

FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20463

2019 JUL 24 PM 5:49

MEMORANDUM

TO: The Commission

FROM: Ellen L. Weintraub ELW
Chair

DATE: July 24, 2019

RE: MURs 7350, 7351, 7357, 7382 (Cambridge Analytica LLC, et al.)

In MURs 7350, 7351, 7357, 7382, the Commission:

- (1) Finds reason to believe that Cambridge Analytica LLC violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) (MURs 7350, 7351, and 7382);
- (2) Finds reason to believe that Christopher Wylie violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) (MURs 7350 and 7351);
- (3) Finds reason to believe that the John Bolton Super PAC and Cabell Hobbs in his official capacity as treasurer violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) (MURs 7351 and 7382);
- (4) Finds reason to believe that Art Robinson for Congress and Art Robinson in his official capacity as treasurer violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) (MUR 7351);
- (5) Finds reason to believe that the Thom Tillis Committee and Collin McMichael in his official capacity as treasurer violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) (MURs 7351 and 7382);
- (6) Finds reason to believe that the North Carolina Republican Party and Jason Lemons in his official capacity as treasurer violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) (MUR 7382);
- (7) Approves the attached Factual and Legal Analyses for Cambridge Analytica LLC; Christopher Wylie; John Bolton Super PAC and Cabell Hobbs in his official capacity as treasurer; Art Robinson for Congress and Art Robinson in his official capacity as treasurer; Thom Tillis Committee and Collin McMichael in his official capacity as treasurer; and North Carolina Republican Party and Jason Lemons in his official capacity as treasurer.
- (8) Authorizes the use of compulsory process; and
- (9) Approves the appropriate letters.

1 FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

2 FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

3 RESPONDENT: Cambridge Analytica LLC MURs 7350, 7351, and 7382
4

5 I. INTRODUCTION

6 This matter was generated by complaints filed with the Federal Election Commission
7 (“Commission”). See 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(1). These complaints allege that Cambridge
8 Analytica LLC (“Cambridge”) violated the provisions of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 9 1971, as amended (“Act”), and Commission regulations that prohibit foreign nationals from 10 directly or indirectly participating in the decision-making process of a political committee’s
11 contributions or expenditures in connection with a federal election.

12 These allegations stem from services that Cambridge provided to four political 13 committees during the 2014 election cycle — the Thom Tillis Committee and Collin McMichael
14 in his official capacity as treasurer (“Tillis Committee”); the John Bolton Super PAC and Cabell
15 Hobbs in his official capacity as treasurer (“Bolton PAC”); the North Carolina Republican Party
16 and Jason Lemons in his official capacity as treasurer (“NCRP”); and Art Robinson for Congress
17 and Art Robinson in his official capacity as treasurer (“Robinson Committee”)<sup>1</sup>.

18 For the reasons explained fully below, the Commission finds reason to believe that 19 Cambridge violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

---

<sup>1</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. (Mar. 26, 2018); MUR 7382 Compl. (May 10, 2018).

II. FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

A. Background

Cambridge is a limited liability company organized in Delaware on December 31, 2013.<sup>2</sup> SCL Group LTD (“SCL”) is based in England and registered in the United Kingdom on July 20, 2005.<sup>3</sup> Cambridge reportedly began working for political committees in the U.S. during the 2014 election cycle.<sup>4</sup> The Complaints allege, based on news reports, that Cambridge was “effectively a shell” and “any contracts won by Cambridge . . . would be serviced by London-based SCL and overseen by [Alexander] Nix, a British citizen,” who is a director of SCL and chief executive of Cambridge.<sup>5</sup> “Most SCL employees and contractors” were reportedly foreign nationals from Canada or Europe.<sup>6</sup>

<sup>2</sup> Cambridge Analytica LLC, Delaware Div. of Corps., <https://icis.corp.delaware.gov/ecorp/entitysearch/NameSearch.aspx> (viewed July 19, 2018).

<sup>3</sup> SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018).

<sup>4</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶¶ 5, 13; Craig Timberg and Tom Hamburger, Former Cambridge Analytica Workers Say Firm Sent Foreigners to Advise U.S. Campaigns, WASH. POST (Mar. 25, 2018), available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/former-cambridge-analytica-workers-say-firm-sent-foreigners-to-advise-us-campaigns/2018/03/25/6a0d7d90-2fa2-11e8-911f-ca7f68bff0fc\_story.html (“Timberg Article”) (cited in MUR 7351 Complaint) (“The company aggressively courted political work beginning in 2014[.]”).

<sup>5</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 16 (citing Matthew Rosenberg, Nicholas Confessore and Carole Cadwalladr, How Trump Consultants Exploited the Facebook Data of Millions, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/17/us/politics/cambridge-analytica-trump-campaign.html> (“NYT March 17 Article”)); Matthew Rosenberg, Cambridge Analytica Suspends C.E.O. Amid Facebook Data Scandal, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 20, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/20/world/europe/cambridge-analytica-ceo-suspended.html> (“[The SCL Group and Cambridge Analytica] were set up with a convoluted corporate structure, and their operations are deeply intertwined. Mr. Nix, for instance, holds dual appointments at the two companies. Cambridge Analytica is registered in Delaware . . . but it is effectively a shell — it holds intellectual property rights to its psychographic modeling tools, yet its clients are served by the staff at London-based SCL and overseen by Mr. Nix, who is a British citizen.”); see also SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098/officers> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018) (listing Nix as SCL director from 2005-2012 and from 2016-2018).

<sup>6</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

1 According to former employees quoted in media reports, during the 2014 election cycle,
 2 Cambridge, like SCL, was “overwhelmingly staffed by non-U.S. citizens,”<sup>7</sup> at least two of whom
 3 “were still answering ultimately to [Alexander] Nix” while working for U.S. political
 4 committees.<sup>8</sup> Christopher Wylie, who worked for Cambridge during the 2014 election cycle and
 5 is a foreign national, reportedly asserts that he and “many foreign nationals worked on the
 6 campaigns, and many were embedded in the campaigns around the U.S.”<sup>9</sup> Wylie also asserts
 7 that he was personally part of “multiple conference calls in 2014” with Nix and Stephen K.
 8 Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which “strategic campaign matters were discussed.”<sup>10</sup>
 9 According to Wylie, on some of these calls, Cambridge’s leaders discussed whether the company
 10 was violating federal law by using foreign nationals to work on American political campaigns.<sup>11</sup>
 11 However, Cambridge reportedly provided no compliance training for its foreign employees on

---

<sup>7</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>8</sup> MUR 7350 Compl. at ¶ 23 (citing Carole Cadwalladr and Emma Graham-Harrison, Staff Claim Cambridge Analytica Ignored US Ban on Foreigners Working on Elections, GUARDIAN (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2018/mar/17/cambridge-analytica-non-american-employees-political> (“Guardian Article”)).

<sup>9</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 26 (citing Anna R. Schecter, Wylie: Foreigners Worked for Cambridge Analytica on NC Senate Campaign, NBC NEWS (Mar. 23, 2018), available at <https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/elections/wylie-foreigners-worked-cambridge-analytica-nc-senate-campaign-n859526> (“Schecter Article”)). Wylie apparently played a significant role in founding Cambridge. See NYT March 17 Article (“[Wylie] helped found Cambridge and worked there until late 2014.”). Wylie reportedly left Cambridge at the end of the 2014 election cycle, although there is some dispute as to precisely when he left the company. Schecter Article (“Cambridge has said that Wylie left the company in July 2014. Wylie [claims that] while he gave notice in July, he continued to work for the company until just before the elections on Nov. 4, 2014.”). The circumstances of Wylie’s departure are also controverted: Wylie claims that he resigned because of his growing unease with Cambridge, while Cambridge contends that Wylie departed to start a competing company and became disgruntled when Cambridge sued him to enforce its intellectual property rights. See Timberg Article at 4.

<sup>10</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 30 (quoting Timberg Article). Both Nix and Bannon, along with three others, are described by an internal Cambridge legal memorandum as “managers” of Cambridge; the memorandum notes that “Cambridge is currently being managed day to day by Mr. Nix,” a foreign national. CONFIDENTIAL MEMORANDUM FROM LAURENCE LEVY TO REBEKAH MERCER, STEVE BANNON, AND ALEXANDER NIX at 6 (July 22, 2014), available at <http://cdn.cnn.com/cnn/2018/images/03/26/levy.memo.pdf> (discussed in Schecter Article).

<sup>11</sup> Timberg Article.

what conduct to avoid in order to comply with federal law while working for U.S. political committees.<sup>12</sup>

The primary service that Cambridge offered its clients was a form of voter targeting that it described as “psychological profiling to reach voters with individually tailored messages.”<sup>13</sup> Cambridge allegedly employed many foreign national data scientists, including Dr. Alexander Tayler, who led the data science team as the company’s Chief Data Officer.<sup>14</sup> Cambridge reportedly helped political committees “decide what voters to target with political messages and what messages to deliver to them,” while also offering additional services such as “fundraising, planning events, and providing communications strategy[.]”<sup>15</sup> Wylie asserts that he and other foreign nationals working for Cambridge “weren’t just working on messaging” but “were instructing campaigns on which messages go where and to who.”<sup>16</sup> Other employees have supported this assertion, claiming that Cambridge “didn’t handle only data” but worked on message development and targeting strategy.<sup>17</sup>

During the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge worked for several political committees, including the Bolton PAC, an independent-expenditure-only political committee (“IEOPC”); the

---

<sup>12</sup> Guardian Article (“There were no briefings on the kind of work that non-US citizens should avoid, or warnings about the legal risks.”).

<sup>13</sup> Timberg Article; see also Sasha Issenberg, Cruz-Connected Data Miner Aims to Get Inside U.S. Voters’ Heads, BLOOMBERG (Nov. 12, 2015), available at <https://www.bloomberg.com/news/features/2015-11-12/is-the-republican-party-s-killer-data-app-for-real-> (“Issenberg Article”) (“Cambridge Analytica’s trophy product is ‘psychographic profiles’ of every potential voter in the U.S. interwoven with more conventional political data. The emphasis on psychology helps to differentiate the Brits from other companies that specialized in ‘microtargeting,’ a catch-all term typically used to describe any analysis that uses statistical modeling to predict voter intent at the individual level.”).

<sup>14</sup> MUR 7350 Compl. at ¶ 22; MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 9.

<sup>15</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 28 (quoting Timberg Article).

<sup>16</sup> Id. at ¶ 26 (quoting Schecter Article).

<sup>17</sup> Timberg Article.

1 Tillis Committee, Thom Tillis’s authorized campaign committee for the U.S. Senate in North
 2 Carolina; the NCRP, a state party committee supporting Tillis’s campaign; and the Robinson
 3 Committee, Arthur Robinson’s authorized campaign committee in Oregon’s 4th Congressional 4 District.<sup>18</sup>

5 The Bolton PAC reportedly hired Cambridge to perform a variety of tasks, from data
 6 modeling to designing “concepts for advertisements for candidates supported by Mr. Bolton’s
 7 PAC, including the 2014 campaign of Thom Tillis[.]”<sup>19</sup> According to Cambridge internal 8 documents that Wylie publicized, the Bolton PAC used Cambridge to “provide messaging and 9 communications support” and “made use of significant input from SCL on messaging and target
 10 audiences.”<sup>20</sup> The Bolton PAC’s “media teams took direction well and worked with Harris
 11 MacLeod (SCL) to ensure each message was tailored in a way that would resonate with its 12 target.”<sup>21</sup> Cambridge also provided “[d]irection and feedback on all creative [content]” and the 13 Bolton PAC’s “creative teams were given further guidance based on which messages resonated
 14 most with target groups.”<sup>22</sup> Cambridge also reportedly drafted talking points for Ambassador

---

<sup>18</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 13.

<sup>19</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 33 (quoting Matthew Rosenberg, Bolton Was Early Beneficiary of Cambridge Analytica’s Facebook Data, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 23, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/23/us/politics/bolton-cambridge-analyticas-facebook-data.html> (“NYT March 23 Article”).

<sup>20</sup> Cambridge Analytica 2014 Activity Summary Report at 16, available at <https://www.washingtonpost.com/apps/g/page/politics/2014-cambridge-analytica-report-on-congressional-and-legislative-races/2294/> (“2014 Report”); see also Timberg Article (discussing and linking to 2014 Report, among other Cambridge documents).

<sup>21</sup> 2014 Report at 16-17. MacLeod is allegedly a Canadian foreign national. See Issenberg Article at 2 (“Harris MacLeod [is] a Nova Scotian who worked as a political journalist in Ottawa [and] spent much of 2014 working for Cambridge Analytica’s marquee American clients. Harris worked for John Bolton’s super-PAC[.]”).

<sup>22</sup> 2014 Report at 17; see also Issenberg Article at 8 (“[Cambridge Analytica] advised Bolton’s team on the design of six ads, thirty seconds each, with wildly different creative approaches. One ad, targeted at voters modeled to be conscientious and agreeable, was set to upbeat music and showed Bolton standing outdoors on a bright day, matter-of-factly addressing the need to ‘leave a stronger, safer America for our children.’”).

John Bolton to use to describe the services Cambridge was providing to his eponymous political committee.<sup>23</sup>

For Tillis’s 2014 U.S. Senate race in North Carolina, Wylie reportedly claims that “his largely foreign team” crafted and targeted messaging for Tillis’s campaign.<sup>24</sup> Cambridge’s documents detail that the company was also contracted by the NCRP to provide support for Tillis, other Republican campaigns in North Carolina, and the NCRP.<sup>25</sup> The documents confirm that Cambridge provided the NCRP and Tillis Committee with message targeting services, noting that “local campaign staff had ideas about how they wanted their target universes defined, but the [Cambridge] team was able to use their knowledge of the data to suggest more effective targeting strategies.”<sup>26</sup> Cambridge’s modeling and targeting work for the NCRP and Tillis Committee reportedly altered the content of those committees’ messages to focus on issues that Cambridge had identified as resonating with potential voters, such as foreign terrorism, more than issues previously prioritized by the committees, like state-wide education policy.<sup>27</sup>

For the Robinson Committee, Cambridge states that it took on a “comprehensive set of responsibilities and effectively managed the campaign in its entirety, with strategic advice

---

<sup>23</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 33 (quoting NYT March 23 Article).

<sup>24</sup> Schechter Article.

<sup>25</sup> 2014 Report at 12.

<sup>26</sup> Id. at 14.

<sup>27</sup> See Issenberg Article (“In North Carolina, where the company was paid $150,000 by the state party and $30,000 by Tillis’s campaign, Cambridge Analytica developed models to predict individual support, turnout likelihoods, and issues of concern that would recalibrate continuously based on interactions with voters[, and] that dynamic process allowed Tillis’s campaign to identify a sizable cluster of North Carolinians who prioritized foreign affairs — which encouraged Tillis to shift the conversation from state-level debates over education policy to charges that incumbent Kay Hagan had failed to take ISIS’s rise seriously.”); 2014 Report at 13 (discussing changing committee messaging to more “salient” issues such as national security); see also 2014 Report at 16, 19 (discussing Bolton PAC’s desire to focus on national security and detailing successes based on national security-focused messaging).

channeled through US nationals on the [Cambridge-SCL] team.”<sup>28</sup> Cambridge’s 2014 internal assessment report noted that although the Robinson Committee hired Cambridge to provide “supportive intervention to augment an existing campaign infrastructure[,] . . . on the ground, it became clear that no such professional ‘campaign team’ existed[.]”<sup>29</sup> As such, Cambridge supplied a wide range of deliverables, such as “communications strategy, including key topics and slogans[,] talking points, speeches, planning for events and candidate travels[,]” and management of a range of campaign functions from canvassing to social media engagement.<sup>30</sup>

B. Legal Analysis

1. Foreign Nationals May Not Directly or Indirectly Make Contributions, Donations, Expenditures, or Disbursements

The Act and Commission regulations prohibit any “foreign national” from directly or indirectly making a contribution or donation of money or other thing of value, or an expenditure, independent expenditure, or disbursement, in connection with a federal, state, or local election.<sup>31</sup> The Act’s definition of “foreign national” includes an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States and who is not lawfully admitted for permanent residence, as well as a “foreign principal” as defined at 22 U.S.C. § 611(b), which, in turn, includes a “partnership, association, corporation, organization, or other combination of persons organized under the laws

<sup>28</sup> 2014 Report at 1; see MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 31 (quoting Timberg Article).

<sup>29</sup> 2014 Report at 2.

<sup>30</sup> Id. at 4.

<sup>31</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(1); 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(b), (c), (e), (f). Courts have consistently upheld the provisions of the Act prohibiting foreign national contributions on the ground that the government has a clear, compelling interest in limiting the influence of foreigners over the activities and processes that are integral to democratic self-government, which include making political contributions and express-advocacy expenditures. See Bluman v. FEC, 800 F. Supp. 2d 281, 288-89 (D.D.C. 2011), aff’d 132 S. Ct. 1087 (2012); United States v. Singh, 924 F.3d 1030, 1040-44 (9th Cir. 2019).

of or having its principal place of business in a foreign country.”<sup>32</sup> Commission regulations implementing the Act’s foreign national prohibition provide:

A foreign national shall not direct, dictate, control, or directly or indirectly participate in the decision-making process of any person, such as a corporation, labor organization, political committee, or political organization with regard to such person’s Federal or non-Federal election-related activities, such as decisions concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political committee.<sup>33</sup>

The Commission has explained that this provision also bars foreign nationals from “involvement in the management of a political committee.”<sup>34</sup>

In light of these provisions, Commission regulations permit any person or company — foreign or domestic — to provide goods or services to a political committee, without making a contribution, if that person or company does so as a “commercial vendor,” i.e., in the ordinary course of business, and at the usual and normal charge, as long as foreign nationals do not directly or indirectly participate in any committee’s management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related activities.<sup>35</sup> For example, in MUR 5998, the Commission

---

<sup>32</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(b); 22 U.S.C. § 611(b)(3); see also 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(a)(3).

