in-kind contributions or anywhere else on the annual report filed by his state campaign committee in January 2010.
- o Many other expenditures made by Davis' federal campaign between 1/13/2009 and 6/1/2009 appear to have been made for the benefit of his state gubernatorial campaign, but will require further examination. These include multiple expenditures for campaign cell phone service, employee payroll, employee health insurance, and travel expenses.
- Davis used his federal campaign account to raise money for the benefit of his state campaign during times when Alabama candidates would have been prohibited from fundraising: The FCPA states that candidates for Alabama office can legally accept contributions "For a period of 12 months before an election in which the person intends to be a candidate. Provided, however, candidates for state office and their principal campaign committees may not accept, solicit, or receive contributions during the period when the Legislature is convened in session" (FCPA at Section 17-5-7(b)(2)). Davis' Federal campaign raised over $100,000 into his for the benefit of his state gubernatorial campaign between 1/14/2009 and 4/8/2009, more than a year prior to the 2010 primary election. Additionally, Davis raised over $87,000 of the preceding figure between 2/3/2009 and 4/8/2009 while the Alabama Legislature was in session (See Exhibit 7). Because of the fungible nature of campaign funds, it is impossible to determine where or how money contributed during this time was expended. There is no question that this extra money had an effect on the amount he was able to spend on his state gubernatorial campaign before 6/1/2009 or the amount he transferred to his state campaign account on 6/1/2009.
- None of the expenditures made by Davis' federal campaign made for the benefit of his state campaign were reported in his state campaign's annual report for 2009: The FCPA requires all candidates and campaign committees to file an annual report with the Alabama Secretary of State detailing financial activity for the preceding calendar year no later than January 31 of the following year (FCPA Section 17-5-8). Each report must contain the identification of each person during the calendar year who has made contributions to the committee or candidate in an aggregate amount greater than one hundred dollars together with the amount and date of each contribution (17-5-8(c)(2)) as well as the identification of each person (including amount, date and purpose of the expenditure) to whom expenditures in an aggregate amount greater than $1000 (17-5-8(c)(7)). Alabama law also requires that each report shall have attached an affidavit signed and sworn by the candidate represented by the principal campaign committee stating forth in substance that such report is to the best of his or her knowledge and belief in all respects true and complete and that he or she has not received any contributions or made any expenditures which are not set out and covered by such report (FCPA 17-5-7(d)).

Davis' annual report filed with the Alabama Secretary of State on January 31, 2009 reports no activity before 6/1/2009 (See Exhibit 8). None of the expenditures made by his federal campaign on behalf of his state campaign are listed as contributions or in-kind contributions to the campaign. None of the expenditures made by the federal campaign after 6/1/2009 are listed either. Davis not only filed a grossly incomplete report, but signed a sworn affidavit that the report was "true and complete."

Please see Exhibit 9 for news articles and press releases related to Davis' federal committee expending funds for the benefit of his state campaign. In the articles, the Davis campaign admits to spending federal money on his gubernatorial campaign, but insists that it was legal to do so.

Missing of Federal Campaign Funds

On May 19, 2009 the Federal Election Commission issued a letter to The Committee to Re-Elect Artur Davis to Congress informing the Committee that contributions received after Davis' February 6 announcement that he was running for Governor of Alabama in the 2010 election needed to be refunded (see Exhibit 10). On June 16 the Committee responded that Davis had not ceased to be a candidate for congress on February 6 because it alleged he had not become a candidate for governor until he filed a form appointing his principal campaign committee in Alabama on April 17, 2009 (See Exhibit 11). The July 2009 quarterly report subsequently filed by the committee reported no returns of contributions it had received after February 6, 2009.

On October 23, 2009 the Federal Election Commission sent another letter to the Committee stating that the Committee must either notify the Commission in writing that Davis was not a candidate for federal office or file a Statement of Candidacy within 35 days of the date of the letter (Exhibit 12). Commission records reflect that the Committee has done nothing in response to the Commissions letter of October 23, 2009.

As stated above, Alabama law provides that a person would become a candidate for Governor upon having raised or spent more than $25,000 to influence the result of an election. Davis reached that threshold on January 13, 2009 when the Committee paid $27,000 for gubernatorial polling. In total the Committee spent at least $72,000 directly for the benefit of his gubernatorial campaign before it could have legally contributed to the campaign on June 1, 2009. The Committee's representation to the Commission that all financial activity prior to April 17, 2009 was for the benefit of his federal campaign was misleading.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

DAVIS, REPUBLICANS IN DEAD HEAT IN 2010 GOVERNOR'S RACE; DAVIS CONTINUES TO SHOW STRENGTH ACROSS RACIAL LINES

BIRMINGHAM - In a survey of 600 Alabamians conducted from January 8-14, 2009, by the polling firm of Anzalone-Liszt Research Inc., U. S. Rep. Artur Davis (D-Bham) is locked in a statistical dead heat with three leading potential Republican candidates for Governor. Davis is tied with State Treasurer Kay Ivey, 42 to 42 percent, leads Two Year College Chancellor Bradley Byrne 42 to 38 percent, and trails Troy University Chancellor Jack Hawkins 39 to 44 percent.

Davis' showings against each Republican outpace the 33 percent of respondents who say that without knowing the names of the candidates, they would be more likely to vote for a Democratic candidate for governor in 2010. In each match-up, Davis runs well ahead of the generic Democratic vote with white votes: against Hawkins, he runs nine points ahead of the core white Democratic vote, 12 points better against Byrne, and 11 points better against Ivey. According to Davis' general consultant Ben Chao of Chao Strategy Message and Media Inc., "This poll basically says two important things. One, Congressman Davis can win a statewide campaign for Governor in 2010. Two, Davis has amazing crossover appeal from Republicans and Independents alike in a general election. Its still early but the electability metrics for Davis are through the roof."

Davis' overall popularity ratings with white voters are approximately two to one favorable, with a majority of whites knowing enough about Davis to have an opinion. In comparison, Lt. Governor Jim Folsom also has a favorable to unfavorable ratio of about two to one with white voters. Among white Democrats, Davis shows broad appeal, with a favorable to unfavorable number of 51 to six percent unfavorable. Among demographic subgroups, Davis shows particular strength with white males 18 to 54, with a favorable to unfavorable split of 41 to 16 percent, and white females over 55, with a favorable to unfavorable ratio of 38 to 12 percent. In fact, with whites 45-54, Davis is almost tied with Ivey, trailing only 39 to 44 percent.

With black voters, Davis remains by a large margin the most popular political figure at the state political level. Sixty-five percent of black voters hold a favorable opinion of Davis, while only four percent hold an unfavorable view.

The survey also tested the impact when respondents were informed of Davis' identity as an African American. According to pollster John Anzalone, "While race is an impossible factor to evaluate in any campaign it is fair to say that when white voters support actually moves up in a majority of the white subgroups based on gender and age."

Respondents were asked if they believe that Alabama is ready to elect a black governor in 2010. A majority (51 percent) agree, while 38 percent disagree. These results are virtually unchanged from the July sample, which split 53 percent agree to 37 percent disagree. Sixty-nine percent of voters overall say that they believe their family members would consider voting for a black candidate for governor, while 18 percent say that their family members would not be willing to consider voting for a black.

Davis spokesperson Anna Ruth Williams stated that "As Congressman Davis prepares to announce his plans regarding the governor's race, it is apparent that he is in a leading or dead even position with the leading Republican contenders in a wide range of published and unpublished polls conducted in Alabama in the last several months. These polls only confirm what he experiences as he moves around the state and receives constant encouragement to return home to run for Governor."

Davis running for governor Congressman announces he's in the race for 2010

BYLINE: CHARLES J. DEAN News staff writer

SECTION: NEWS; Pg. 1A Vol. 121 No. 331

LENGTH: 966 words

To the strains of "Ain't No Mountain High Enough," Artur Davis on Friday began his climb toward the highest political peak in the state - the governor's office.