<sup>33</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

<sup>34</sup> Contribution Limits and Prohibitions, 67 Fed. Reg. 69928, 69946 (Nov. 19, 2002); see also Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 2-3 (Weller) (noting that foreign national prohibition at section 110.20(i) is broad and concluding that, while a foreign national fiancé of the candidate could participate in committees’ activities as a volunteer without making a prohibited contribution, she “must not participate in [the candidate’s] decisions regarding his campaign activities” and “must refrain from managing or participating in the decisions of the Committees.”).

<sup>35</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 114.2(f)(1); see 11 C.F.R. § 116.1(c) (defining “commercial vendor” as “any persons providing goods or services to a candidate or political committee whose usual and normal business involves the sale, rental, lease or provision of those goods or services). The Act defines a contribution to include “anything of value,” which in turn includes all “in-kind contributions,” such as “the provision of any goods or services without charge or at a charge that is less than the usual and normal charge for such goods or services.” 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(d)(1); see 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8). Goods or services provided at the usual and normal charge do not constitute a contribution under the Act. However, soliciting, accepting, or receiving information in connection with an election from a foreign national, as opposed to purchasing the information at the usual and normal charge or hiring a foreign national in a bona fide commercial transaction to perform services for a federal campaign, could potentially result in the receipt of a prohibited in-kind contribution.

found that the foreign national owners of a venue did not make or facilitate a contribution to a political committee by allowing the committee to rent the venue for a fundraising event.<sup>36</sup> The venue at issue was rented out for events in the ordinary course of business, and the owners charged the committee the usual and normal amount for the service.<sup>37</sup> The Commission noted that there was no available information to suggest — and the foreign nationals and political committee expressly denied — that the foreign nationals had any “decision-making role in the event.”<sup>38</sup>

The Commission has found that not all participation by foreign nationals in the election-related activities of others will violate the Act. In MUR 6959, for example, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by performing clerical duties, such as online research and translations, during a one month-long internship with a party committee.<sup>39</sup> Similarly, in MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by volunteering his services to perform at a campaign fundraiser and agreeing to let the political committee use his name and likeness in its emails promoting the concert and soliciting support, where the record did not indicate that the foreign national had been involved in the committee’s decision-making process

---

<sup>36</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-6, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild).

<sup>37</sup> Id.

<sup>38</sup> Id. at 5.

<sup>39</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-5, MUR 6959 (Cindy Nava) (noting that the available information, which was based on two press reports that did not detail the foreign national’s activities, did not indicate that the foreign national participated in any political committee’s decision-making process). The Commission also found that a $3,000 stipend that the foreign national received from third parties resulted in an in-kind contribution from the third parties to the committee, but the value of the foreign national volunteer’s services to the committee was not a contribution. Id. at 4-5 (citing 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8)(A)(ii); 11 C.F.R. § 100.54; Advisory Op. 1982-04 (Apodaca)).

in connection with the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements.<sup>40</sup> By contrast, the Commission has consistently found a violation of the foreign national prohibition where foreign national officers or directors of a U.S. company participated in the company's decisions to make contributions or in the management of its separate segregated fund.<sup>41</sup>

2. There is Reason to Believe that Cambridge Violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) When its Foreign National Employees Directly or Indirectly Participated in a Decision-Making Process Regarding the Election-Related Activities of Several Political Committees During the 2014 Election Cycle

Cambridge's usual and normal business involved providing data analytics and message targeting services, and there is no specific information suggesting that Cambridge charged any committee less than its usual and normal rate for such services. Even if Cambridge, which was organized under the laws of Delaware and therefore appears to be a domestic company, was, arguendo, a foreign company, it could provide services to a political committee as a commercial vendor without thereby making a contribution to that committee, but foreign nationals may not directly or indirectly participate in any committee's management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related spending.

Wylie, a Cambridge foreign national employee, appears to have participated in the decision-making processes of Cambridge's clients with respect to their election-related activities.

---

<sup>40</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 6-9, MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015 (Sir Elton John); see also Factual and Legal Analysis at 5, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild); Advisory Op. 2004-26 (Weller).

<sup>41</sup> See, e.g., Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6093 (Transurban Grp.) (U.S. subsidiary violated Act by making contributions after its foreign parent company's board of directors directly participated in determining whether to continue political contributions policy of its U.S. subsidiaries); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6184 (Skyway Concession Company, LLC) (U.S. company violated Act by making contributions after its foreign national CEO participated in company's election-related activities by vetting campaign solicitations or deciding which nonfederal committees would receive company contributions, authorizing release of company funds to make contributions, and signing contribution checks); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 7122 (American Pacific International Capital, Inc. ("APIC")) (U.S. corporation owned by foreign company violated Act by making contribution after its board of directors, which included foreign nationals, approved proposal by U.S. citizen corporate officer to contribute).

1 Wylie reportedly admits that he “worked on all of the company’s U.S. political campaigns in
2 2014,”<sup>42</sup> and that he was personally part of “multiple conference calls in 2014” with Nix and
3 Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which “strategic campaign matters were
4 discussed.”<sup>43</sup> During this period of time, Cambridge not only provided political committees with
5 communications and targeting advice, i.e., advice about how to effectively craft tailored
6 communications and target them to receptive voters in order to maximize the messages’ impact,
7 but “directed” the committees in their messaging.<sup>44</sup>

8 According to Wylie and internal Cambridge documents, he and other foreign nationals
9 were embedded in political committees and were “instructing campaigns on which messages go
10 where and to who.”<sup>45</sup> By providing strategic advice to committees on both the content and target
11 audience for their campaign communications, these foreign nationals may have helped shape
12 political committees’ election-related spending decisions.

13 The available information supports a finding that Cambridge, through its foreign national 14 employees, may have participated in the decision-making processes with regard to election-
15 related activities of the Robinson Committee. In contrast to the circumstances presented in 16 Advisory Opinion 2004-26, it appears that foreign nationals were “managing or participating in 17 the decisions” of the Robinson Committee, because Cambridge, which employed mostly
18 foreigners in 2014, assumed “comprehensive” responsibilities for the Robinson Committee
19 during the 2014 election cycle, including managing basic campaign functions and providing

---

<sup>42</sup> Schechter Article.

<sup>43</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>44</sup> See, e.g., 2014 Report at 16-17 (describing Cambridge’s successful “direction” of the Bolton PAC).

<sup>45</sup> Schechter Article.

1 strategic advice.<sup>46</sup> Robinson acknowledges that Cambridge, through its foreign national
2 employees, was at least indirectly participating in a decision-making process in connection with
3 the committee's election-related spending.<sup>47</sup> Even if, as Robinson contends, the Robinson
4 Committee's staff made all final decisions regarding the committee's management and electoral
5 strategy, the record indicates that Wylie and other Cambridge foreign national employees
6 participated, either directly or indirectly, in the Robinson Committee's management or decision-
7 making process in connection with its expenditures.

8 The available information also supports a finding that Cambridge, through its foreign 9 national employees, may have participated, directly or indirectly, in the management or decision-
10 making processes in connection with election-related spending of the Tillis Committee, Bolton
11 PAC, and NCRP. Cambridge reportedly provided "polling, focus groups and message 12 development" services for these committees during Thom Tillis's 2014 campaign for the U.S.
13 Senate in North Carolina.<sup>48</sup> Wylie reportedly claims to have worked on all of Cambridge's
14 political campaigns in 2014, including Thom Tillis's campaign.<sup>49</sup> Wylie reportedly admits that 15 "his largely foreign team" of Cambridge employees instructed the Tillis campaign on its 16 messaging by crafting and targeting the messaging, and that "his" team instructed campaigns on 17 "which messages go where and to who."<sup>50</sup>

---

<sup>46</sup> Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 3; 2014 Report at 1.

<sup>47</sup> See Arthur Robinson Resp. at 1-2.

<sup>48</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

<sup>49</sup> Schechter Article.

<sup>50</sup> Id.

Wylie reportedly claims that “three or four full-time [Cambridge] staffers embedded in Tillis’s campaign on the ground in Raleigh [and all] of them were foreign nationals.”<sup>51</sup> Another former Cambridge employee also claims that most of the Tillis campaign’s messaging team was composed of foreign nationals.<sup>52</sup> These assertions indicate that Wylie may have worked not only with the Tillis Committee, but also the NCRP and Bolton PAC in support of Tillis’s campaign for the U.S. Senate. Wylie and other Cambridge employees may also have been embedded with the NCRP to provide targeting advice used to create and distribute communications supporting Tillis’s campaign.<sup>53</sup> Wylie and another former Cambridge employee also contend that Cambridge helped develop data models and message concepts for the Bolton PAC’s communications supporting Tillis during the 2014 election.<sup>54</sup>

The key issue is not whether Wylie or any other foreign national had final decision-making authority or final say regarding any analysis, but whether they participated, directly or indirectly, in a Cambridge client’s management or decision-making process in connection with its “election-related activities, such as decisions concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political committee.”<sup>55</sup> Here, the available information supports the conclusion that Wylie and

---

<sup>51</sup> Id.

<sup>52</sup> Id.

<sup>53</sup> Id. Both the Tillis Committee and NCRP rejected Wylie’s claim that Cambridge employees were embedded with Tillis’s authorized committee, asserting instead that Cambridge employees were embedded with the NCRP. Id.; see Timberg Article (“Cambridge Analytica documents show it advised a congressional candidate in Oregon, state legislative candidates in Colorado and, on behalf of the North Carolina Republican Party, the winning campaign for Sen. Thom Tillis.”).

<sup>54</sup> NYT March 23 Article.

<sup>55</sup> 11 CFR 110.20(i).

MURs 7350, 7351, and 7382 (Cambridge Analytica LLC)

Factual and Legal Analysis

Page 14 of 14

1 other foreign national Cambridge employees may have done both by participating in committees'
2 decision-making in connection with their communications strategy and expenditures.

3       Based on the available information regarding Cambridge's conduct, through which 4 foreign nationals participated in Cambridge client committees' management or decision-making
5 processes in connection with their election-related spending, the Commission finds reason to 6 believe that Cambridge violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

RESPONDENT: Christopher Wylie MURs 7350 and 7351

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter was generated by complaints filed with the Federal Election Commission (“Commission”). See 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(1). These complaints allege that Christopher Wylie, a foreign national employee of Cambridge Analytica LLC (“Cambridge”), violated the provisions of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (“Act”), and Commission regulations that prohibit foreign nationals from directly or indirectly participating in the decision-making process of a political committee’s contributions or expenditures in connection with a federal election.

These allegations stem from services that Cambridge provided to four political committees during the 2014 election cycle: the Thom Tillis Committee and Collin McMichael in his official capacity as treasurer (“Tillis Committee”); the John Bolton Super PAC and Cabell Hobbs in his official capacity as treasurer (“Bolton PAC”); the North Carolina Republican Party and Jason Lemons in his official capacity as treasurer (“NCRP”); and Art Robinson for Congress and Art Robinson in his official capacity as treasurer (the “Robinson Committee”).<sup>1</sup>

For the reasons explained fully below, the Commission finds reason to believe that Wylie violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

<sup>1</sup> See MUR 7350 Compl. (Mar. 26, 2018); MUR 7351 Compl. (Mar. 26, 2018).

II. FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

A. Background

Cambridge is a limited liability company organized in Delaware on December 31, 2013.<sup>2</sup> SCL Group LTD (“SCL”) is based in England and registered in the United Kingdom on July 20, 2005.<sup>3</sup> Cambridge reportedly began working for political committees in the U.S. during the 2014 election cycle.<sup>4</sup> The Complaints allege, based on news reports, that Cambridge was “effectively a shell” and “any contracts won by Cambridge . . . would be serviced by London-based SCL and overseen by [Alexander] Nix, a British citizen,” who is a director of SCL and chief executive of Cambridge.<sup>5</sup> “Most SCL employees and contractors” were reportedly foreign nationals from Canada or Europe.<sup>6</sup>

---

<sup>2</sup> Cambridge Analytica LLC, Delaware Div. of Corps., <https://icis.corp.delaware.gov/ecorp/entitysearch/NameSearch.aspx> (viewed July 19, 2018).

<sup>3</sup> SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018).

<sup>4</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶¶ 5, 13; Craig Timberg and Tom Hamburger, Former Cambridge Analytica Workers Say Firm Sent Foreigners to Advise U.S. Campaigns, WASH. POST (Mar. 25, 2018), available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/former-cambridge-analytica-workers-say-firm-sent-foreigners-to-advise-us-campaigns/2018/03/25/6a0d7d90-2fa2-11e8-911f-ca7f68bff0fc\_story.html (“Timberg Article”) (cited in MUR 7351 Complaint) (“The company aggressively courted political work beginning in 2014[.]”).

<sup>5</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 16 (citing Matthew Rosenberg, Nicholas Confessore and Carole Cadwalladr, How Trump Consultants Exploited the Facebook Data of Millions, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/17/us/politics/cambridge-analytica-trump-campaign.html> (“NYT March 17 Article”)); Matthew Rosenberg, Cambridge Analytica Suspends C.E.O. Amid Facebook Data Scandal, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 20, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/20/world/europe/cambridge-analytica-ceo-suspended.html> (“[The SCL Group and Cambridge Analytica] were set up with a convoluted corporate structure, and their operations are deeply intertwined. Mr. Nix, for instance, holds dual appointments at the two companies. Cambridge Analytica is registered in Delaware . . . but it is effectively a shell — it holds intellectual property rights to its psychographic modeling tools, yet its clients are served by the staff at London-based SCL and overseen by Mr. Nix, who is a British citizen.”); see also SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098/officers> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018) (listing Nix as SCL director from 2005-2012 and from 2016-2018).

<sup>6</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

1 According to former employees quoted in media reports, during the 2014 election cycle,
 2 Cambridge, like SCL, was “overwhelmingly staffed by non-U.S. citizens,”<sup>7</sup> at least two of whom
 3 “were still answering ultimately to [Alexander] Nix” while working for U.S. political
 4 committees.<sup>8</sup> Wylie, who worked for Cambridge during the 2014 election cycle and is a foreign 5 national, reportedly asserts that he and “many foreign nationals worked on the campaigns, and 6 many were embedded in the campaigns around the U.S.”<sup>9</sup> Wylie also asserts that he was 7 personally part of “multiple conference calls in 2014” with Nix and Stephen K. Bannon, a
 8 Cambridge board member, in which “strategic campaign matters were discussed.”<sup>10</sup> According 9 to Wylie, on some of these calls, Cambridge’s leaders discussed whether the company was 10 violating federal law by using foreign nationals to work on American political campaigns.<sup>11</sup>
 11 However, Cambridge reportedly provided no compliance training for its foreign employees on

---

<sup>7</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>8</sup> MUR 7350 Compl. at ¶ 23 (citing Carole Cadwalladr and Emma Graham-Harrison, Staff Claim Cambridge Analytica Ignored US Ban on Foreigners Working on Elections, GUARDIAN (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2018/mar/17/cambridge-analytica-non-american-employees-political> (“Guardian Article”)).

<sup>9</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 26 (citing Anna R. Schechter, Wylie: Foreigners Worked for Cambridge Analytica on NC Senate Campaign, NBC NEWS (Mar. 23, 2018), available at <https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/elections/wylie-foreigners-worked-cambridge-analytica-nc-senate-campaign-n859526> (“Schechter Article”)). Wylie apparently played a significant role in founding Cambridge. See NYT March 17 Article (“[Wylie] helped found Cambridge and worked there until late 2014.”). Wylie reportedly left Cambridge at the end of the 2014 election cycle, although there is some dispute as to precisely when he left the company. Schechter Article (“Cambridge has said that Wylie left the company in July 2014. Wylie [claims that] while he gave notice in July, he continued to work for the company until just before the elections on Nov. 4, 2014.”). The circumstances of Wylie’s departure are also controverted: Wylie claims that he resigned because of his growing unease with Cambridge, while Cambridge contends that Wylie departed to start a competing company and became disgruntled when Cambridge sued him to enforce its intellectual property rights. See Timberg Article at 4.

<sup>10</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 30 (quoting Timberg Article). Both Nix and Bannon, along with three others, are described by an internal Cambridge legal memorandum as “managers” of Cambridge; the memorandum notes that “Cambridge is currently being managed day to day by Mr. Nix,” a foreign national. CONFIDENTIAL MEMORANDUM FROM LAURENCE LEVY TO REBEKAH MERCER, STEVE BANNON, AND ALEXANDER NIX at 6 (July 22, 2014), available at <http://cdn.cnn.com/cnn/2018/images/03/26/levy.memo.pdf> (discussed in Schechter Article).

<sup>11</sup> Timberg Article.