The 41-year-old AfricanAmerican congressman formally announced his bid for the Democratic Party nomination for governor at a noon event in downtown Birmingham.

At sundown, he stood in front of the state Archives building in Montgomery - overlooking the Capitol where the Confederacy was born and just a few yards from the First White House of the Confederacy - and asked folks in his hometown for their votes.

Davis' run for the governor's chair in the 2010 election represents the most serious bid ever by a black person for the state's highest office.

Addressing a crowd of about 170 whites and blacks who came to hear him launch his campaign at the Harbert Center in Birmingham, he said: "I believe the poet was wrong when he said that the past is the light that will guide our feet. I believe, here in the state of Alabama, you can't judge our future by our past."

Davis' announcement was not accompanied by details of an agenda, but he said his administration would not sit by as Alabamians lost their jobs or saw their quality of life threatened in the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression.

"Government is not the answer to every problem," Davis said in Birmingham, "but when people are hurting, good government can never stay on the sidelines."

He told more than 100 cheering supporters in Montgomery not to have illusions that the campaign will be easy "because change is always hard." But Davis said true adversity is being faced by Alabama workers who have lost their jobs or worry they will be laid off.

"If you think campaigning is hard, try being a single mother who has a child who is ill and is counting on free vaccinations for that child and then finds out the state program for vaccinations has been ended because of budget cuts," Davis said.

Davis told the crowds that he has a few basic principals that have guided his politics, and one is that, despite the many differences people may have, they can find common ground if they are willing to look hard enough.

He acknowledged that some believe his quest for the governor's office cannot succeed in Alabama but said, "Yes, there was a time, ladies and gentlemen, when what I am about to try to do was as inconceivable as a man from Kenya and a woman from Kansas finding each other and giving birth to an American president," Davis said in a reference to Barack Obama's historic election as the nation's first black president.

Jefferson County Commissioner Stelia Smoot, a vice chairman of the state's oldest black political organization, the Alabama Democratic Conference, attended the Birmingham announcement and said she will support Davis, but she was less sure about the ADC. "Certainly, ADC will have to think this one through, especially considering what happened last year," she said.

What happened last year was that the ADC endorsed Hillary Rodham Clinton for president over Obama, further widening what some see as a significant divide between the organization and Davis, who endorsed Obama.

Following his Montgomery event, Davis was asked whether he would seek support of the ADC or historically important groups in Democratic Party politics such as the Alabama Education Association.

"I'm going to court voters, not groups," Davis said. "I don't know what AEA will do. I know I will be talking to a lot of teachers and educators. I don't know what ADC will do. I will be talking to a lot of African-Americans. I don't know what trial lawyers will do as a group. I will be talking with a lot of people who run businesses and practice law in this state."

Davis said he expects the topic of his race to dominate the early days of the campaign and to resurface around the primary next June and near the general election, if he wins the nomination.

"But in between, there won't be a lot of focus on race, I think," Davis said. "It's natural for people now because I am unique. I'm the first person of African ancestry to seek this office in a serious, competitive way. . . . But race is the last thing this campaign is about."

Davis made his noon announcement just a staircase climb away from the man who is expected to be his main rival for the nomination. Lt. Gov. Jim Folsom was upstairs in the Harbert Center, the guest speaker of the Downtown Democratic Club. The club invited Folsom to speak weeks ago, not knowing Davis had decided to hold his announcement in the same place at the same time.

into the race is a good development for the state.

"I think this state has come a long way over the last 20 years, the last two or three decades, and you've seen a lot of changes throughout America," Folsom said. "I think people understand it's a new era after the election of the president, and I would say anyone can get elected governor of Alabama no matter what their background, race or political persuasion."

Davis just began his fourth term in the U.S. House of Representatives, where he represents the state's 7th Congressional District, which runs from Birmingham west to Tuscaloosa and south to take in large portions of the Black Belt.