1 what conduct to avoid in order to comply with federal law while working for U.S. political
2 committees.<sup>12</sup>

3 The primary service that Cambridge offered its clients was a form of voter targeting that
4 it described as “psychological profiling to reach voters with individually tailored messages.”<sup>13</sup>
5 Cambridge allegedly employed many foreign national data scientists, including Dr. Alexander
6 Tayler, who led the data science team as the company’s Chief Data Officer.<sup>14</sup> Cambridge 7 reportedly helped political committees “decide what voters to target with political messages and 8 what messages to deliver to them,” while also offering additional services such as “fundraising,
9 planning events, and providing communications strategy[.]”<sup>15</sup> Wylie asserts that he and other
10 foreign nationals working for Cambridge “weren’t just working on messaging” but “were 11 instructing campaigns on which messages go where and to who.”<sup>16</sup> Other employees have 12 supported this assertion, claiming that Cambridge “didn’t handle only data” but worked on
13 message development and targeting strategy.<sup>17</sup>

14 During the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge worked for several political committees,

---

<sup>12</sup> Guardian Article (“There were no briefings on the kind of work that non-US citizens should avoid, or warnings about the legal risks.”).

<sup>13</sup> Timberg Article; see also Sasha Issenberg, Cruz-Connected Data Miner Aims to Get Inside U.S. Voters’ Heads, BLOOMBERG (Nov. 12, 2015), available at <https://www.bloomberg.com/news/features/2015-11-12/is-the-republican-party-s-killer-data-app-for-real-> (“Issenberg Article”) (“Cambridge Analytica’s trophy product is ‘psychographic profiles’ of every potential voter in the U.S. interwoven with more conventional political data. The emphasis on psychology helps to differentiate the Brits from other companies that specialized in ‘microtargeting,’ a catch-all term typically used to describe any analysis that uses statistical modeling to predict voter intent at the individual level.”).

<sup>14</sup> MUR 7350 Compl. at ¶ 22; MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 9.

<sup>15</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 28 (quoting Timberg Article).

<sup>16</sup> Id. at ¶ 26 (quoting Schecter Article).

<sup>17</sup> Timberg Article.

including the Bolton PAC, an independent-expenditure-only political committee (“IEOPC”); the Tillis Committee, Thom Tillis’s authorized campaign committee for the U.S. Senate in North Carolina; the NCRP, a state party committee supporting Tillis’s campaign; and the Robinson Committee, Arthur Robinson’s authorized campaign committee in Oregon’s 4th Congressional District.<sup>18</sup>

The Bolton PAC reportedly hired Cambridge to perform a variety of tasks, from data modeling to designing “concepts for advertisements for candidates supported by Mr. Bolton’s PAC, including the 2014 campaign of Thom Tillis[.]”<sup>19</sup> According to Cambridge internal documents that Wylie publicized, the Bolton PAC used Cambridge to “provide messaging and communications support” and “made use of significant input from SCL on messaging and target audiences.”<sup>20</sup> The Bolton PAC’s “media teams took direction well and worked with Harris MacLeod (SCL) to ensure each message was tailored in a way that would resonate with its target.”<sup>21</sup> Cambridge also provided “[d]irection and feedback on all creative [content]” and the Bolton PAC’s “creative teams were given further guidance based on which messages resonated most with target groups.”<sup>22</sup> Cambridge also reportedly drafted talking points for Ambassador

---

<sup>18</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 13.

<sup>19</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 33 (quoting Matthew Rosenberg, Bolton Was Early Beneficiary of Cambridge Analytica’s Facebook Data, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 23, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/23/us/politics/bolton-cambridge-analyticas-facebook-data.html> (“NYT March 23 Article”)).

<sup>20</sup> Cambridge Analytica 2014 Activity Summary Report at 16, available at <https://www.washingtonpost.com/apps/g/page/politics/2014-cambridge-analytica-report-on-congressional-and-legislative-races/2294/> (“2014 Report”); see also Timberg Article (discussing and linking to 2014 Report, among other Cambridge documents).

<sup>21</sup> 2014 Report at 16-17. MacLeod is allegedly a Canadian foreign national. See Issenberg Article at 2 (“Harris MacLeod [is] a Nova Scotian who worked as a political journalist in Ottawa [and] spent much of 2014 working for Cambridge Analytica’s marquee American clients. Harris worked for John Bolton’s super-PAC[.]”).

<sup>22</sup> 2014 Report at 17; see also Issenberg Article at 8 (“[Cambridge Analytica] advised Bolton’s team on the design of six ads, thirty seconds each, with wildly different creative approaches. One ad, targeted at voters modeled

John Bolton to use to describe the services Cambridge was providing to his eponymous political committee.<sup>23</sup>

For Tillis’s 2014 U.S. Senate race in North Carolina, Wylie reportedly claims that “his largely foreign team” crafted and targeted messaging for Tillis’s campaign.<sup>24</sup> Cambridge’s documents detail that the company was also contracted by the NCRP to provide support for Tillis, other Republican campaigns in North Carolina, and the NCRP.<sup>25</sup> The documents confirm that Cambridge provided the NCRP and Tillis Committee with message targeting services, noting that “local campaign staff had ideas about how they wanted their target universes defined, but the [Cambridge] team was able to use their knowledge of the data to suggest more effective targeting strategies.”<sup>26</sup> Cambridge’s modeling and targeting work for the NCRP and Tillis Committee reportedly altered the content of those committees’ messages to focus on issues that Cambridge had identified as resonating with potential voters, such as foreign terrorism, more than issues previously prioritized by the committees, like state-wide education policy.<sup>27</sup>

---

to be conscientious and agreeable, was set to upbeat music and showed Bolton standing outdoors on a bright day, matter-of-factly addressing the need to ‘leave a stronger, safer America for our children.’”).

<sup>23</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 33 (quoting NYT March 23 Article).

<sup>24</sup> Schechter Article.

<sup>25</sup> 2014 Report at 12.

<sup>26</sup> Id. at 14.

<sup>27</sup> See Issenberg Article (“In North Carolina, where the company was paid $150,000 by the state party and $30,000 by Tillis’s campaign, Cambridge Analytica developed models to predict individual support, turnout likelihoods, and issues of concern that would recalibrate continuously based on interactions with voters[, and] that dynamic process allowed Tillis’s campaign to identify a sizable cluster of North Carolinians who prioritized foreign affairs — which encouraged Tillis to shift the conversation from state-level debates over education policy to charges that incumbent Kay Hagan had failed to take ISIS’s rise seriously.”); 2014 Report at 13 (discussing changing committee messaging to more “salient” issues such as national security); see also 2014 Report at 16, 19 (discussing Bolton PAC’s desire to focus on national security and detailing successes based on national security-focused messaging).

For the Robinson Committee, Cambridge states that it took on a “comprehensive set of responsibilities and effectively managed the campaign in its entirety, with strategic advice channeled through US nationals on the [Cambridge-SCL] team.”<sup>28</sup> Cambridge’s 2014 internal assessment report noted that although the Robinson Committee hired Cambridge to provide “supportive intervention to augment an existing campaign infrastructure[,] . . . on the ground, it became clear that no such professional ‘campaign team’ existed[.]”<sup>29</sup> As such, Cambridge supplied a wide range of deliverables, such as “communications strategy, including key topics and slogans[,] talking points, speeches, planning for events and candidate travels[,]” and management of a range of campaign functions from canvassing to social media engagement.<sup>30</sup>

B. Legal Analysis

1. Foreign Nationals May Not Directly or Indirectly Make Contributions, Donations, Expenditures, or Disbursements

The Act and Commission regulations prohibit any “foreign national” from directly or indirectly making a contribution or donation of money or other thing of value, or an expenditure, independent expenditure, or disbursement, in connection with a federal, state, or local election.<sup>31</sup> The Act’s definition of “foreign national” includes an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States and who is not lawfully admitted for permanent residence, as well as a

---

<sup>28</sup> 2014 Report at 1; see MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 31 (quoting Timberg Article).

<sup>29</sup> 2014 Report at 2.

<sup>30</sup> Id. at 4.

<sup>31</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(1); 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(b), (c), (e), (f). Courts have consistently upheld the provisions of the Act prohibiting foreign national contributions on the ground that the government has a clear, compelling interest in limiting the influence of foreigners over the activities and processes that are integral to democratic self-government, which include making political contributions and express-advocacy expenditures. See Bluman v. FEC, 800 F. Supp. 2d 281, 288-89 (D.D.C. 2011), aff’d 132 S. Ct. 1087 (2012); United States v. Singh, 924 F.3d 1030, 1040-44 (9th Cir. 2019).

“foreign principal” as defined at 22 U.S.C. § 611(b), which, in turn, includes a “partnership, association, corporation, organization, or other combination of persons organized under the laws of or having its principal place of business in a foreign country.”<sup>32</sup> Commission regulations implementing the Act’s foreign national prohibition provide:

A foreign national shall not direct, dictate, control, or directly or indirectly participate in the decision-making process of any person, such as a corporation, labor organization, political committee, or political organization with regard to such person’s Federal or non-Federal election-related activities, such as decisions concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political committee.<sup>33</sup>

The Commission has explained that this provision also bars foreign nationals from “involvement in the management of a political committee.”<sup>34</sup>

In light of these provisions, Commission regulations permit any person or company — foreign or domestic — to provide goods or services to a political committee, without making a contribution, if that person or company does so as a “commercial vendor,” i.e., in the ordinary course of business, and at the usual and normal charge, as long as foreign nationals do not directly or indirectly participate in any committee’s management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related activities.<sup>35</sup> For example, in MUR 5998, the Commission

---

<sup>32</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(b); 22 U.S.C. § 611(b)(3); see also 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(a)(3).

<sup>33</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

<sup>34</sup> Contribution Limits and Prohibitions, 67 Fed. Reg. 69928, 69946 (Nov. 19, 2002); see also Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 2-3 (Weller) (noting that foreign national prohibition at section 110.20(i) is broad and concluding that, while a foreign national fiancé of the candidate could participate in committees’ activities as a volunteer without making a prohibited contribution, she “must not participate in [the candidate’s] decisions regarding his campaign activities” and “must refrain from managing or participating in the decisions of the Committees.”).

<sup>35</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 114.2(f)(1); see 11 C.F.R. § 116.1(c) (defining “commercial vendor” as “any persons providing goods or services to a candidate or political committee whose usual and normal business involves the sale, rental, lease or provision of those goods or services). The Act defines a contribution to include “anything of value,” which in turn includes all “in-kind contributions,” such as “the provision of any goods or services without charge or at a charge that is less than the usual and normal charge for such goods or services.” 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(d)(1);

found that the foreign national owners of a venue did not make or facilitate a contribution to a political committee by allowing the committee to rent the venue for a fundraising event.<sup>36</sup> The venue at issue was rented out for events in the ordinary course of business, and the owners charged the committee the usual and normal amount for the service.<sup>37</sup> The Commission noted that there was no available information to suggest — and the foreign nationals and political committee expressly denied — that the foreign nationals had any “decision-making role in the event.”<sup>38</sup>

The Commission has found that not all participation by foreign nationals in the election-related activities of others will violate the Act. In MUR 6959, for example, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by performing clerical duties, such as online research and translations, during a one month-long internship with a party committee.<sup>39</sup> Similarly, in MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by volunteering his services to perform at a campaign fundraiser and agreeing to let the political committee use his name and see 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8). Goods or services provided at the usual and normal charge do not constitute a contribution under the Act. However, soliciting, accepting, or receiving information in connection with an election from a foreign national, as opposed to purchasing the information at the usual and normal charge or hiring a foreign national in a bona fide commercial transaction to perform services for a federal campaign, could potentially result in the receipt of a prohibited in-kind contribution.

---

<sup>36</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-6, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild).

<sup>37</sup> Id.

<sup>38</sup> Id. at 5.

<sup>39</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-5, MUR 6959 (Cindy Nava) (noting that the available information, which was based on two press reports that did not detail the foreign national’s activities, did not indicate that the foreign national participated in any political committee’s decision-making process). The Commission also found that a $3,000 stipend that the foreign national received from third parties resulted in an in-kind contribution from the third parties to the committee, but the value of the foreign national volunteer’s services to the committee was not a contribution. Id. at 4-5 (citing 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8)(A)(ii); 11 C.F.R. § 100.54; Advisory Op. 1982-04 (Apodaca)).

likeness in its emails promoting the concert and soliciting support, where the record did not indicate that the foreign national had been involved in the committee's decision-making process in connection with the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements.<sup>40</sup> By contrast, the Commission has consistently found a violation of the foreign national prohibition where foreign national officers or directors of a U.S. company participated in the company's decisions to make contributions or in the management of its separate segregated fund.<sup>41</sup>

2. There is Reason to Believe that Wylie Violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) When He Participated in the Decision-Making Process Regarding Election-Related Activities of Several Political Committees During the 2014 Election Cycle

Cambridge's usual and normal business involved providing data analytics and message targeting services, and there is no specific information suggesting that Cambridge charged any committee less than its usual and normal rate for such services. Even if Cambridge, which was organized under the laws of Delaware and therefore appears to be a domestic company, was, arguendo, a foreign company, it could provide services to a political committee as a commercial vendor without thereby making a contribution to that committee, but foreign nationals may not directly or indirectly participate in any committee's management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related spending.

---

<sup>40</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 6-9, MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015 (Sir Elton John); see also Factual and Legal Analysis at 5, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild); Advisory Op. 2004-26 (Weller).

<sup>41</sup> See, e.g., Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6093 (Transurban Grp.) (U.S. subsidiary violated Act by making contributions after its foreign parent company's board of directors directly participated in determining whether to continue political contributions policy of its U.S. subsidiaries); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6184 (Skyway Concession Company, LLC) (U.S. company violated Act by making contributions after its foreign national CEO participated in company's election-related activities by vetting campaign solicitations or deciding which nonfederal committees would receive company contributions, authorizing release of company funds to make contributions, and signing contribution checks); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 7122 (American Pacific International Capital, Inc. ("APIC")) (U.S. corporation owned by foreign company violated Act by making contribution after its board of directors, which included foreign nationals, approved proposal by U.S. citizen corporate officer to contribute).

1 Wylie, a Cambridge foreign national employee, appears to have participated in the
2 decision-making processes of Cambridge's clients with respect to their election-related activities.
3 Wylie reportedly admits that he "worked on all of the company's U.S. political campaigns in
4 2014,"<sup>42</sup> and that he was personally part of "multiple conference calls in 2014" with Nix and
5 Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which "strategic campaign matters were
6 discussed."<sup>43</sup> During this period of time, Cambridge not only provided political committees with
7 communications and targeting advice, i.e., advice about how to effectively craft tailored
8 communications and target them to receptive voters in order to maximize the messages' impact,
9 but "directed" the committees in their messaging.<sup>44</sup>

10 According to Wylie and internal Cambridge documents, he and other foreign nationals
11 were embedded in political committees and were "instructing campaigns on which messages go
12 where and to who."<sup>45</sup> By providing strategic advice to committees on both the content and target
13 audience for their campaign communications, Wylie may have helped shape political 14 committees' election-related spending decisions.

15 The available information supports a finding that Wylie may have participated in the 16 decision-making processes with regard to election-related activities of the Robinson Committee.
17 In contrast to the circumstances presented in Advisory Opinion 2004-26, it appears that foreign 18 nationals were "managing or participating in the decisions" of the Robinson Committee, because 19 Cambridge, which employed mostly foreigners in 2014, assumed "comprehensive"

---

<sup>42</sup> Schechter Article.

<sup>43</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>44</sup> See, e.g., 2014 Report at 16-17 (describing Cambridge's successful "direction" of the Bolton PAC).

<sup>45</sup> Schechter Article.

responsibilities for the Robinson Committee during the 2014 election cycle, including managing basic campaign functions and providing strategic advice.<sup>46</sup> Even if the Robinson Committee's staff made all final decisions regarding the committee's management and electoral strategy, the record indicates that Wylie participated, either directly or indirectly, in the Committee's management or decision-making process in connection with the its expenditures.

The available information also supports a finding that Wylie may have participated in the decision-making processes in connection with election-related spending of the Tillis Committee, Bolton PAC, and NCRP. Cambridge reportedly provided "polling, focus groups and message development" services for these committees during Thom Tillis's 2014 campaign for the U.S. Senate in North Carolina.<sup>47</sup> Wylie reportedly claims to have worked on all of Cambridge's political campaigns in 2014, including Thom Tillis's campaign.<sup>48</sup> Wylie reportedly admits that "his largely foreign team" instructed the Tillis campaign on its messaging by crafting and targeting the messaging, and that "his" team instructed campaigns on "which messages go where and to who."<sup>49</sup>

Wylie reportedly claims that "three or four full-time [Cambridge] staffers embedded in Tillis's campaign on the ground in Raleigh [and all] of them were foreign nationals."<sup>50</sup> Another former Cambridge employee also claims that most of the Tillis campaign's messaging team was

---

<sup>46</sup> Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 3; 2014 Report at 1.

<sup>47</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

<sup>48</sup> Schechter Article.

<sup>49</sup> Id.

<sup>50</sup> Id.

1 composed of foreign nationals.<sup>51</sup> These assertions indicate that Wylie may have worked with not
2 only the Tillis Committee, but also the NCRP and Bolton PAC in support of Tillis’s campaign
3 for the U.S. Senate. Wylie and other Cambridge employees may also have been embedded with 4 the NCRP to provide targeting advice used to create and distribute communications supporting 5 Tillis’s campaign.<sup>52</sup> Wylie and another former Cambridge employee also contend that
6 Cambridge helped develop data models and message concepts for the Bolton PAC’s
7 communications supporting Tillis during the 2014 election.<sup>53</sup>

8       The key issue is not whether Wylie had final decision-making authority or final say
9 regarding any analysis, but whether he participated, directly or indirectly, in a Cambridge client’s
10 management or decision-making process in connection with its “election-related activities, such 11 as decisions concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements .
12 . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political committee.”<sup>54</sup> Here, the available
13 information supports the conclusion that Wylie may have done both by participating in the 14 committees’ decision-making regarding their communications strategy and expenditures.