Davis joins Republican Tim James of Greenville as the only two declared candidates for governor in what is expected to be a crowded field of candidates to succeed Gov. Bob Riley, who cannot seek a third term. The 2010 gubernatorial race will mark the first time since 1986 that the contest for governor has not included an incumbent.

US Rep. Davis seeks to be 1st black Ala. governor

BYLINE: By JAY REEVES, Associated Press Writer

SECTION: DOMESTIC NEWS

LENGTH: 532 words

DATELINE: BIRMINGHAM Ala.

U.S. Rep. Artur Davis, an early supporter of Barack Obama with uncanny similarities to the new president, announced his Democratic candidacy for governor Friday in a bid to become the first black to win Alabama's top office.

Davis, a Harvard-educated lawyer in his 40s like Obama, ended months of speculation with his announcement, attended by a crowd of at least 100 people, made up largely of whites. That voting bloc will be crucial for Davis to win in 2010.

"Yes, this will be hard, but if we find our way, we can build a state like we have never known, not at some distant point called one day, but right now, in our season," said Davis, 41, who chaired Obama's campaign in Alabama.

Davis said his campaign will focus on the economy, not race.

"One of the things I have learned about race is if you talk about race, if you fixate on race, other people will join you in fixating on it," Davis said. "If you don't fixate on race, all the other issues that people want to hear about will come to the forefront."

Davis has more than $1.1 million in his congressional campaign account that he will use for his gubernatorial bid.

He will face a Democratic field that's likely to include Lt. Gov. Jim Folsom Jr., who served a partial term as governor during the early 1990s, and possibly Ron Sparks, Alabama's agriculture commissioner. Both are white.

Like the new president, Davis overcame long odds to make it in politics. He was raised in Montgomery by a single mother and grandmother yet went on to graduate from Harvard University's law school, where he met Obama.

A skilled orator, Davis upset a black incumbent to win Alabama's 7th Congressional District. He has either won easily or had no opposition in re-elections to the mostly black district, which extends from Birmingham to rural west Alabama. He has styled himself as a moderate pragmatist who looks out for the needy in his district, but also has business interests in mind.

Davis can't win unless he attracts large numbers of white supporters in a state where, in a 2000 referendum, 40 percent of voters opposed ending a constitutional ban on mixed-race marriage.

Exit polls in November showed Obama got fewer than 20 percent of the white vote. Republican John McCain easily won the state.

Voter registration among blacks than whites grew before the Nov. 4 election, but whites still make up almost three-quarters of registered voters in Alabama, which is about 70 percent white.

In last year's Democratic presidential primary, about half of those voting were black. If he wins the party nomination, he would still need nearly all the black vote and about 40 percent of the white vote in the general election.

"That has been very difficult for even white Democratic candidates in recent election cycles," said Jess Brown, a political scientist at Athens State University in northern Alabama.

Blacks hold scores of local offices and make up about 25 percent of each chamber in the Alabama Legislature, but no other minority candidate has previously had a real chance to win the governor's office.

Republican Gov. Bob Riley is barred from seeking a third term. The GOP race to succeed Riley is expected to more crowded than the Democratic contest.

Gubernatorial contestants grab early start out of the gate

BYLINE: CHARLES J. DEAN News staff writer

SECTION: NEWS; Pg. 1A Vol. 122 No. 074

LENGTH: 936 words

In "just" 371 days, Democrats and Republicans go to the polls to select the two candidates who will square off in a race to become the state's new governor.

If you're a regular type - meaning not a political junkie- maybe you think primary day, June 1, 2010, is far enough off that you don't need to brace for the onslaught of candidate ads blaring at you from TVs, radios, pig-up, direct mail, billboards, bumper stickers and demands of roadside signs.

You'd be wrong.