15       Based on all of the available information regarding Cambridge’s conduct, and Wylie’s
16 personal involvement in that conduct while working for Cambridge, the Commission finds 17 reason to believe that Wylie violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

---

<sup>51</sup> Id.

<sup>52</sup> Id. Both the Tillis Committee and NCRP rejected Wylie’s claim that Cambridge employees were embedded with Tillis’s authorized committee, asserting instead that Cambridge employees were embedded with the NCRP. Id.; see Timberg Article (“Cambridge Analytica documents show it advised a congressional candidate in Oregon, state legislative candidates in Colorado and, on behalf of the North Carolina Republican Party, the winning campaign for Sen. Thom Tillis.”).

<sup>53</sup> NYT March 23 Article.

<sup>54</sup> 11 CFR 110.20(i).

1 FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

2 FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

3 RESPONDENTS: John Bolton Super PAC and MURs 7351, 7357, and 7382
 4 Cabell Hobbs in his official
 5 capacity as treasurer
 6

7 I. INTRODUCTION

8 This matter was generated by complaints filed with the Federal Election Commission
 9 (“Commission”). See 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(1). The complaints allege that while receiving 10 services from Cambridge Analytica LLC (“Cambridge”) during the 2014 election cycle, the John
 11 Bolton Super PAC and Cabell Hobbs in his official capacity as treasurer (“Bolton PAC”)
 12 violated the provisions of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (“Act”), and 13 Commission regulations that prohibit foreign nationals from directly or indirectly participating in 14 the decision-making process of a political committee’s contributions or expenditures in 15 connection with a federal election.<sup>1</sup> The complaints also allege that the Bolton PAC made 16 coordinated communications with the Thom Tillis Committee and Collin McMichael in his 17 official capacity as treasurer (Tillis Committee”), and the North Carolina Republican Party and 18 Jason Lemons in his official capacity as treasurer (“NCRP”), using Cambridge as a “common 19 vendor.”<sup>2</sup>

20 For the reasons explained fully below, the Commission finds reason to believe that the 21 Bolton PAC violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

---

<sup>1</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. (Mar. 26, 2018); MUR 7382 Compl. (May 10, 2018).

<sup>2</sup> See MUR 7357 Compl. (Mar. 29, 2018) at ¶14, ¶15, ¶28, Ex. A; MUR 7382 Compl. at 4, 6-8; MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶13. The Commission takes no action at this time as to the allegation that the John Bolton Super PAC and Cabell Hobbs in his official capacity as treasurer violated 52 U.S.C. §§ 30116(a), 30118(a), and 11 C.F.R. § 109.21.

II. FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

A. Background

Cambridge is a limited liability company organized in Delaware on December 31, 2013.<sup>3</sup> SCL Group LTD (“SCL”) is based in England and registered in the United Kingdom on July 20, 2005.<sup>4</sup> Cambridge reportedly began working for political committees in the U.S. during the 2014 election cycle.<sup>5</sup> The Complaints allege, based on news reports, that Cambridge was “effectively a shell” and “any contracts won by Cambridge . . . would be serviced by London-based SCL and overseen by [Alexander] Nix, a British citizen,” who is a director of SCL and chief executive of Cambridge.<sup>6</sup> “Most SCL employees and contractors” were reportedly foreign nationals from Canada or Europe.<sup>7</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Cambridge Analytica LLC, Delaware Div. of Corps., <https://icis.corp.delaware.gov/ecorp/entitysearch/NameSearch.aspx> (viewed July 19, 2018).

<sup>4</sup> SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018).

<sup>5</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶¶ 5, 13; Craig Timberg and Tom Hamburger, Former Cambridge Analytica Workers Say Firm Sent Foreigners to Advise U.S. Campaigns, WASH. POST (Mar. 25, 2018), available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/former-cambridge-analytica-workers-say-firm-sent-foreigners-to-advise-us-campaigns/2018/03/25/6a0d7d90-2fa2-11e8-911f-ca7f68bff0fc\_story.html (“Timberg Article”) (cited in MUR 7351 Complaint) (“The company aggressively courted political work beginning in 2014[.]”).

<sup>6</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 16 (citing Matthew Rosenberg, Nicholas Confessore and Carole Cadwalladr, How Trump Consultants Exploited the Facebook Data of Millions, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/17/us/politics/cambridge-analytica-trump-campaign.html> (“NYT March 17 Article”)); Matthew Rosenberg, Cambridge Analytica Suspends C.E.O. Amid Facebook Data Scandal, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 20, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/20/world/europe/cambridge-analytica-ceo-suspended.html> (“[The SCL Group and Cambridge Analytica] were set up with a convoluted corporate structure, and their operations are deeply intertwined. Mr. Nix, for instance, holds dual appointments at the two companies. Cambridge Analytica is registered in Delaware . . . but it is effectively a shell — it holds intellectual property rights to its psychographic modeling tools, yet its clients are served by the staff at London-based SCL and overseen by Mr. Nix, who is a British citizen.”); see also SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098/officers> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018) (listing Nix as SCL director from 2005-2012 and from 2016-2018).

<sup>7</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

1 According to former employees quoted in media reports, during the 2014 election cycle,
 2 Cambridge, like SCL, was “overwhelmingly staffed by non-U.S. citizens,”<sup>8</sup> at least two of whom
 3 “were still answering ultimately to [Alexander] Nix” while working for U.S. political
 4 committees.<sup>9</sup> Christopher Wylie, who worked for Cambridge during the 2014 election cycle and
 5 is a foreign national, reportedly asserts that he and “many foreign nationals worked on the
 6 campaigns, and many were embedded in the campaigns around the U.S.”<sup>10</sup> Wylie also asserts
 7 that he was personally part of “multiple conference calls in 2014” with Nix and Stephen K.
 8 Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which “strategic campaign matters were discussed.”<sup>11</sup>
 9 According to Wylie, on some of these calls, Cambridge’s leaders discussed whether the company
 10 was violating federal law by using foreign nationals to work on American political campaigns.<sup>12</sup>
 11 However, Cambridge reportedly provided no compliance training for its foreign employees on

---

<sup>8</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>9</sup> Carole Cadwalladr and Emma Graham-Harrison, Staff Claim Cambridge Analytica Ignored US Ban on Foreigners Working on Elections, GUARDIAN (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2018/mar/17/cambridge-analytica-non-american-employees-political> (“Guardian Article”).

<sup>10</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 26 (citing Anna R. Schechter, Wylie: Foreigners Worked for Cambridge Analytica on NC Senate Campaign, NBC NEWS (Mar. 23, 2018), available at <https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/elections/wylie-foreigners-worked-cambridge-analytica-nc-senate-campaign-n859526> (“Schechter Article”). Wylie apparently played a significant role in founding Cambridge. See NYT March 17 Article (“[Wylie] helped found Cambridge and worked there until late 2014.”). Wylie reportedly left Cambridge at the end of the 2014 election cycle, although there is some dispute as to precisely when he left the company. Schechter Article (“Cambridge has said that Wylie left the company in July 2014. Wylie [claims that] while he gave notice in July, he continued to work for the company until just before the elections on Nov. 4, 2014.”).

<sup>11</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 30 (quoting Timberg Article). Both Nix and Bannon, along with three others, are described by an internal Cambridge legal memorandum as “managers” of Cambridge; the memorandum notes that “Cambridge is currently being managed day to day by Mr. Nix,” a foreign national. CONFIDENTIAL MEMORANDUM FROM LAURENCE LEVY TO REBEKAH MERCER, STEVE BANNON, AND ALEXANDER NIX at 6 (July 22, 2014), available at <http://cdn.cnn.com/cnn/2018/images/03/26/levy.memo.pdf> (discussed in Schechter Article).

<sup>12</sup> Timberg Article.

what conduct to avoid in order to comply with federal law while working for U.S. political committees.<sup>13</sup>

The primary service that Cambridge offered its clients was a form of voter targeting that it described as “psychological profiling to reach voters with individually tailored messages.”<sup>14</sup> Cambridge allegedly employed many foreign national data scientists, including Dr. Alexander Tayler, who led the data science team as the company’s Chief Data Officer.<sup>15</sup> Cambridge reportedly helped political committees “decide what voters to target with political messages and what messages to deliver to them,” while also offering additional services such as “fundraising, planning events, and providing communications strategy[.]”<sup>16</sup> Wylie asserts that he and other foreign nationals working for Cambridge “weren’t just working on messaging” but “were instructing campaigns on which messages go where and to who.”<sup>17</sup> Other employees have supported this assertion, claiming that Cambridge “didn’t handle only data” but worked on message development and targeting strategy.<sup>18</sup>

---

<sup>13</sup> Guardian Article (“There were no briefings on the kind of work that non-US citizens should avoid, or warnings about the legal risks.”).

<sup>14</sup> Timberg Article; see also Sasha Issenberg, Cruz-Connected Data Miner Aims to Get Inside U.S. Voters’ Heads, BLOOMBERG (Nov. 12, 2015), available at <https://www.bloomberg.com/news/features/2015-11-12/is-the-republican-party-s-killer-data-app-for-real-> (“Issenberg Article”) (“Cambridge Analytica’s trophy product is ‘psychographic profiles’ of every potential voter in the U.S. interwoven with more conventional political data. The emphasis on psychology helps to differentiate the Brits from other companies that specialized in ‘microtargeting,’ a catch-all term typically used to describe any analysis that uses statistical modeling to predict voter intent at the individual level.”).

<sup>15</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 9.

<sup>16</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 28 (quoting Timberg Article).

<sup>17</sup> Id. at ¶ 26 (quoting Schecter Article).

<sup>18</sup> Timberg Article.

During the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge worked for several political committees, including the Bolton PAC, an independent-expenditure-only political committee (“IEOPC”).<sup>19</sup> The Bolton PAC reportedly hired Cambridge to perform a variety of tasks, from data modeling to designing “concepts for advertisements for candidates supported by Mr. Bolton’s PAC, including the 2014 campaign of Thom Tillis[.]”<sup>20</sup> According to Cambridge internal documents that Wylie publicized, the Bolton PAC used Cambridge to “provide messaging and communications support” and “made use of significant input from SCL on messaging and target audiences.”<sup>21</sup> The Bolton PAC’s “media teams took direction well and worked with Harris MacLeod (SCL) to ensure each message was tailored in a way that would resonate with its target.”<sup>22</sup> Cambridge also provided “[d]irection and feedback on all creative [content]” and the Bolton PAC’s “creative teams were given further guidance based on which messages resonated most with target groups.”<sup>23</sup> Cambridge also reportedly drafted talking points for Ambassador John Bolton to use to describe the services Cambridge was providing to his eponymous political committee.<sup>24</sup>

---

<sup>19</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 13.

<sup>20</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 33 (quoting Matthew Rosenberg, Bolton Was Early Beneficiary of Cambridge Analytica’s Facebook Data, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 23, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/23/us/politics/bolton-cambridge-analyticas-facebook-data.html> (“NYT March 23 Article”)).

<sup>21</sup> Cambridge Analytica 2014 Activity Summary Report at 16, available at <https://www.washingtonpost.com/apps/g/page/politics/2014-cambridge-analytica-report-on-congressional-and-legislative-races/2294/> (“2014 Report”); see also Timberg Article (discussing and linking to 2014 Report, among other Cambridge documents).

<sup>22</sup> 2014 Report at 16-17. MacLeod is allegedly a Canadian foreign national. See Issenberg Article at 2 (“Harris MacLeod [is] a Nova Scotian who worked as a political journalist in Ottawa [and] spent much of 2014 working for Cambridge Analytica’s marquee American clients. Harris worked for John Bolton’s super-PAC[.]”).

<sup>23</sup> 2014 Report at 17; see also Issenberg Article at 8 (“[Cambridge Analytica] advised Bolton’s team on the design of six ads, thirty seconds each, with wildly different creative approaches. One ad, targeted at voters modeled to be conscientious and agreeable, was set to upbeat music and showed Bolton standing outdoors on a bright day, matter-of-factly addressing the need to ‘leave a stronger, safer America for our children.’”).

<sup>24</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 33 (quoting NYT March 23 Article).

The Bolton PAC asserts that Cambridge employees did not have “direct or indirect decision-making authority” and that Bolton personally was the “sole decision maker” for the Bolton PAC, and while acknowledging that a Cambridge employee working for the Bolton PAC “may have been a foreign national,” it claims that only U.S. citizens had “final say” over any analysis that factored into the committee’s decisions.<sup>25</sup>

B. Legal Analysis

Foreign Nationals May Not Directly or Indirectly Make Contributions, Donations, Expenditures, or Disbursements

The Act and Commission regulations prohibit any “foreign national” from directly or indirectly making a contribution or donation of money or other thing of value, or an expenditure, independent expenditure, or disbursement, in connection with a federal, state, or local election.<sup>26</sup> The Act’s definition of “foreign national” includes an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States and who is not lawfully admitted for permanent residence, as well as a “foreign principal” as defined at 22 U.S.C. § 611(b), which, in turn, includes a “partnership, association, corporation, organization, or other combination of persons organized under the laws of or having its principal place of business in a foreign country.”<sup>27</sup> Commission regulations implementing the Act’s foreign national prohibition provide:

---

<sup>25</sup> Resp. of Bolton PAC at 5, 7 (Sept. 7, 2018); see id., Ex. A ¶¶ 9-11 (“At no time did Cambridge Analytica, or any of its employees[,] have any direct or indirect decision-making authority over the activities of the John Bolton Super PAC. In fact, Ambassador Bolton was the sole decision maker for the John Bolton Super PAC[, and] information conveyed to Ambassador Bolton from Cambridge Analytica was first analyzed and then delivered by [Bolton PAC general consultant] Campaign Solutions and [Bolton PAC Director Sarah] Tinsley.”).

<sup>26</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(1); 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(b), (c), (e), (f). Courts have consistently upheld the provisions of the Act prohibiting foreign national contributions on the ground that the government has a clear, compelling interest in limiting the influence of foreigners over the activities and processes that are integral to democratic self-government, which include making political contributions and express-advocacy expenditures. See Bluman v. FEC, 800 F. Supp. 2d 281, 288-89 (D.D.C. 2011), aff’d 132 S. Ct. 1087 (2012); United States v. Singh, 924 F.3d 1030, 1040-44 (9th Cir. 2019).

<sup>27</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(b); 22 U.S.C. § 611(b)(3); see also 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(a)(3).

1 A foreign national shall not direct, dictate, control, or directly or indirectly
 2 participate in the decision-making process of any person, such as a corporation,
 3 labor organization, political committee, or political organization with regard to
 4 such person's Federal or non-Federal election-related activities, such as decisions
 5 concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or
 6 disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political 7 committee.<sup>28</sup>

8
 9 The Commission has explained that this provision also bars foreign nationals from “involvement
 10 in the management of a political committee.”<sup>29</sup>

11 In light of these provisions, Commission regulations permit any person or company —
 12 foreign or domestic — to provide goods or services to a political committee, without making a
 13 contribution, if that person or company does so as a “commercial vendor,” i.e., in the ordinary
 14 course of business, and at the usual and normal charge, as long as foreign nationals do not
 15 directly or indirectly participate in any committee's management or decision-making process in
 16 connection with its election-related activities.<sup>30</sup> For example, in MUR 5998, the Commission
 17 found that the foreign national owners of a venue did not make or facilitate a contribution to a
 18 political committee by allowing the committee to rent the venue for a fundraising event.<sup>31</sup> The

---

<sup>28</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

<sup>29</sup> Contribution Limits and Prohibitions, 67 Fed. Reg. 69928, 69946 (Nov. 19, 2002); see also Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 2-3 (Weller) (noting that foreign national prohibition at section 110.20(i) is broad and concluding that, while a foreign national fiancé of the candidate could participate in committees' activities as a volunteer without making a prohibited contribution, she “must not participate in [the candidate's] decisions regarding his campaign activities” and “must refrain from managing or participating in the decisions of the Committees.”).

<sup>30</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 114.2(f)(1); see 11 C.F.R. § 116.1(c) (defining “commercial vendor” as “any persons providing goods or services to a candidate or political committee whose usual and normal business involves the sale, rental, lease or provision of those goods or services). The Act defines a contribution to include “anything of value,” which in turn includes all “in-kind contributions,” such as “the provision of any goods or services without charge or at a charge that is less than the usual and normal charge for such goods or services.” 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(d)(1); see 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8). Goods or services provided at the usual and normal charge do not constitute a contribution under the Act. However, soliciting, accepting, or receiving information in connection with an election from a foreign national, as opposed to purchasing the information at the usual and normal charge or hiring a foreign national in a bona fide commercial transaction to perform services for a federal campaign, could potentially result in the receipt of a prohibited in-kind contribution.