Last week, the campaign of Republican gubernatorial hopeful Tim James began putting up large signs along Interstate 65. This week, a major development in the GOP race occurs when two-year college Chancellor Bradley Byrne makes his long-awaited announcement about his political plans. And next week, former chief justice and previous gubernatorial candidate Roy Moore will make his announcement. Both are considered likely candidates for the office.

Other Republicans who have said they are considering the race, or are thought to be doing so, include state Treasurer Kay Ivey and state Sen. Charles Bishop. State Rep. Robert Bentley, Tuscaloosa, has already announced. Another potential candidate, Houser Mayor Tony Petelos, said last week he had decided not to run.

In the opinion of many political experts, the GOP race is wide open and features, as it did in 2002, a race between the two bases of the party: pro-business, economic development Republicans and evangelical, socially conservative Republicans.

In 2002, then-congressman Bob Riley was strongly supported by the pro-business base of the party and won the nomination over, among others, James, who generally was seen as more supported by evangelical Christians. In 2006 Riley, still supported by business interests, easily beat back a challenge by Moore, a hero to many social conservatives.

This time around, most GOP pols generally see Byrne as the candidate of the economic wing of the party while Moore and James probably best represent the socially conservative base.

Incomplete field

On the Democratic side - where most of the interest and energy in the race has existed so far - there are two announced candidates, U.S. Rep. Artur Davis and Agricultural Commissioner Ron Sparks.

Most polls show the frontrunner as Davis, who would become the first black governor in the state's history. But, like the Republicans, the Democratic field may not yet be complete.

Ever since Lt. Gov. Jim Folsom surprised many when he announced in early April that he would not run for governor, speculation has raged that current Alabama Chief Justice Sue Bell Cobb might get into the race along with state Sen. Roger Bedford Jr.

Bedford announced last week he would not enter the race. Cobb, however, has said she is seriously considering running.

If Cobb jumps in, she will have to resign her seat on the court, where she is the only Democrat among eight Republicans. She won the seat in 2008 in the most expensive court race in the nation and is considered indispensable by Democrats, especially trial lawyers who have urged her not to trade the court seat for a problematic run for governor.

Some in the old-line Democratic establishment - labor, state employees union, the Alabama Education Association, the black Alabama Democratic Conference - are uneasy with the Davis bid for a couple of reasons.

First, they fear a black at the top of the ticket might cost them seats down ballot, especially seats in the Legislature, where Democrats control both houses. Second, Davis is seen as a maverick by some establishment Democrats, as unreliable on some of their issues.

"Many in the establishment of the Democratic Party thought you'd have a race between Lt. Gov. Folsom and Congressman Davis, and when Folsom said no, that left them with really no candidate," said William H. Stewart, University of Alabama professor emeritus of political science and a longtime observer of politics in the state.

"I think that's why you're seeing all this talk about Chief Justice Cobb and Bedford. They're both far closer to the traditional power base in the party than Davis."

That said, Stewart said he thinks the Democratic nomination for governor is Davis' to lose.

"I think Mr. Sparks is a fine guy who's won two races for ag commissioner, but those races are run and won in rural Alabama, and a race for governor is won in urban and suburban Alabama," Stewart said. "I just don't see a lot of support for Sparks against Davis, who is far more charismatic and has a message that resonates with voters."

GOP side wide open

While Davis, who announced his candidacy in early February, is leading in the Democratic race, Stewart said the Republican race is wide open.

"There is no front-runner right now for the Republicans, although I think there is an assumption that Bradley Byrne is going to get Governor Riley's support and the support of the big business interest, and that is probably true," Stewart said.

Stewart said that, for Moore to win the GOP nomination, he likely would have to remake his image among most Alabamians as a hard-right, neoconservative.

"This is a conservative state still, but there is a difference in a conservative like Governor Riley, who remains popular but is seen as more mainstream and less strident than Judge Moore, who comes across to many as favoring a theocracy," Stewart said.

"I think, in the end, most voters want their governor conservative - and that's the danger for Davis in a general election," Stewart said. "But I'm not sure they want a governor as far right as Judge Moore, a man they rejected overwhelmingly when he ran in 2006."