<sup>31</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-6, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild).

venue at issue was rented out for events in the ordinary course of business, and the owners charged the committee the usual and normal amount for the service.<sup>32</sup> The Commission noted that there was no available information to suggest — and the foreign nationals and political committee expressly denied — that the foreign nationals had any “decision-making role in the event.”<sup>33</sup>

The Commission has found that not all participation by foreign nationals in the election-related activities of others will violate the Act. In MUR 6959, for example, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by performing clerical duties, such as online research and translations, during a one month-long internship with a party committee.<sup>34</sup> Similarly, in MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by volunteering his services to perform at a campaign fundraiser and agreeing to let a political committee use his name and likeness in its emails promoting the concert and soliciting support, where the record did not indicate that the foreign national had been involved in the committee’s decision-making process in connection with the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements.<sup>35</sup> By contrast, the Commission has consistently found a violation of the foreign national prohibition

---

<sup>32</sup> Id.

<sup>33</sup> Id. at 5.

<sup>34</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-5, MUR 6959 (Cindy Nava) (noting that the available information, which was based on two press reports that did not detail the foreign national’s activities, did not actually indicate that the foreign national participated in any political committee’s decision-making process). The Commission also found that a $3,000 stipend that the foreign national received from third parties resulted in an in-kind contribution from the third parties to the committee, but the value of the foreign national volunteer’s services to the committee was not a contribution. Id. at 4-5 (citing 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8)(A)(ii); 11 C.F.R. § 100.54; Advisory Op. 1982-04 (Apodaca)).

<sup>35</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 6-9, MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015 (Sir Elton John); see also Factual and Legal Analysis at 5, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild); Advisory Op. 2004-26 (Weller).

where foreign national officers or directors of a U.S. company participated in the company's decisions to make contributions or in the management of its separate segregated fund.<sup>36</sup>

Cambridge's usual and normal business involved providing data analytics and message targeting services, and there is no specific information suggesting that Cambridge charged any committee less than its usual and normal rate for such services. Even if Cambridge, which was organized under the laws of Delaware and therefore appears to be a domestic company, was, arguendo, a foreign company, it could provide services to a political committee as a commercial vendor without thereby making a contribution to that committee, but foreign nationals may not directly or indirectly participate in any committee's management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related spending.

Wylie, a Cambridge foreign national employee, appears to have participated in the decision-making processes of Cambridge's clients in connection with their management or election-related spending. Wylie reportedly admits that he "worked on all of the company's U.S. political campaigns in 2014,"<sup>37</sup> and that he was personally part of "multiple conference calls in 2014" with Nix and Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which "strategic campaign matters were discussed."<sup>38</sup> During this period of time, Cambridge not only provided

---

<sup>36</sup> See, e.g., Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6093 (Transurban Grp.) (U.S. subsidiary violated Act by making contributions after its foreign parent company's board of directors directly participated in determining whether to continue political contributions policy of its U.S. subsidiaries); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6184 (Skyway Concession Company, LLC) (U.S. company violated Act by making contributions after its foreign national CEO participated in company's election-related activities by vetting campaign solicitations or deciding which nonfederal committees would receive company contributions, authorizing release of company funds to make contributions, and signing contribution checks); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 7122 (American Pacific International Capital, Inc. ("APIC")) (U.S. corporation owned by foreign company violated Act by making contribution after its board of directors, which included foreign nationals, approved proposal by U.S. citizen corporate officer to contribute).

<sup>37</sup> Schecter Article.

<sup>38</sup> Timberg Article.

1 political committees with communications and targeting advice, i.e., advice about how to
2 effectively craft tailored communications and target them to receptive voters in order to
3 maximize the messages' impact, but "directed" the committees in their messaging.<sup>39</sup>

4 According to Wylie and internal Cambridge documents, he and other foreign nationals
5 were embedded in political committees and were "instructing campaigns on which messages go
6 where and to who."<sup>40</sup> By providing strategic advice to committees on both the content and target
7 audience for their campaign communications, these foreign nationals may have helped shape
8 political committees' election-related spending decisions.

9 The available information supports a finding that Wylie or other foreign national
10 Cambridge employees may have participated, directly or indirectly, in the Bolton PAC's
11 management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related spending.
12 Cambridge reportedly provided "polling, focus groups and message development" services for 13 the Bolton PAC during Thom Tillis's 2014 campaign for the U.S. Senate in North Carolina.<sup>41</sup>
14 Wylie reportedly claims that "three or four full-time [Cambridge] staffers embedded in Tillis's
15 campaign on the ground in Raleigh [and all] of them were foreign nationals."<sup>42</sup> These assertions, 16 indicate that Wylie and other Cambridge foreign national employees may have worked with 17 several committees, including the Bolton PAC, in support of Tillis's campaign for the U.S.
18 Senate. Wylie and another former Cambridge employee also reportedly contend that Cambridge

---

<sup>39</sup> See, e.g., 2014 Report at 16-17 (describing Cambridge's successful "direction" of the Bolton PAC).

<sup>40</sup> Schechter Article.

<sup>41</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

<sup>42</sup> Schechter Article.

1 helped develop data models and message concepts for the Bolton PAC's communications
2 supporting Tillis during the 2014 election.<sup>43</sup>

3         The Bolton PAC's denial of these allegations is contradicted by the information
4 provided by internal Cambridge documents, as well as the statements from Wylie and other
5 foreign national Cambridge employees. Despite the Bolton PAC's assertions that only U.S.
6 citizens had "final say" over any analysis that factored into its decisions and that Cambridge did
7 not have direct or indirect decision-making authority over the Bolton PAC's activities,<sup>44</sup> the key
8 issue is not whether Wylie or any other foreign national had direct or indirect decision-making
9 authority or final say regarding any analysis, but whether a foreign national participated, directly
10 or indirectly, in the Bolton PAC's management or decision-making process in connection with 11 its "election-related activities, such as decisions concerning the making of contributions,
12 donations, expenditures, or disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a
13 political committee."<sup>45</sup> Here, the available information, which includes Cambridge's
14 documented admission that it was directing the Bolton PAC's communications decisions, 15 supports the conclusion that foreign nationals provided strategic communications and targeting 16 advice, which the Bolton PAC used to determine how to most effectively utilize its resources, 17 and thus foreign nationals participated in a decision-making process in connection with the 18 committee's election-related spending.

19         Based on all of the available information regarding the direct or indirect participation of 20 foreign nationals in a decision-making process in connection with the Bolton PAC's election-

---

<sup>43</sup>         NYT March 23 Article.

<sup>44</sup>         Resp. of Bolton PAC at 7; see id., Ex. A ¶¶ 9-11.

<sup>45</sup>         11 CFR 110.20(i).

MURs 7351, 7357, and 7382 (John Bolton Super PAC)

Factual and Legal Analysis

Page 12 of 12

1 related spending, the Commission finds reason to believe that the Bolton PAC violated 52 U.S.C.
2 § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

3

FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

RESPONDENTS: Art Robinson for Congress and MUR 7351
 Art Robinson in his official capacity
 as treasurer

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter was generated by a complaint filed with the Federal Election Commission (“Commission”). See 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(1). The complaint alleges that Art Robinson for Congress and Art Robinson in his official capacity as treasurer (the “Robinson Committee”) violated the provisions of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (“Act”), and Commission regulations that prohibit foreign nationals from directly or indirectly participating in the decision-making process of a political committee’s contributions or expenditures in connection with a federal election. These allegations stem from services that Cambridge Analytica LLC (“Cambridge”) provided to the Robinson Committee during the 2014 election cycle.<sup>1</sup> For the reasons explained fully below, the Commission finds reason to believe that the Robinson Committee violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

II. FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

A. Background

Cambridge is a limited liability company organized in Delaware on December 31, 2013.<sup>2</sup> SCL Group LTD (“SCL”) is based in England and registered in the United Kingdom on July 20, 2005.<sup>3</sup> Cambridge reportedly began working for political committees in the U.S. during the

---

<sup>1</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. (Mar. 26, 2018).

<sup>2</sup> Cambridge Analytica LLC, Delaware Div. of Corps., <https://icis.corp.delaware.gov/ecorp/entitysearch/NameSearch.aspx> (viewed July 19, 2018).

<sup>3</sup> SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018).

2014 election cycle.<sup>4</sup> The Complaints allege, based on news reports, that Cambridge was “effectively a shell” and “any contracts won by Cambridge . . . would be serviced by London-based SCL and overseen by [Alexander] Nix, a British citizen,” who is a director of SCL and chief executive of Cambridge.<sup>5</sup> “Most SCL employees and contractors” were reportedly foreign nationals from Canada or Europe.<sup>6</sup>

According to former employees quoted in media reports, during the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge, like SCL, was “overwhelmingly staffed by non-U.S. citizens,”<sup>7</sup> at least two of whom “were still answering ultimately to [Alexander] Nix” while working for U.S. political committees.<sup>8</sup> Christopher Wylie, who worked for Cambridge during the 2014 election cycle and is a foreign national, reportedly asserts that he and “many foreign nationals worked on the

---

<sup>4</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶¶ 5, 13; Craig Timberg and Tom Hamburger, Former Cambridge Analytica Workers Say Firm Sent Foreigners to Advise U.S. Campaigns, WASH. POST (Mar. 25, 2018), available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/former-cambridge-analytica-workers-say-firm-sent-foreigners-to-advise-us-campaigns/2018/03/25/6a0d7d90-2fa2-11e8-911f-ca7f68bfff0fc\_story.html (“Timberg Article”) (cited in MUR 7351 Complaint) (“The company aggressively courted political work beginning in 2014[.]”).

<sup>5</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 16 (citing Matthew Rosenberg, Nicholas Confessore and Carole Cadwalladr, How Trump Consultants Exploited the Facebook Data of Millions, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/17/us/politics/cambridge-analytica-trump-campaign.html> (“NYT March 17 Article”)); Matthew Rosenberg, Cambridge Analytica Suspends C.E.O. Amid Facebook Data Scandal, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 20, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/20/world/europe/cambridge-analytica-ceo-suspended.html> (“[The SCL Group and Cambridge Analytica] were set up with a convoluted corporate structure, and their operations are deeply intertwined. Mr. Nix, for instance, holds dual appointments at the two companies. Cambridge Analytica is registered in Delaware . . . but it is effectively a shell — it holds intellectual property rights to its psychographic modeling tools, yet its clients are served by the staff at London-based SCL and overseen by Mr. Nix, who is a British citizen.”); see also SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098/officers> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018) (listing Nix as SCL director from 2005-2012 and from 2016-2018).

<sup>6</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

<sup>7</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>8</sup> Carole Cadwalladr and Emma Graham-Harrison, Staff Claim Cambridge Analytica Ignored US Ban on Foreigners Working on Elections, GUARDIAN (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2018/mar/17/cambridge-analytica-non-american-employees-political> (“Guardian Article”).

campaigns, and many were embedded in the campaigns around the U.S.”<sup>9</sup> Wylie also asserts that he was personally part of “multiple conference calls in 2014” with Nix and Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which “strategic campaign matters were discussed.”<sup>10</sup> According to Wylie, on some of these calls, Cambridge’s leaders discussed whether the company was violating federal law by using foreign nationals to work on American political campaigns.<sup>11</sup> However, Cambridge reportedly provided no compliance training for its foreign employees on what conduct to avoid in order to comply with federal law while working for U.S. political committees.<sup>12</sup>

The primary service that Cambridge offered its clients was a form of voter targeting that it described as “psychological profiling to reach voters with individually tailored messages.”<sup>13</sup> Cambridge allegedly employed many foreign national data scientists, including Dr. Alexander

---

<sup>9</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 26 (citing Anna R. Schechter, Wylie: Foreigners Worked for Cambridge Analytica on NC Senate Campaign, NBC NEWS (Mar. 23, 2018), available at <https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/elections/wylie-foreigners-worked-cambridge-analytica-nc-senate-campaign-n859526> (“Schechter Article”). Wylie apparently played a significant role in founding Cambridge. See NYT March 17 Article (“[Wylie] helped found Cambridge and worked there until late 2014.”). Wylie reportedly left Cambridge at the end of the 2014 election cycle, although there is some dispute as to precisely when he left the company. Schechter Article (“Cambridge has said that Wylie left the company in July 2014. Wylie [claims that] while he gave notice in July, he continued to work for the company until just before the elections on Nov. 4, 2014.”).

<sup>10</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 30 (quoting Timberg Article). Both Nix and Bannon, along with three others, are described by an internal Cambridge legal memorandum as “managers” of Cambridge; the memorandum notes that “Cambridge is currently being managed day to day by Mr. Nix,” a foreign national. CONFIDENTIAL MEMORANDUM FROM LAURENCE LEVY TO REBEKAH MERCER, STEVE BANNON, AND ALEXANDER NIX at 6 (July 22, 2014), available at <http://cdn.cnn.com/cnn/2018/images/03/26/levy.memo.pdf> (discussed in Schechter Article).

<sup>11</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>12</sup> Guardian Article (“There were no briefings on the kind of work that non-US citizens should avoid, or warnings about the legal risks.”).

<sup>13</sup> Timberg Article; see also Sasha Issenberg, Cruz-Connected Data Miner Aims to Get Inside U.S. Voters’ Heads, BLOOMBERG (Nov. 12, 2015), available at <https://www.bloomberg.com/news/features/2015-11-12/is-the-republican-party-s-killer-data-app-for-real-> (“Issenberg Article”) (“Cambridge Analytica’s trophy product is ‘psychographic profiles’ of every potential voter in the U.S. interwoven with more conventional political data. The emphasis on psychology helps to differentiate the Brits from other companies that specialized in ‘microtargeting,’ a catch-all term typically used to describe any analysis that uses statistical modeling to predict voter intent at the individual level.”).

Tayler, who led the data science team as the company’s Chief Data Officer.<sup>14</sup> Cambridge reportedly helped political committees “decide what voters to target with political messages and what messages to deliver to them,” while also offering additional services such as “fundraising, planning events, and providing communications strategy[.]”<sup>15</sup> Wylie asserts that he and other foreign nationals working for Cambridge “weren’t just working on messaging” but “were instructing campaigns on which messages go where and to who.”<sup>16</sup> Other employees have supported this assertion, claiming that Cambridge “didn’t handle only data” but worked on message development and targeting strategy.<sup>17</sup>

During the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge worked for several political committees, including the Robinson Committee, Arthur Robinson’s authorized campaign committee in Oregon’s 4th Congressional District.<sup>18</sup> For the Robinson Committee, Cambridge states that it took on a “comprehensive set of responsibilities and effectively managed the campaign in its entirety, with strategic advice channeled through US nationals on the [Cambridge-SCL] team.”<sup>19</sup> Cambridge’s 2014 internal assessment report noted that although the Robinson Committee hired Cambridge to provide “supportive intervention to augment an existing campaign infrastructure[,] . . . on the ground, it became clear that no such professional ‘campaign team’

---

<sup>14</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 9.

<sup>15</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 28 (quoting Timberg Article).

<sup>16</sup> Id. at ¶ 26 (quoting Schechter Article).

<sup>17</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>18</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 13.

<sup>19</sup> Cambridge Analytica 2014 Activity Summary Report at 1, available at <https://www.washingtonpost.com/apps/g/page/politics/2014-cambridge-analytica-report-on-congressional-and-legislative-races/2294/> (“2014 Report”); see MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 31 (quoting Timberg Article).

1 existed[.]”<sup>20</sup> As such, Cambridge supplied a wide range of deliverables, such as
 2 “communications strategy, including key topics and slogans[,] talking points, speeches, planning
 3 for events and candidate travels[,]” and management of a range of campaign functions from 4 canvassing to social media engagement.<sup>21</sup>

5 Robinson, who responded on behalf of his authorized committee, asserts that all
 6 “resource allocation and campaign decisions” concerning the committee’s election activity were
 7 “made by our campaign” but acknowledges that in formulating those decisions, the Robinson
 8 Committee “listened to advice from many individuals and organizations, including Cambridge
 9 Analytica.”<sup>22</sup>

10 B. Legal Analysis

11 1. Foreign Nationals May Not Directly or Indirectly Make Contributions, 12 Donations, Expenditures, or Disbursements

13 The Act and Commission regulations prohibit any “foreign national” from directly or
 14 indirectly making a contribution or donation of money or other thing of value, or an expenditure,
 15 independent expenditure, or disbursement, in connection with a federal, state, or local election.<sup>23</sup>
 16 The Act’s definition of “foreign national” includes an individual who is not a citizen or national
 17 of the United States and who is not lawfully admitted for permanent residence, as well as a
 18 “foreign principal” as defined at 22 U.S.C. § 611(b), which, in turn, includes a “partnership,

---

<sup>20</sup> 2014 Report at 2.

<sup>21</sup> Id. at 4.

<sup>22</sup> Arthur Robinson Resp. at 1-2 (Apr. 18, 2018).

<sup>23</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(1); 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(b), (c), (e), (f). Courts have consistently upheld the provisions of the Act prohibiting foreign national contributions on the ground that the government has a clear, compelling interest in limiting the influence of foreigners over the activities and processes that are integral to democratic self-government, which include making political contributions and express-advocacy expenditures. See Bluman v. FEC, 800 F. Supp. 2d 281, 288-89 (D.D.C. 2011), aff’d 132 S. Ct. 1087 (2012); United States v. Singh, 924 F.3d 1030, 1040-44 (9th Cir. 2019).

association, corporation, organization, or other combination of persons organized under the laws of or having its principal place of business in a foreign country.”<sup>24</sup> Commission regulations implementing the Act’s foreign national prohibition provide:

A foreign national shall not direct, dictate, control, or directly or indirectly participate in the decision-making process of any person, such as a corporation, labor organization, political committee, or political organization with regard to such person’s Federal or non-Federal election-related activities, such as decisions concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political committee.<sup>25</sup>

The Commission has explained that this provision also bars foreign nationals from “involvement in the management of a political committee.”<sup>26</sup>

In light of these provisions, Commission regulations permit any person or company — foreign or domestic — to provide goods or services to a political committee, without making a contribution, if that person or company does so as a “commercial vendor,” i.e., in the ordinary course of business, and at the usual and normal charge, as long as foreign nationals do not directly or indirectly participate in any committee’s management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related activities.<sup>27</sup> For example, in MUR 5998, the Commission

---

<sup>24</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(b); 22 U.S.C. § 611(b)(3); see also 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(a)(3).