Ala. gubernatorial candidate defends spending

BYLINE: By BEN EVANS, Associated Press Writer

SECTION: STATE AND REGIONAL

LENGTH: 651 words

DATELINE: WASHINGTON

The campaign signs are printed and the candidate is traveling across the state, but Alabama Democrat Artur Davis says he's not yet officially running for governor.

That was the explanation Thursday for how he has spent some $120,000 in federal campaign funds the past few months without registering as a gubernatorial candidate with the Secretary of State. The campaign said it also explains why the spending doesn't contradict a pledge he made in February not to start using his leftover congressional campaign money on the governor's race until other state candidates can start fundraising on June 1.

"We have a legal opinion on that," campaign spokeswoman Anna Ruth Williams said in explaining why the campaign is attributing much of the spending to Davis' congressional account. "Congressman Davis did not explicitly say, 'I am not running for Congress; I'm running for governor.' He said, 'I intend to run for governor.'"

Alabama law requires anyone spending $25,000 or more on a state campaign to file papers with the Secretary of State within five days.

Davis, a three-term congressman from Birmingham who announced his gubernatorial bid in February, has not yet filed those papers despite traveling the state to build support and hiring a small staff and outside consultants to run his campaign.

Although state candidates can't start fundraising until June 1, Davis had about $1.1 million left in his congressional campaign account. His most recent finance report shows he spent $120,477 from the account from January through the end of March, while raising about $110,649.

Much of the spending appears to have gone toward gubernatorial activities, including his campaign staff salaries, for example, and the $205 rental fee for the hall in Birmingham where he announced his intention to run.

Williams, his gubernatorial spokeswoman whose paychecks are among the expenses, insisted that spending related to the governor's race remains under the $25,000 threshold. She said the rest of the expenses are being attributed to overhead for his congressional campaign committee, even though Davis has made clear he has no plans to seek re-election to Congress.

Williams said lawyers have advised the campaign that the arrangement is well within the law since Davis has not officially declared for governor. She noted that Davis' campaign signs say only "Artur Davis 2010" without specifying an office.

"He is up for re-election in 2010 for Congress unless he chooses on June 1 to form a separate committee," Williams said. "Until June 1 we cannot spend money explicitly on a gubernatorial campaign, and we have not."

Williams also said the spending is consistent with Davis' pledge not to use his federal money until his rivals can start drawing donations in June. In kicking off his statewide campaign, Davis said he would go above and beyond Alabama law and uphold "the highest ethical standard" by doing so, even though the money could give him a significant head start.

"We have done exactly what we said we were going to do," she said.

Davis, a Harvard graduate considered a rising young star in the Democratic Party, would be Alabama's first black governor if elected.

He and Alabama Agriculture Commissioner Ron Sparks are the only two declared Democratic candidates for the party's June 2010 primary. State Sen. Roger Bedford of Russellville says he's considering the race.

David Lanoue, chairman of the political science department at the University of Alabama, said the campaign's position that Davis is not running for governor "strains credulity."

"He's obviously running for governor," Lanoue said. "I guess it depends on what you think the meaning of the word 'technically' is."

"This is the political world basically," he added. "Candidates are very good at distinguishing circumstances and explaining in very arcane detail why what they're doing now doesn't contradict what they said they were going to do."

Davis campaign gets $1.1 million jump Congressional race money will aid state bid in 2010

THE RACE FOR GOVERNOR

WASHINGTON - Candidates for governor can't start raising money for their 2010 race until June, but U.S. Rep. Artur Davis' federal fundraising machine has been paying his campaign bills so far and the money will give him a head start of more than $1 million when he transfers it to his state account this summer.

The Birmingham Democrat had more than $1.1 million in his congressional reelection account as of March 31, according to a new Federal Election Commission report. A campaign spokeswoman said Thursday that its balance will be moved to a state campaign account to be created in June.