<sup>25</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

<sup>26</sup> Contribution Limits and Prohibitions, 67 Fed. Reg. 69928, 69946 (Nov. 19, 2002); see also Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 2-3 (Weller) (noting that foreign national prohibition at section 110.20(i) is broad and concluding that, while a foreign national fiancé of the candidate could participate in committees’ activities as a volunteer without making a prohibited contribution, she “must not participate in [the candidate’s] decisions regarding his campaign activities” and “must refrain from managing or participating in the decisions of the Committees.”).

<sup>27</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 114.2(f)(1); see 11 C.F.R. § 116.1(c) (defining “commercial vendor” as “any persons providing goods or services to a candidate or political committee whose usual and normal business involves the sale, rental, lease or provision of those goods or services). The Act defines a contribution to include “anything of value,” which in turn includes all “in-kind contributions,” such as “the provision of any goods or services without charge or at a charge that is less than the usual and normal charge for such goods or services.” 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(d)(1); see 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8). Goods or services provided at the usual and normal charge do not constitute a contribution under the Act. However, soliciting, accepting, or receiving information in connection with an election from a foreign national, as opposed to purchasing the information at the usual and normal charge or hiring a foreign

found that the foreign national owners of a venue did not make or facilitate a contribution to a political committee by allowing the committee to rent the venue for a fundraising event.<sup>28</sup> The venue at issue was rented out for events in the ordinary course of business, and the owners charged the committee the usual and normal amount for the service.<sup>29</sup> The Commission noted that there was no available information to suggest — and the foreign nationals and political committee expressly denied — that the foreign nationals had any “decision-making role in the event.”<sup>30</sup>

The Commission has found that not all participation by foreign nationals in the election-related activities of others will violate the Act. In MUR 6959, for example, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by performing clerical duties, such as online research and translations, during a one month-long internship with a party committee.<sup>31</sup> Similarly, in MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by volunteering his services to perform at a campaign fundraiser and agreeing to let the political committee use his name and likeness in its emails promoting the concert and soliciting support, where the record did not indicate that the foreign national had been involved in the committee’s decision-making process

---

national in a bona fide commercial transaction to perform services for a federal campaign, could potentially result in the receipt of a prohibited in-kind contribution.

<sup>28</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-6, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild).

<sup>29</sup> Id.

<sup>30</sup> Id. at 5.

<sup>31</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-5, MUR 6959 (Cindy Nava) (noting that the available information, which was based on two press reports that did not detail the foreign national’s activities, did not indicate that the foreign national participated in any political committee’s decision-making process). The Commission also found that a $3,000 stipend that the foreign national received from third parties resulted in an in-kind contribution from the third parties to the committee, but the value of the foreign national volunteer’s services to the committee was not a contribution. Id. at 4-5 (citing 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8)(A)(ii); 11 C.F.R. § 100.54; Advisory Op. 1982-04 (Apodaca).

1 in connection with the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements.<sup>32</sup> By
 2 contrast, the Commission has consistently found a violation of the foreign national prohibition
 3 where foreign national officers or directors of a U.S. company participated in the company's
 4 decisions to make contributions or in the management of its separate segregated fund.<sup>33</sup>

5           2.       There is Reason to Believe that the Robinson Committee Violated
 6                    52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) When Foreign Nationals
 7                    Directly or Indirectly Participated in a Decision-Making Process
 8                    Regarding the Committee's Election-Related Activities

9           Cambridge's usual and normal business involved providing data analytics and message
 10 targeting services, and there is no specific information suggesting that Cambridge charged any 11 committee less than its usual and normal rate for such services. Even if Cambridge, which was
 12 organized under the laws of Delaware and therefore appears to be a domestic company, was,
 13 arguendo, a foreign company, it could provide services to a political committee as a commercial
 14 vendor without thereby making a contribution to that committee, but foreign nationals may not 15 directly or indirectly participate in any committee's management or decision-making process in
 16 connection with its election-related spending.

17           Wylie, a Cambridge foreign national employee, appears to have participated in the 18 decision-making processes of Cambridge's clients with respect to their election-related activities.

---

<sup>32</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 6-9, MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015 (Hillary Clinton for President); see also Factual and Legal Analysis at 5, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild); Advisory Op. 2004-26 (Weller).

<sup>33</sup> See, e.g., Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6093 (Transurban Grp.) (U.S. subsidiary violated Act by making contributions after its foreign parent company's board of directors directly participated in determining whether to continue political contributions policy of its U.S. subsidiaries); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6184 (Skyway Concession Company, LLC) (U.S. company violated Act by making contributions after its foreign national CEO participated in company's election-related activities by vetting campaign solicitations or deciding which nonfederal committees would receive company contributions, authorizing release of company funds to make contributions, and signing contribution checks); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 7122 (American Pacific International Capital, Inc. ("APIC")) (U.S. corporation owned by foreign company violated Act by making contribution after its board of directors, which included foreign nationals, approved proposal by U.S. citizen corporate officer to contribute).

1 Wylie reportedly admits that he “worked on all of the company’s U.S. political campaigns in
2 2014,”<sup>34</sup> and that he was personally part of “multiple conference calls in 2014” with Nix and
3 Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which “strategic campaign matters were
4 discussed.”<sup>35</sup> During this period of time, Cambridge not only provided political committees with
5 communications and targeting advice, i.e., advice about how to effectively craft tailored
6 communications and target them to receptive voters in order to maximize the messages’ impact,
7 but “directed” the committees in their messaging.<sup>36</sup>

8 According to Wylie and internal Cambridge documents, he and other foreign nationals
9 were embedded in political committees and were “instructing campaigns on which messages go
10 where and to who.”<sup>37</sup> By providing strategic advice to committees on both the content and target
11 audience for their campaign communications, Wylie may have helped shape political
12 committees’ election-related spending decisions.

13 The available information supports a finding that Wylie or other foreign national 14 Cambridge employees may have participated in the decision-making processes with regard to 15 election-related activities of the Robinson Committee. In contrast to the circumstances presented 16 in Advisory Opinion 2004-26, it appears that foreign nationals were “managing or participating 17 in the decisions” of the Robinson Committee, because Cambridge, which employed mostly
18 foreigners in 2014, assumed “comprehensive” responsibilities for the Robinson Committee
19 during the 2014 election cycle, including managing basic campaign functions and providing

---

<sup>34</sup> Schechter Article.

<sup>35</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>36</sup> See, e.g., 2014 Report at 16-17 (describing Cambridge’s successful “direction” of the Bolton PAC).

<sup>37</sup> Schechter Article.

1 strategic advice.<sup>38</sup> Robinson acknowledges that Cambridge, through its foreign national
2 employees, was at least indirectly participating in a decision-making process material to the 3 committee's election-related spending.<sup>39</sup> Even if, as Robinson contends, the Robinson
4 Committee's staff made all final decisions regarding the committee's management and electoral
5 strategy, the record indicates that Wylie or other foreign national Cambridge employees
6 participated, either directly or indirectly, in the Robinson Committee's management or decision-
7 making process in connection with its expenditures.

8         Based on the available information regarding the direct or indirect participation of foreign
9 nationals in a decision-making process with respect to the Robinson Committee's election-
10 related activity, the Commission finds reason to believe that the Robinson Committee violated
11 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

---

<sup>38</sup> Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 3; 2014 Report at 1.

<sup>39</sup> See Arthur Robinson Resp. at 1-2.

FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

RESPONDENTS: Thom Tillis Committee and Collin MURs 7351 and 7382
 McMichael in his official capacity
 as treasurer

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter was generated by complaints filed with the Federal Election Commission (“Commission”). See 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(1). These complaints allege that the Thom Tillis Committee and Collin McMichael in his official capacity as treasurer (“Tillis Committee”) violated the provisions of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (“Act”), and Commission regulations that prohibit foreign nationals from directly or indirectly participating in the decision-making process of a political committee’s contributions or expenditures in connection with a federal election. These allegations stem from services that Cambridge Analytica LLC (“Cambridge”) provided to the Tillis Committee during the 2014 election cycle.<sup>1</sup> For the reasons explained fully below, the Commission finds reason to believe that the Tillis Committee violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

II. FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

A. Background

Cambridge is a limited liability company organized in Delaware on December 31, 2013.<sup>2</sup> SCL Group LTD (“SCL”) is based in England and registered in the United Kingdom on July 20, 2005.<sup>3</sup> Cambridge reportedly began working for political committees in the U.S. during the

---

<sup>1</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. (Mar. 26, 2018); MUR 7382 Compl. (May 10, 2018).

<sup>2</sup> Cambridge Analytica LLC, Delaware Div. of Corps., <https://icis.corp.delaware.gov/ecorp/entitysearch/NameSearch.aspx> (viewed July 19, 2018).

<sup>3</sup> SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018).

2014 election cycle.<sup>4</sup> The Complaints allege, based on news reports, that Cambridge was “effectively a shell” and “any contracts won by Cambridge . . . would be serviced by London-based SCL and overseen by [Alexander] Nix, a British citizen,” who is a director of SCL and chief executive of Cambridge.<sup>5</sup> “Most SCL employees and contractors” were reportedly foreign nationals from Canada or Europe.<sup>6</sup>

According to former employees quoted in media reports, during the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge, like SCL, was “overwhelmingly staffed by non-U.S. citizens,”<sup>7</sup> at least two of whom “were still answering ultimately to [Alexander] Nix” while working for U.S. political committees.<sup>8</sup> Christopher Wylie, who worked for Cambridge during the 2014 election cycle and is a foreign national, reportedly asserts that he and “many foreign nationals worked on the

---

<sup>4</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶¶ 5, 13; Craig Timberg and Tom Hamburger, Former Cambridge Analytica Workers Say Firm Sent Foreigners to Advise U.S. Campaigns, WASH. POST (Mar. 25, 2018), available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/former-cambridge-analytica-workers-say-firm-sent-foreigners-to-advise-us-campaigns/2018/03/25/6a0d7d90-2fa2-11e8-911f-ca7f68bff0fc\_story.html (“Timberg Article”) (cited in MUR 7351 Complaint) (“The company aggressively courted political work beginning in 2014[.]”).

<sup>5</sup> See MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 16 (citing Matthew Rosenberg, Nicholas Confessore and Carole Cadwalladr, How Trump Consultants Exploited the Facebook Data of Millions, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/17/us/politics/cambridge-analytica-trump-campaign.html> (“NYT March 17 Article”)); Matthew Rosenberg, Cambridge Analytica Suspends C.E.O. Amid Facebook Data Scandal, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 20, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/20/world/europe/cambridge-analytica-ceo-suspended.html> (“[The SCL Group and Cambridge Analytica] were set up with a convoluted corporate structure, and their operations are deeply intertwined. Mr. Nix, for instance, holds dual appointments at the two companies. Cambridge Analytica is registered in Delaware . . . but it is effectively a shell — it holds intellectual property rights to its psychographic modeling tools, yet its clients are served by the staff at London-based SCL and overseen by Mr. Nix, who is a British citizen.”); see also SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098/officers> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018) (listing Nix as SCL director from 2005-2012 and from 2016-2018).

<sup>6</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

<sup>7</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>8</sup> Carole Cadwalladr and Emma Graham-Harrison, Staff Claim Cambridge Analytica Ignored US Ban on Foreigners Working on Elections, GUARDIAN (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2018/mar/17/cambridge-analytica-non-american-employees-political> (“Guardian Article”).

campaigns, and many were embedded in the campaigns around the U.S.”<sup>9</sup> Wylie also asserts that he was personally part of “multiple conference calls in 2014” with Nix and Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which “strategic campaign matters were discussed.”<sup>10</sup> According to Wylie, on some of these calls, Cambridge’s leaders discussed whether the company was violating federal law by using foreign nationals to work on American political campaigns.<sup>11</sup> However, Cambridge reportedly provided no compliance training for its foreign employees on what conduct to avoid in order to comply with federal law while working for U.S. political committees.<sup>12</sup>

The primary service that Cambridge offered its clients was a form of voter targeting that it described as “psychological profiling to reach voters with individually tailored messages.”<sup>13</sup> Cambridge allegedly employed many foreign national data scientists, including Dr. Alexander

---

<sup>9</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 26 (citing Anna R. Schecter, Wylie: Foreigners Worked for Cambridge Analytica on NC Senate Campaign, NBC NEWS (Mar. 23, 2018), available at <https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/elections/wylie-foreigners-worked-cambridge-analytica-nc-senate-campaign-n859526> (“Schecter Article”). Wylie apparently played a significant role in founding Cambridge. See NYT March 17 Article (“[Wylie] helped found Cambridge and worked there until late 2014.”). Wylie reportedly left Cambridge at the end of the 2014 election cycle, although there is some dispute as to precisely when he left the company. Schecter Article (“Cambridge has said that Wylie left the company in July 2014. Wylie [claims that] while he gave notice in July, he continued to work for the company until just before the elections on Nov. 4, 2014.”).

<sup>10</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 30 (quoting Timberg Article). Both Nix and Bannon, along with three others, are described by an internal Cambridge legal memorandum as “managers” of Cambridge; the memorandum notes that “Cambridge is currently being managed day to day by Mr. Nix,” a foreign national. CONFIDENTIAL MEMORANDUM FROM LAURENCE LEVY TO REBEKAH MERCER, STEVE BANNON, AND ALEXANDER NIX at 6 (July 22, 2014), available at <http://cdn.cnn.com/cnn/2018/images/03/26/levy.memo.pdf> (discussed in Schecter Article).

<sup>11</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>12</sup> Guardian Article (“There were no briefings on the kind of work that non-US citizens should avoid, or warnings about the legal risks.”).

<sup>13</sup> Timberg Article; see also Sasha Issenberg, Cruz-Connected Data Miner Aims to Get Inside U.S. Voters’ Heads, BLOOMBERG (Nov. 12, 2015), available at <https://www.bloomberg.com/news/features/2015-11-12/is-the-republican-party-s-killer-data-app-for-real-> (“Issenberg Article”) (“Cambridge Analytica’s trophy product is ‘psychographic profiles’ of every potential voter in the U.S. interwoven with more conventional political data. The emphasis on psychology helps to differentiate the Brits from other companies that specialized in ‘microtargeting,’ a catch-all term typically used to describe any analysis that uses statistical modeling to predict voter intent at the individual level.”).

Tayler, who led the data science team as the company’s Chief Data Officer.<sup>14</sup> Cambridge reportedly helped political committees “decide what voters to target with political messages and what messages to deliver to them,” while also offering additional services such as “fundraising, planning events, and providing communications strategy[.]”<sup>15</sup> Wylie asserts that he and other foreign nationals working for Cambridge “weren’t just working on messaging” but “were instructing campaigns on which messages go where and to who.”<sup>16</sup> Other employees have supported this assertion, claiming that Cambridge “didn’t handle only data” but worked on message development and targeting strategy.<sup>17</sup>

During the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge worked for the Tillis Committee, Thom Tillis’s authorized campaign committee for the U.S. Senate in North Carolina.<sup>18</sup> Wylie reportedly claims that “his largely foreign team” crafted and targeted messaging for Tillis’s campaign.<sup>19</sup> Cambridge’s own internal documents detail that the company was also contracted by the North Carolina Republican Party (“NCRP”) to provide support for Tillis, other Republican campaigns in North Carolina, and the NCRP itself.<sup>20</sup> The documents confirm that Cambridge provided the Tillis Committee with message targeting services, noting that “local campaign staff had ideas about how they wanted their target universes defined, but the

---

<sup>14</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 9.

<sup>15</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 28 (quoting Timberg Article).

<sup>16</sup> Id. at ¶ 26 (quoting Schechter Article).

<sup>17</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>18</sup> MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 13.

<sup>19</sup> Schechter Article.

<sup>20</sup> Cambridge Analytica 2014 Activity Summary Report at 12, available at <https://www.washingtonpost.com/archive/local/2014/04/22/cambridge-analytica-report-on-congressional-and-legislative-races/2294/> (“2014 Report”).

[Cambridge] team was able to use their knowledge of the data to suggest more effective targeting strategies.”<sup>21</sup> Cambridge’s modeling and targeting work for the Tillis Committee reportedly altered the content of the committee’s messages to focus on issues that Cambridge had identified as resonating with potential voters, such as foreign terrorism, more than issues previously prioritized by the committees, like state-wide education policy.<sup>22</sup>

The Tillis Committee denies that Cambridge provided any media consulting services or made any strategic decisions, claiming that all decisions regarding the use of Cambridge-generated data were made by its own staffers, and that no Cambridge employees were involved in the management or decision-making of the committee.<sup>23</sup> The Tillis Committee’s campaign manager and general consultant both submitted sworn affidavits attesting that Cambridge served only as a data vendor for the committee, that, for example, Cambridge “played no role in the development or decisions about the Tillis [Committee] messaging or communications,”<sup>24</sup> and that all communications and messaging decisions for the committee were made by the committee’s campaign staff or media consultants, not Cambridge.<sup>25</sup>

---

<sup>21</sup> Id. at 14.