The FEC documents also show that Davis' federal account has been paying the administrative costs of his campaign staff in the state, a second distinct advantage to running for governor as a sitting congressman.

Davis spokeswoman Anna Ruth Williams said the set-up is only for the interim, until Davis can open his state campaign account. She said the campaign's legal counsel provided an opinion that the arrangement follows state and federal campaign law because the state campaign staff are technically still working under the committee to re-elect Davis to Congress in 2010. She declined to provide a copy of that opinion.

Davis had said earlier that any money donated to his federal account after his

Feb. 6 announcement for governor would not be transferred to the forthcoming state account. Instead, out-of-state checks that came in after noon that day have been put in a separate checking account to pay the operating expenses of his congressional committee in the state, Williams said. In-state checks have been returned to the donors, she said.

The FEC report shows that Davis has spent about $120,000 in the first three months of the year, including salaries of campaign staff in the state, the law firm that provided the legal opinion, power bills, cell phones, rent, catering, polling data and travel for the presidential inauguration.

"We've been careful. The materials don't say governor, they say Davis 2010 because that's the federal cycle we're on," Williams said. If Davis were to run for re-election instead of governor, it would also be in 2010.

The donations that came in between Feb. 7 and March 31 totaled $44,700, all of it from national political action committees. Another $18,109 was donated on Feb. 6, according to the FEC documents.

The $1.1 million kitty to be transferred to the gubernatorial race is the accumulation of seven years' worth of fundraising as a congressional incumbent, but its balance accelerated only in recent years when Democrats took control of the U.S. House and Davis landed a seat on the Ways and Means Committee.

Even though it was clear last fall that Davis had his eye on the governor's mansion, he continued to accept checks for his congressional campaign. From mid-October to Feb. 5, Davis raised about $164,000.

'Very careful'

"We have been very careful to maintain the highest ethical standard and be respectful of former donors and donors on the national level that are still contributing to the federal level," Williams said.

So even though Davis is giving up his seat in Congress to run for governor, he continues to raise money in the congressional account. He'll be the 7th District's representative in Washington until January 2011.

She said Davis' federal campaign account will be terminated in June, after the state campaign account is created.

The issue of using federal campaign funds in a state race flared up in 2002, when then U.S. Rep. Bob Riley ran for the Republican nomination for governor. At the time, Riley said he would not move the money from Washington to Alabama, but his GOP opponents cried foul when Riley gave much of it to national party committees that in turn donated to his state race.

Alabama Rep. Davis cancels Washington fundraisers

SECTION: STATE AND REGIONAL

LENGTH: 494 words

DATELINE: BIRMINGHAM Ala.

U.S. Rep. Artur Davis, who is now officially running for governor, said he has canceled the rest of his fundraisers in Washington and has stopped accepting all political donations until June 1.

That's when state law will allow Davis and other candidates for governor to officially begin raising money for the governor's race.

But an opponent in the Democratic primary for governor, Agriculture Commissioner Ron Sparks, said Davis is breaking campaign finance laws at the same time he's promoting more ethics in government.

"While Congressman Davis is calling for ethics reform in government, his actions have to make us ask, 'What is his definition of ethics?'" Sparks said Friday.

In response, Davis said that it's unfortunate Sparks "has already decided his best path to victory is a negative campaign. If Ron takes time to look at Alabama campaign finance law and federal law, he will realize that his statements are flat wrong."

Davis announced in February that he would run for governor rather than seeking re-election to Congress, but he had kept up his congressional fundraising. Davis officially registered with Alabama's secretary of state on April 17 to run for governor, and he canceled the rest of his congressional fundraisers.

"Alabama law creates that space that if you have an existing campaign committee you can spend out of it," he told The Birmingham News in a story Friday.

Davis has been using his congressional campaign account to pay bills for his gubernatorial campaign. He said he will continue doing that, but he won't add to it. In June he plans to close his congressional campaign account and move the balance of more than $1 million to a new state campaign account.

Davis registered his campaign with the secretary of state shortly after Sparks criticized Davis for not registering while spending money on his campaign.

State law requires a candidate to register after spending $25,000 on a statewide campaign. Davis said he registered when he crossed the threshold.

Sparks filed a campaign finance report in January showing he had $112,402 left from his 2006 re-election campaign for agriculture commissioner, but he said Friday that unlike Davis, he has not spent any of it on his race for governor.

"Congressman Davis may make a few folks in Washington, but it's not going to work in Alabama," Sparks said.

Davis said he is taking a stricter interpretation of campaign finance law than did Republican Gov. Bob Riley when he ran for governor in 2002 while serving in Congress. Campaign finance records show Riley's congressional campaign account continued to accept donations after Riley declared his candidacy for governor in the summer of 2001.

Riley pledged not to transfer his federal account to his state account. He did donate some of it to Republican political organizations that made sizable donations to his campaign for governor.

ASSOCIATED PRESS GETS IT WRONG

CONGRESSMAN DAVIS STAYS TRUE TO HIS CAMPAIGN FINANCE PROMISES

BIRMINGHAM – Congressman Artur Davis's (D-Bham) campaign issued the following statement in response to the Associated Press's recent article regarding campaign finance:

"Unfortunately, the Associated Press circulated an entirely inaccurate story regarding Congressman Davis' adherence to the letter and spirit of Alabama campaign finance law," campaign spokeswoman Anna Ruth Williams said. "The Associated Press mistakenly states that Congressman Davis vowed to cease spending money out of his campaign account. That claim is wrong, because Congressman Davis never made that promise. However, he did pledge to:

1. Cease accepting in-state campaign contributions after February 6, 2009. The campaign has not only refused to accept checks, but we have returned any in-state contributions accepted after that date.
2. Continue raising limited national funds. These funds are utilized to pay for campaign personnel and overhead costs.
3. Any funds received after February 6, 2009 will not be transferred to a gubernatorial account in June 2009.

Congressman Davis has upheld his promise to Alabamians, and has strictly adhered to the letter and spirit of Alabama law. The Associated Press just plain got it wrong."

Per Andrew Karwoski's conversation with a representative of the Committee to Re-Elect Artur Davis to Congress on June 17, 2009, it is our understanding that the FEC considers April 17, 2009 as the date on which Congressman Artur Davis became a candidate for Governor of Alabama. Contrary to the May 19 letter from the reports analysis division, Congressman Davis did not cease to be a candidate for Congress on February 6, 2009. On April 17, 2009 Congressman Davis filed the form appointing a principal campaign committee for the Office of Governor of Alabama with the Alabama Secretary of State. The Committee to Re-Elect Artur Davis to Congress ceased accepting contributions prior to April 17, 2009.

Response Due Date

11/27/2009

Dear Representative Davis:

This letter constitutes formal written notification that The Committee to Re-Elect Artur Davis to Congress is filing reports of receipts and disbursements (FEC FORM 3) that appear to be for the 2010 election. A review of these reports indicates that your principal campaign committee has net debts from the previous election cycle, and has accepted contributions and/or made expenditures in support of your 2010 candidacy in excess of $5,000, thus meeting the definition of "candidate" per Federal Election Campaign Laws. (11 CFR § 100.3(a))

You must either disavow these activities by notifying the Commission in writing that you are not a candidate, or redesignate your principal campaign committee by filing a Statement of Candidacy (FEC FORM 2) within thirty-five (35) days from the date of this letter. The FEC FORM 2 can be downloaded from the FEC website at <http://www.fec.gov>, or requested through the FEC Faxline at (202) 501-3413. (11 CFR § 101.1(a)) Please note that Senate candidates must send a copy of their Statement of Candidacy to the FEC via fax (202-219-0174) or electronic mail (2022190174@fec.gov), in addition to filing their official copy on paper with the Secretary of the Senate. (11 CFR § 400.20(b)(1))