<sup>22</sup> See Issenberg Article (“In North Carolina, where the company was paid $150,000 by the state party and $30,000 by Tillis’s campaign, Cambridge Analytica developed models to predict individual support, turnout likelihoods, and issues of concern that would recalibrate continuously based on interactions with voters[, and] that dynamic process allowed Tillis’s campaign to identify a sizable cluster of North Carolinians who prioritized foreign affairs — which encouraged Tillis to shift the conversation from state-level debates over education policy to charges that incumbent Kay Hagan had failed to take ISIS’s rise seriously.”); 2014 Report at 13 (discussing changing committee messaging to more “salient” issues such as national security).

<sup>23</sup> Resp. of Thom Tillis Comm. at 5-6 (May 25, 2018) (“Tillis Comm. Resp.”).

<sup>24</sup> Tillis Comm. Resp., Ex. C, ¶ 8 (Shumaker Affidavit).

<sup>25</sup> See id., Ex. C, ¶¶ 8-12 (Shumaker Affidavit), 14-18; id., Ex. D, ¶¶ 13-18 (Shaw Affidavit). The Tillis Committee also submitted an affidavit from its treasurer attesting that he had no reason to believe the vendor they were paying was foreign owned or operated. See id., Ex. B, ¶¶ 9-11 (McMichael Affidavit).

B. Legal Analysis

1. Foreign Nationals May Not Directly or Indirectly Make Contributions, Donations, Expenditures, or Disbursements

The Act and Commission regulations prohibit any “foreign national” from directly or indirectly making a contribution or donation of money or other thing of value, or an expenditure, independent expenditure, or disbursement, in connection with a federal, state, or local election.<sup>26</sup> The Act’s definition of “foreign national” includes an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States and who is not lawfully admitted for permanent residence, as well as a “foreign principal” as defined at 22 U.S.C. § 611(b), which, in turn, includes a “partnership, association, corporation, organization, or other combination of persons organized under the laws of or having its principal place of business in a foreign country.”<sup>27</sup> Commission regulations implementing the Act’s foreign national prohibition provide:

---

<sup>26</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(1); 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(b), (c), (e), (f). Courts have consistently upheld the provisions of the Act prohibiting foreign national contributions on the ground that the government has a clear, compelling interest in limiting the influence of foreigners over the activities and processes that are integral to democratic self-government, which include making political contributions and express-advocacy expenditures. See Bluman v. FEC, 800 F. Supp. 2d 281, 288-89 (D.D.C. 2011), aff’d 132 S. Ct. 1087 (2012); United States v. Singh, 924 F.3d 1030, 1040-44 (9th Cir. 2019).

<sup>27</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(b); 22 U.S.C. § 611(b)(3); see also 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(a)(3).

1 A foreign national shall not direct, dictate, control, or directly or indirectly
 2 participate in the decision-making process of any person, such as a corporation,
 3 labor organization, political committee, or political organization with regard to
 4 such person's Federal or non-Federal election-related activities, such as decisions
 5 concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or
 6 disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political 7 committee.<sup>28</sup>

8
 9 The Commission has explained that this provision also bars foreign nationals from "involvement
 10 in the management of a political committee."<sup>29</sup>

11 In light of these provisions, Commission regulations permit any person or company —
 12 foreign or domestic — to provide goods or services to a political committee, without making a
 13 contribution, if that person or company does so as a "commercial vendor," i.e., in the ordinary
 14 course of business, and at the usual and normal charge, as long as foreign nationals do not
 15 directly or indirectly participate in any committee's management or decision-making process in
 16 connection with its election-related activities.<sup>30</sup> For example, in MUR 5998, the Commission
 17 found that the foreign national owners of a venue did not make or facilitate a contribution to a
 18 political committee by allowing the committee to rent the venue for a fundraising event.<sup>31</sup> The

---

<sup>28</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

<sup>29</sup> Contribution Limits and Prohibitions, 67 Fed. Reg. 69928, 69946 (Nov. 19, 2002); see also Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 2-3 (Weller) (noting that foreign national prohibition at section 110.20(i) is broad and concluding that, while a foreign national fiancé of the candidate could participate in committees' activities as a volunteer without making a prohibited contribution, she "must not participate in [the candidate's] decisions regarding his campaign activities" and "must refrain from managing or participating in the decisions of the Committees.").

<sup>30</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 114.2(f)(1); see 11 C.F.R. § 116.1(c) (defining "commercial vendor" as "any persons providing goods or services to a candidate or political committee whose usual and normal business involves the sale, rental, lease or provision of those goods or services). The Act defines a contribution to include "anything of value," which in turn includes all "in-kind contributions," such as "the provision of any goods or services without charge or at a charge that is less than the usual and normal charge for such goods or services." 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(d)(1); see 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8). Goods or services provided at the usual and normal charge do not constitute a contribution under the Act. However, soliciting, accepting, or receiving information in connection with an election from a foreign national, as opposed to purchasing the information at the usual and normal charge or hiring a foreign national in a bona fide commercial transaction to perform services for a federal campaign, could potentially result in the receipt of a prohibited in-kind contribution.

<sup>31</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-6, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild).

venue at issue was rented out for events in the ordinary course of business, and the owners charged the committee the usual and normal amount for the service.<sup>32</sup> The Commission noted that there was no available information to suggest — and the foreign nationals and political committee expressly denied — that the foreign nationals had any “decision-making role in the event.”<sup>33</sup>

The Commission has found that not all participation by foreign nationals in the election-related activities of others will violate the Act. In MUR 6959, for example, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by performing clerical duties, such as online research and translations, during a one month-long internship with a party committee.<sup>34</sup> Similarly, in MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by volunteering his services to perform at a campaign fundraiser and agreeing to let a political committee use his name and likeness in its emails promoting the concert and soliciting support, where the record did not indicate that the foreign national had been involved in the committee’s decision-making process in connection with the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements.<sup>35</sup> By contrast, the Commission has consistently found a violation of the foreign national prohibition

---

<sup>32</sup> Id.

<sup>33</sup> Id. at 5.

<sup>34</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-5, MUR 6959 (Cindy Nava) (noting that the available information, which was based on two press reports that did not detail the foreign national’s activities, did not actually indicate that the foreign national participated in any political committee’s decision-making process). The Commission also found that a $3,000 stipend that the foreign national received from third parties resulted in an in-kind contribution from the third parties to the committee, but the value of the foreign national volunteer’s services to the committee was not a contribution. Id. at 4-5 (citing 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8)(A)(ii); 11 C.F.R. § 100.54; Advisory Op. 1982-04 (Apodaca)).

<sup>35</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 6-9, MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015 (Sir Elton John); see also Factual and Legal Analysis at 5, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild); Advisory Op. 2004-26 (Weller).

where foreign national officers or directors of a U.S. company participated in the company's decisions to make contributions or in the management of its separate segregated fund.<sup>36</sup>

2. There is Reason to Believe that the Tillis Committee Violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) When Foreign Nationals Directly or Indirectly Participated in a Decision-Making Process Regarding the Committee's Election-Related Activities

Cambridge's usual and normal business involved providing data analytics and message targeting services, and there is no specific information suggesting that Cambridge charged any committee less than its usual and normal rate for such services. Even if Cambridge, which was organized under the laws of Delaware and therefore appears to be a domestic company, was, arguendo, a foreign company, it could provide services to a political committee as a commercial vendor without thereby making a contribution to that committee, but foreign nationals may not directly or indirectly participate in any committee's management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related spending.

Wylie, a Cambridge foreign national employee, appears to have participated in the decision-making processes of Cambridge's clients in connection with their management or election-related spending. Wylie reportedly admits that he "worked on all of the company's U.S. political campaigns in 2014,"<sup>37</sup> and that he was personally part of "multiple conference calls in 2014" with Nix and Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which "strategic campaign matters were discussed.”<sup>38</sup> During this period of time, Cambridge not only provided political committees with communications and targeting advice, i.e., advice about how to effectively craft tailored communications and target them to receptive voters in order to maximize the messages’ impact, but “directed” the committees in their messaging.<sup>39</sup>

---

<sup>36</sup> See, e.g., Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6093 (Transurban Grp.) (U.S. subsidiary violated Act by making contributions after its foreign parent company's board of directors directly participated in determining whether to continue political contributions policy of its U.S. subsidiaries); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6184 (Skyway Concession Company, LLC) (U.S. company violated Act by making contributions after its foreign national CEO participated in company's election-related activities by vetting campaign solicitations or deciding which nonfederal committees would receive company contributions, authorizing release of company funds to make contributions, and signing contribution checks); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 7122 (American Pacific International Capital, Inc. ("APIC")) (U.S. corporation owned by foreign company violated Act by making contribution after its board of directors, which included foreign nationals, approved proposal by U.S. citizen corporate officer to contribute).

<sup>37</sup> Schechter Article.

According to Wylie and internal Cambridge documents, he and other foreign nationals were embedded in political committees and were “instructing campaigns on which messages go where and to who.”<sup>40</sup> By providing strategic advice to committees on both the content and target audience for their campaign communications, these foreign nationals may have helped shape political committees’ election-related spending decisions.

The available information supports a finding that Wylie or other foreign national Cambridge employees participated in the Tillis Committee’s management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related spending. Cambridge reportedly provided “polling, focus groups and message development” services for the Tillis Committee during Thom Tillis’s 2014 campaign for the U.S. Senate in North Carolina.<sup>41</sup> Wylie reportedly claims that “three or four full-time [Cambridge] staffers embedded in Tillis’s campaign on the ground in Raleigh [and all] of them were foreign nationals.”<sup>42</sup> Another former Cambridge employee also claims that most of the Tillis campaign’s messaging team was composed of foreign nationals.<sup>43</sup>

---

<sup>38</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>39</sup> See, e.g., 2014 Report at 16-17 (describing Cambridge’s successful “direction” of another committee).

<sup>40</sup> Schecter Article.

<sup>41</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

<sup>42</sup> Schecter Article.

<sup>43</sup> Id.

1 These assertions indicate that Cambridge’s foreign national employees were working with the 2 Tillis Committee.

3 The Tillis Committee denies the allegations, and its general consultant, Paul Shumaker,
 4 and campaign manager, Jordan Shaw, both attest in sworn affidavits that Cambridge/SCL had 5 “no role in the development or decisions about the Tillis Campaign messaging or 6 communications,” and that the Tillis Committee’s “messaging, communications, and campaign
 7 strategy decisions” were made by others.<sup>44</sup> However, the other information in the record
 8 discussed above — including Cambridge’s internal report and the reported statements by Wylie
 9 and other Cambridge employees — specifically indicates that, contrary to these affidavits,
 10 Cambridge foreign national employees were embedded in the campaign and provided strategic 11 communications and targeting advice that the Tillis Committee used to determine how to most 12 effectively utilize its resources.<sup>45</sup> On balance, the overall record sufficiently supports the 13 allegation that foreign nationals directly or indirectly participated in the Tillis Committee’s
 14 management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related spending,
 15 warranting further investigation.

16 Accordingly, the Commission finds reason to believe that the Tillis Committee violated
 17 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

---

<sup>44</sup> Tillis Comm. Resp., Ex. C, ¶¶ 8-12 (Shumaker Affidavit), 14-18; id., Ex. D, ¶¶ 13-18 (Shaw Affidavit). Both of these affidavits refer only to “SCL USA,” although a third affidavit from Tillis Committee treasurer Collin McMichael states that Cambridge was doing business as SCL USA. See id., Ex. B, ¶ 8 (McMichael Affidavit). This latter affidavit refers to “SLC USA” throughout the affidavit when SCL USA was likely intended.

<sup>45</sup> See Schecter Article; NYT March 17 Article; 2014 Report at 12.

1 FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

2 FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

3 RESPONDENTS: North Carolina Republican Party and MUR 7382
 4 Jason Lemons in his official capacity
 5 as treasurer

6 I. INTRODUCTION

7 This matter was generated by complaints filed with the Federal Election Commission
 8 (“Commission”). See 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(1). The complaints allege that the North Carolina
 9 Republican Party and Jason Lemons in his official capacity as treasurer (“NCRP”) violated the 10 provisions of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (“Act”), and Commission
 11 regulations that prohibit foreign nationals from directly or indirectly participating in the decision-
 12 making process of a political committee’s contributions or expenditures in connection with a
 13 federal election. These allegations stem from services that Cambridge Analytica LLC
 14 (“Cambridge”) provided to the NCRP during the 2014 election cycle.<sup>1</sup> For the reasons explained
 15 fully below, the Commission finds reason to believe that the NCRP violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121
 16 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

17 II. FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

18 A. Background

19 Cambridge is a limited liability company organized in Delaware on December 31, 2013.<sup>2</sup>
 20 SCL Group LTD (“SCL”) is based in England and registered in the United Kingdom on July 20,

---

<sup>1</sup> See MUR 7382 Compl. (May 10, 2018).

<sup>2</sup> Cambridge Analytica LLC, Delaware Div. of Corps., <https://icis.corp.delaware.gov/ecorp/entitysearch/NameSearch.aspx> (viewed July 19, 2018).

2005.<sup>3</sup> Cambridge reportedly began working for political committees in the U.S. during the 2014 election cycle.<sup>4</sup> The Complaints allege, based on news reports, that Cambridge was “effectively a shell” and “any contracts won by Cambridge . . . would be serviced by London-based SCL and overseen by [Alexander] Nix, a British citizen,” who is a director of SCL and chief executive of Cambridge.<sup>5</sup> “Most SCL employees and contractors” were reportedly foreign nationals from Canada or Europe.<sup>6</sup>

According to former employees quoted in media reports, during the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge, like SCL, was “overwhelmingly staffed by non-U.S. citizens,”<sup>7</sup> at least two of whom “were still answering ultimately to [Alexander] Nix” while working for U.S. political

---

<sup>3</sup> SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018).

<sup>4</sup> See Craig Timberg and Tom Hamburger, Former Cambridge Analytica Workers Say Firm Sent Foreigners to Advise U.S. Campaigns, WASH. POST (Mar. 25, 2018), available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/former-cambridge-analytica-workers-say-firm-sent-foreigners-to-advise-us-campaigns/2018/03/25/6a0d7d90-2fa2-11e8-911f-ca7f68bff0fc\_story.html (“Timberg Article”) (“The company aggressively courted political work beginning in 2014[.]”).

<sup>5</sup> See Matthew Rosenberg, Nicholas Confessore and Carole Cadwalladr, How Trump Consultants Exploited the Facebook Data of Millions, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/17/us/politics/cambridge-analytica-trump-campaign.html> (“NYT March 17 Article”); Matthew Rosenberg, Cambridge Analytica Suspends C.E.O. Amid Facebook Data Scandal, N.Y. TIMES (Mar. 20, 2018), available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/20/world/europe/cambridge-analytica-ceo-suspended.html> (“[The SCL Group and Cambridge Analytica] were set up with a convoluted corporate structure, and their operations are deeply intertwined. Mr. Nix, for instance, holds dual appointments at the two companies. Cambridge Analytica is registered in Delaware . . . but it is effectively a shell — it holds intellectual property rights to its psychographic modeling tools, yet its clients are served by the staff at London-based SCL and overseen by Mr. Nix, who is a British citizen.”); see also SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, available at <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098/officers> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018) (listing Nix as SCL director from 2005-2012 and from 2016-2018).

<sup>6</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

<sup>7</sup> Timberg Article.

1 committees.<sup>8</sup> Christopher Wylie, who worked for Cambridge during the 2014 election cycle and
 2 is a foreign national, reportedly asserts that he and “many foreign nationals worked on the
 3 campaigns, and many were embedded in the campaigns around the U.S.”<sup>9</sup> Wylie also asserts
 4 that he was personally part of “multiple conference calls in 2014” with Nix and Stephen K.
 5 Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which “strategic campaign matters were discussed.”<sup>10</sup>
 6 According to Wylie, on some of these calls, Cambridge’s leaders discussed whether the company
 7 was violating federal law by using foreign nationals to work on American political campaigns.<sup>11</sup>
 8 However, Cambridge reportedly provided no compliance training for its foreign employees on
 9 what conduct to avoid in order to comply with federal law while working for U.S. political 10 committees.<sup>12</sup>

---

<sup>8</sup> Carole Cadwalladr and Emma Graham-Harrison, Staff Claim Cambridge Analytica Ignored US Ban on Foreigners Working on Elections, GUARDIAN (Mar. 17, 2018), available at <https://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2018/mar/17/cambridge-analytica-non-american-employees-political> (“Guardian Article”).

<sup>9</sup> Anna R. Schechter, Wylie: Foreigners Worked for Cambridge Analytica on NC Senate Campaign, NBC NEWS (Mar. 23, 2018), available at <https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/elections/wylie-foreigners-worked-cambridge-analytica-nc-senate-campaign-n859526> (“Schechter Article”). Wylie apparently played a significant role in founding Cambridge. See NYT March 17 Article (“[Wylie] helped found Cambridge and worked there until late 2014.”). Wylie reportedly left Cambridge at the end of the 2014 election cycle, although there is some dispute as to precisely when he left the company. Schechter Article (“Cambridge has said that Wylie left the company in July 2014. Wylie [claims that] while he gave notice in July, he continued to work for the company until just before the elections on Nov. 4, 2014.”).

<sup>10</sup> Timberg Article. Both Nix and Bannon, along with three others, are described by an internal Cambridge legal memorandum as “managers” of Cambridge; the memorandum notes that “Cambridge is currently being managed day to day by Mr. Nix,” a foreign national. CONFIDENTIAL MEMORANDUM FROM LAURENCE LEVY TO REBEKAH MERCER, STEVE BANNON, AND ALEXANDER NIX at 6 (July 22, 2014), available at <http://cdn.cnn.com/cnn/2018/images/03/26/levy.memo.pdf> (discussed in Schechter Article).

<sup>11</sup> Timberg Article.

<sup>12</sup> Guardian Article (“There were no briefings on the kind of work that non-US citizens should avoid, or warnings about the legal risks.”).

1           The primary service that Cambridge offered its clients was a form of voter targeting that
 2     it described as “psychological profiling to reach voters with individually tailored messages.”<sup>13</sup>
 3     Cambridge reportedly helped political committees “decide what voters to target with political 4     messages and what messages to deliver to them,” while also offering additional services such as 5     “fundraising, planning events, and providing communications strategy[.]”<sup>14</sup> Wylie asserts that 6     he and other foreign nationals working for Cambridge “weren’t just working on messaging” but 7     “were instructing campaigns on which messages go where and to who.”<sup>15</sup> Other employees have
 8     supported this assertion, claiming that Cambridge “didn’t handle only data” but worked on
 9     message development and targeting strategy.<sup>16</sup>

10           During the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge worked for several political committees,
 11     including the NCRP, a state party committee supporting Thom Tillis’s 2014 U.S. Senate race in 12     North Carolina.<sup>17</sup> Wylie reportedly claims that “his largely foreign team” crafted and targeted
 13     messaging for Tillis’s campaign.<sup>18</sup> Cambridge’s own internal documents detail that the company
 14     was also contracted by the NCRP to provide support for Tillis, other Republican campaigns in

---

<sup>13</sup>       Timberg Article; see also Sasha Issenberg, Cruz-Connected Data Miner Aims to Get Inside U.S. Voters’ Heads, BLOOMBERG (Nov. 12, 2015), available at <https://www.bloomberg.com/news/features/2015-11-12/is-the-republican-party-s-killer-data-app-for-real-> (“Issenberg Article”) (“Cambridge Analytica’s trophy product is ‘psychographic profiles’ of every potential voter in the U.S. interwoven with more conventional political data. The emphasis on psychology helps to differentiate the Brits from other companies that specialized in ‘microtargeting,’ a catch-all term typically used to describe any analysis that uses statistical modeling to predict voter intent at the individual level.”).

<sup>14</sup>       Timberg Article.

<sup>15</sup>       Schechter Article.

<sup>16</sup>       Timberg Article.

<sup>17</sup>       See Cambridge Analytica 2014 Activity Summary Report at 12, available at <https://www.washingtonpost.com/apps/g/page/politics/2014-cambridge-analytica-report-on-congressional-and-legislative-races/2294/> (“2014 Report”).

<sup>18</sup>       Schechter Article.

North Carolina, and the NCRP itself.<sup>19</sup> The documents confirm that Cambridge provided the NCRP with message targeting services, noting that “local campaign staff had ideas about how they wanted their target universes defined, but the [Cambridge] team was able to use their knowledge of the data to suggest more effective targeting strategies.”<sup>20</sup> Cambridge’s modeling and targeting work for the NCRP reportedly altered the content of the committee’s messages to focus on issues that Cambridge had identified as resonating with potential voters, such as foreign terrorism, more than issues previously prioritized by the committees, like state-wide education policy.<sup>21</sup>

For its part, the NCRP denies that any Cambridge employees were involved in decisions regarding spending or messaging, asserting that Cambridge provided only data modeling services.<sup>22</sup> The NCRP submitted a sworn affidavit from its 2014 Executive Director attesting that he hired Cambridge “to provide data and micro-targeting information” that NCRP combined with other data from other sources to identify swing voters and “Republican voters who may

---

<sup>19</sup> 2014 Report.

<sup>20</sup> Id. at 14. See also Issenberg Article (“I met with two of the employees Nix identified as the firm’s ‘message people’ to understand what that [targeted] communication might look like. Tim Glister is a former copywriter and one-time literary agent from Newcastle . . . . Glister was dispatched to North Carolina, where he was tasked with helping the state Republican party on behalf of Thom Tillis’s ultimately successful campaign to defeat Senator Kay Hagan. ‘I was English enough to be an entertaining curiosity,’ he said.”)

<sup>21</sup> See Issenberg Article (“In North Carolina, where the company was paid $150,000 by the state party and $30,000 by Tillis’s campaign, Cambridge Analytica developed models to predict individual support, turnout likelihoods, and issues of concern that would recalibrate continuously based on interactions with voters[, and] that dynamic process allowed Tillis’s campaign to identify a sizable cluster of North Carolinians who prioritized foreign affairs — which encouraged Tillis to shift the conversation from state-level debates over education policy to charges that incumbent Kay Hagan had failed to take ISIS’s rise seriously.”); 2014 Report at 13 (discussing changing committee messaging to more “salient” issues such as national security); see also 2014 Report at 16, 19 (discussing Bolton PAC’s desire to focus on national security and detailing successes based on national security-focused messaging).

<sup>22</sup> Resp. of NCRP at 5 (July 10, 2018).

1 need a ‘push’ or additional reason to go to the polls and vote,” but that “every single decision
 2 with respect to campaign communications” was the Executive Director’s alone and that “no one
 3 from Cambridge Analytica made decisions on behalf of [NCRP] campaign communications.”<sup>23</sup>
 4 The sworn affidavit further attests that NCRP hired Cambridge after it “already had its campaign
 5 communications plan” and that NCRP did not use messages or communications prepared by 6 Cambridge.<sup>24</sup>

7 B. Legal Analysis

8 1. Foreign Nationals May Not Directly or Indirectly Make Contributions, 9 Donations, Expenditures, or Disbursements

10 The Act and Commission regulations prohibit any “foreign national” from directly or
 11 indirectly making a contribution or donation of money or other thing of value, or an expenditure,
 12 independent expenditure, or disbursement, in connection with a federal, state, or local election.<sup>25</sup>
 13 The Act’s definition of “foreign national” includes an individual who is not a citizen or national
 14 of the United States and who is not lawfully admitted for permanent residence, as well as a
 15 “foreign principal” as defined at 22 U.S.C. § 611(b), which, in turn, includes a “partnership,
 16 association, corporation, organization, or other combination of persons organized under the laws

---

<sup>23</sup> Id., Ex. 1 ¶¶ 4-5 (Poole Affidavit).

<sup>24</sup> See id., Poole Affidavit, ¶¶ 5-6. The affidavit also attests that the contract indicated that Cambridge was a Delaware corporation. See id., Poole Affidavit, ¶ 2.

<sup>25</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(1); 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(b), (c), (e), (f). Courts have consistently upheld the provisions of the Act prohibiting foreign national contributions on the ground that the government has a clear, compelling interest in limiting the influence of foreigners over the activities and processes that are integral to democratic self-government, which include making political contributions and express-advocacy expenditures. See Bluman v. FEC, 800 F. Supp. 2d 281, 288-89 (D.D.C. 2011), aff’d 132 S. Ct. 1087 (2012); United States v. Singh, 924 F.3d 1030, 1040-44 (9th Cir. 2019).

of or having its principal place of business in a foreign country.”<sup>26</sup> Commission regulations implementing the Act’s foreign national prohibition provide:

A foreign national shall not direct, dictate, control, or directly or indirectly participate in the decision-making process of any person, such as a corporation, labor organization, political committee, or political organization with regard to such person’s Federal or non-Federal election-related activities, such as decisions concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political committee.<sup>27</sup>

The Commission has explained that this provision also bars foreign nationals from “involvement in the management of a political committee.”<sup>28</sup>

In light of these provisions, Commission regulations permit any person or company — foreign or domestic — to provide goods or services to a political committee, without making a contribution, if that person or company does so as a “commercial vendor,” i.e., in the ordinary course of business, and at the usual and normal charge, as long as foreign nationals do not directly or indirectly participate in any committee’s management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related activities.<sup>29</sup> For example, in MUR 5998, the Commission

---

<sup>26</sup> 52 U.S.C. § 30121(b); 22 U.S.C. § 611(b)(3); see also 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(a)(3).

<sup>27</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

<sup>28</sup> Contribution Limits and Prohibitions, 67 Fed. Reg. 69928, 69946 (Nov. 19, 2002); see also Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 2-3 (Weller) (noting that foreign national prohibition at section 110.20(i) is broad and concluding that, while a foreign national fiancé of the candidate could participate in committees’ activities as a volunteer without making a prohibited contribution, she “must not participate in [the candidate’s] decisions regarding his campaign activities” and “must refrain from managing or participating in the decisions of the Committees.”).

<sup>29</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 114.2(f)(1); see 11 C.F.R. § 116.1(c) (defining “commercial vendor” as “any persons providing goods or services to a candidate or political committee whose usual and normal business involves the sale, rental, lease or provision of those goods or services). The Act defines a contribution to include “anything of value,” which in turn includes all “in-kind contributions,” such as “the provision of any goods or services without charge or at a charge that is less than the usual and normal charge for such goods or services.” 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(d)(1); see 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8). Goods or services provided at the usual and normal charge do not constitute a contribution under the Act. However, soliciting, accepting, or receiving information in connection with an election from a foreign national, as opposed to purchasing the information at the usual and normal charge or hiring a foreign

found that the foreign national owners of a venue did not make or facilitate a contribution to a political committee by allowing the committee to rent the venue for a fundraising event.<sup>30</sup> The venue at issue was rented out for events in the ordinary course of business, and the owners charged the committee the usual and normal amount for the service.<sup>31</sup> The Commission noted that there was no available information to suggest — and the foreign nationals and political committee expressly denied — that the foreign nationals had any “decision-making role in the event.”<sup>32</sup>

The Commission has found that not all participation by foreign nationals in the election-related activities of others will violate the Act. In MUR 6959, for example, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by performing clerical duties, such as online research and translations, during a one month-long internship with a party committee.<sup>33</sup> Similarly, in MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015, the Commission found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by volunteering his services to perform at a campaign fundraiser and agreeing to let the political committee use his name and likeness in its emails promoting the concert and soliciting support, where the record did not

---

national in a bona fide commercial transaction to perform services for a federal campaign, could potentially result in the receipt of a prohibited in-kind contribution.

<sup>30</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-6, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild).

<sup>31</sup> Id.

<sup>32</sup> Id. at 5.

<sup>33</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-5, MUR 6959 (Cindy Nava) (noting that the available information, which was based on two press reports that did not detail the foreign national’s activities, did not indicate that the foreign national participated in any political committee’s decision-making process). The Commission also found that a $3,000 stipend that the foreign national received from third parties resulted in an in-kind contribution from the third parties to the committee, but the value of the foreign national volunteer’s services to the committee was not a contribution. Id. at 4-5 (citing 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8)(A)(ii); 11 C.F.R. § 100.54; Advisory Op. 1982-04 (Apodaca)).

1 indicate that the foreign national had been involved in the committee's decision-making process
 2 in connection with the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements.<sup>34</sup> By
 3 contrast, the Commission has consistently found a violation of the foreign national prohibition
 4 where foreign national officers or directors of a U.S. company participated in the company's
 5 decisions to make contributions or in the management of its separate segregated fund.<sup>35</sup>

6           2.     There is Reason to Believe that the NCRP Violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and
 7                    11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) When Foreign Nationals Directly or Indirectly
 8                    Participated in a Decision-Making Process In Connection With the
 9                    Committee's Election-Related Spending

10           Cambridge's usual and normal business involved providing data analytics and message
 11 targeting services, and there is no specific information suggesting that Cambridge charged any 12 committee less than its usual and normal rate for such services. Even if Cambridge, which was
 13 organized under the laws of Delaware and therefore appears to be a domestic company, was,
 14 arguendo, a foreign company, it could provide services to a political committee as a commercial
 15 vendor without thereby making a contribution to that committee, but foreign nationals may not
 16 directly or indirectly participate in any committee's management or decision-making process in 17 connection with its election-related spending.

---

<sup>34</sup> Factual and Legal Analysis at 6-9, MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015 (Sir Elton John); see also Factual and Legal Analysis at 5, MUR 5998 (Lord Jacob Rothschild); Advisory Op. 2004-26 (Weller).

<sup>35</sup> See, e.g., Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6093 (Transurban Grp.) (U.S. subsidiary violated Act by making contributions after its foreign parent company's board of directors directly participated in determining whether to continue political contributions policy of its U.S. subsidiaries); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6184 (Skyway Concession Company, LLC) (U.S. company violated Act by making contributions after its foreign national CEO participated in company's election-related activities by vetting campaign solicitations or deciding which nonfederal committees would receive company contributions, authorizing release of company funds to make contributions, and signing contribution checks); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 7122 (American Pacific International Capital, Inc. ("APIC")) (U.S. corporation owned by foreign company violated Act by making contribution after its board of directors, which included foreign nationals, approved proposal by U.S. citizen corporate officer to contribute).

1           Wylie, a Cambridge foreign national employee, appears to have participated in the
2   decision-making processes of Cambridge’s clients in connection with their management or
3   election-related spending. Wylie reportedly admits that he “worked on all of the company’s
4   U.S. political campaigns in 2014,”<sup>36</sup> and that he was personally part of “multiple conference
5   calls in 2014” with Nix and Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which “strategic
6   campaign matters were discussed.”<sup>37</sup> During this period of time, Cambridge not only provided
7   political committees with communications and targeting advice, i.e., advice about how to
8   effectively craft tailored communications and target them to receptive voters in order to
9   maximize the messages’ impact, but “directed” the committees in their messaging.<sup>38</sup>

10           According to Wylie and internal Cambridge documents, he and other foreign nationals
11   were embedded in political committees and were “instructing campaigns on which messages go
12   where and to who.”<sup>39</sup> By providing strategic advice to committees on both the content and target
13   audience for their campaign communications, these foreign nationals may have helped shape
14   political committees’ election-related spending decisions.

15           The available information supports a finding that Wylie or other foreign national 16   Cambridge employees may have directly or indirectly participated in the NCRP’s management
17   or decision-making process in connection with its election-related spending. Cambridge
18   reportedly provided “polling, focus groups and message development” services for committees

---

<sup>36</sup>       Schechter Article.

<sup>37</sup>       Timberg Article.

<sup>38</sup>       See, e.g., 2014 Report at 16-17 (describing Cambridge’s successful “direction” of the Bolton PAC).

<sup>39</sup>       Schechter Article.

1 supporting Thom Tillis’s 2014 campaign for the U.S. Senate in North Carolina.<sup>40</sup> Wylie
 2 reportedly claims to have worked on all of Cambridge’s political campaigns in 2014.<sup>41</sup> Wylie
 3 also reportedly claims that “three or four full-time [Cambridge] staffers embedded in Tillis’s
 4 campaign on the ground in Raleigh [and all] of them were foreign nationals.”<sup>42</sup> Internal
 5 Cambridge documents establish that the firm was retained by the NCRP to help Tillis’s
 6 campaign, and Wylie and other Cambridge employees may have been embedded with the NCRP
 7 to provide targeting advice used to create and distribute communications supporting Tillis’s
 8 campaign.<sup>43</sup> These factual circumstances indicate that Cambridge’s foreign national employees
 9 were working with the NCRP in support of Tillis’s campaign for the U.S. Senate.

10 The NCRP asserts, in a sworn affidavit from its Executive Director at the time it hired
 11 Cambridge in 2014, that the Executive Director alone made “every single decision with respect
 12 to campaign communications,” and denies that it “used” Cambridge’s “messages or 13 communications” or that anyone from Cambridge made decisions with respect to NCRP
 14 communications.<sup>44</sup> However, the key issue is not whether NCRP’s Executive Director, rather 15 than Wylie or any other foreign national, had final decision-making authority or final say 16 regarding any communication, but whether any foreign national participated, directly or

---

<sup>40</sup> NYT March 17 Article.

<sup>41</sup> Schecter Article.

<sup>42</sup> Id.; Issenberg Article.

<sup>43</sup> 2014 Report; Schecter Article. Both the Tillis Committee and NCRP rejected Wylie’s claim that Cambridge employees were embedded with Tillis’s authorized committee, asserting instead that Cambridge employees were embedded with the NCRP. Id.; see Timberg Article (“Cambridge Analytica documents show it advised a congressional candidate in Oregon, state legislative candidates in Colorado and, on behalf of the North Carolina Republican Party, the winning campaign for Sen. Thom Tillis.”).

<sup>44</sup> Resp. of NCRP, Ex. 1 ¶¶ 5-6 (Poole Affidavit).

1 indirectly, in the NCRP's management or decision-making process in connection with its
2 "election-related activities, such as decisions concerning the making of contributions, donations,
3 expenditures, or disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political 4 committee."<sup>45</sup> Here, the available information — including Cambridge's internal report and the 5 reported statements by Wylie and other Cambridge employees — specifically indicates that,
6 contrary to the affidavit submitted by the NCRP, Wylie and other foreign national Cambridge
7 employees may have participated in the NCRP's decision-making regarding both their 8 communications strategy and expenditures. On balance, the overall record sufficiently supports
9 the allegation that foreign nationals directly or indirectly participated in the NCRP's
10 management or decision-making process in connection with its election-related spending,
11 warranting further investigation.

12 Accordingly, the Commission finds reason to believe that the NCRP violated 52 U.S.C.
13 § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

---

<sup>45</sup>

11 CFR 110.20(i).