RE: MURs 7350 and 7351

Dear Mr. Wylie:

On March 29, 2018, and March 30, 2018, the Federal Election Commission ("Commission") notified you of complaints in the above-numbered matters under review ("MURs") alleging violations of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (the "Act") and Commission regulations. Copies of the complaints were forwarded to you at that time. Upon review of the allegations contained in the complaints, the Commission, on July 24, 2019, found reason to believe that you violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121, a provision of the Act, and the Commission's regulation at 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i). The Factual and Legal Analysis, which formed a basis for the Commission's finding, is enclosed.

You may submit any factual or legal materials that you believe are relevant to the Commission's further consideration of this matter. Please submit such materials, along with responses to the enclosed questions and document requests, to the Office of the General Counsel within 15 days of receiving this notification. Where appropriate, statements should be submitted under oath. In the absence of additional information, the Commission may find probable cause to believe that a violation has occurred and proceed with conciliation. See 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(4).

If you intend to be represented by counsel in this matter, please advise the Commission by completing the enclosed form stating the name, address and telephone number of such counsel, and authorizing such counsel to receive any notifications and other communications from the Commission. Please note that you have a legal obligation to preserve all documents, records and materials relating to this matter until such time as you are notified that the Commission has closed its file in this matter. See 18 U.S.C. § 1519.

If you are interested in pursuing conciliation prior to finding of probable cause to believe a violation has occurred, you should make such a request by letter to the Office of the General Counsel. See 11 C.F.R. § 111.18(d). Upon receiving such a request, the Office of the General Counsel will recommend either that the Commission enter into an agreement in settlement of the matter or decline to pursue pre-probable cause conciliation at this time. The Office of the General Counsel may recommend not pursuing pre-probable cause conciliation in order to complete its investigation of the matter. Further, the Commission will not entertain requests for pre-probable cause conciliation after briefs on probable cause have been delivered to the respondents.

Requests for extensions of time are not routinely granted and may be conditioned on you entering into a tolling agreement with the Commission. Requests must be made in writing at least five days prior to the due date of the response and good cause must be demonstrated. In addition, the Office of the General Counsel ordinarily will not give extensions beyond 20 days. Pre-probable cause conciliation, extensions of time, and other enforcement procedures and options are discussed more comprehensively in the Commission's "Guidebook for Complainants and Respondents on the FEC Enforcement Process," which is available on the Commission's website at http://www.fec.gov/em/respondent_guide.pdf.

Please be advised that, although the Commission cannot disclose information regarding an investigation to the public, it may share information on a confidential basis with other law enforcement agencies.¹

This matter will remain confidential in accordance with 52 U.S.C. §§ 30109(a)(4)(B) and 30109(a)(12)(A) unless you notify the Commission in writing that you wish the matter to be made public. For your information, we have enclosed a brief description of the Commission's procedures for handling possible violations of the Act. FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSIONFACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

RESPONDENT: Christopher Wylie

MURs 7350 and 7351

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter was generated by complaints filed with the Federal Election Commission (“Commission”). See 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(1). These complaints allege that Christopher Wylie, a foreign national employee of Cambridge Analytica LLC (“Cambridge”), violated the provisions of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (“Act”), and Commission regulations that prohibit foreign nationals from directly or indirectly participating in the decision-making process of a political committee’s contributions or expenditures in connection with a federal election.

These allegations stem from services that Cambridge provided to four political committees during the 2014 election cycle: the Thom Tillis Committee and Collin McMichael in his official capacity as treasurer (“Tillis Committee”); the John Bolton Super PAC and Cabell Hobbs in his official capacity as treasurer (“Bolton PAC”); the North Carolina Republican Party and Jason Lemons in his official capacity as treasurer (“NCRP”); and Art Robinson for Congress and Art Robinson in his official capacity as treasurer (the “Robinson Committee”).¹

For the reasons explained fully below, the Commission finds reason to believe that Wylie violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

II. FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

A. Background

Cambridge is a limited liability company organized in Delaware on December 31, 2013.² SCL Group LTD (“SCL”) is based in England and registered in the United Kingdom on July 20, 2005.³ Cambridge reportedly began working for political committees in the U.S. during the 2014 election cycle.⁴ The Complaints allege, based on news reports, that Cambridge was “effectively a shell” and “any contracts won by Cambridge . . . would be serviced by London-based SCL and overseen by [Alexander] Nix, a British citizen,” who is a director of SCL and chief executive of Cambridge.⁵ “Most SCL employees and contractors” were reportedly foreign nationals from Canada or Europe.⁶

Mr. Nix, for instance, holds dual appointments at the two companies. Cambridge Analytica is registered in Delaware . . . but it is effectively a shell — it holds intellectual property rights to its psychographic modeling tools, yet its clients are served by the staff at London-based SCL and overseen by Mr. Nix, who is a British citizen.”); see also SCL Group Limited, U.K. Companies House Registration, Company No. 05514098, <https://beta.companieshouse.gov.uk/company/05514098/officers> (last visited Oct. 29, 2018) (listing Nix as SCL director from 2005-2012 and from 2016-2018).

According to former employees quoted in media reports, during the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge, like SCL, was “overwhelmingly staffed by non-U.S. citizens,”⁷ at least two of whom “were still answering ultimately to [Alexander] Nix” while working for U.S. political committees.⁸ Wylie, who worked for Cambridge during the 2014 election cycle and is a foreign national, reportedly asserts that he and “many foreign nationals worked on the campaigns, and many were embedded in the campaigns around the U.S.”⁹ Wylie also asserts that he was personally part of “multiple conference calls in 2014” with Nix and Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which “strategic campaign matters were discussed.”¹⁰ According to Wylie, on some of these calls, Cambridge’s leaders discussed whether the company was violating federal law by using foreign nationals to work on American political campaigns.¹¹ However, Cambridge reportedly provided no compliance training for its foreign employees on Wylie apparently played a significant role in founding Cambridge. See NYT March 17 Article (“[Wylie] helped found Cambridge and worked there until late 2014.”). Wylie reportedly left Cambridge at the end of the 2014 election cycle, although there is some dispute as to precisely when he left the company. Schechter Article (“Cambridge has said that Wylie left the company in July 2014. Wylie [claims that] while he gave notice in July, he continued to work for the company until just before the elections on Nov. 4, 2014.”). The circumstances of Wylie’s departure are also controverted: Wylie claims that he resigned because of his growing unease with Cambridge, while Cambridge contends that Wylie departed to start a competing company and became disgruntled when Cambridge sued him to enforce its intellectual property rights. See Timberg Article at 4.

¹⁰ MUR 7351 Compl. at ¶ 30 (quoting Timberg Article). Both Nix and Bannon, along with three others, are described by an internal Cambridge legal memorandum as “managers” of Cambridge; the memorandum notes that “Cambridge is currently being managed day to day by Mr. Nix,” a foreign national. 1 what conduct to avoid in order to comply with federal law while working for U.S. political 2 committees.¹²

3 The primary service that Cambridge offered its clients was a form of voter targeting that 4 it described as “psychological profiling to reach voters with individually tailored messages.”¹³
 5 Cambridge allegedly employed many foreign national data scientists, including Dr. Alexander
 6 Tayler, who led the data science team as the company’s Chief Data Officer.¹⁴ Cambridge 7 reportedly helped political committees “decide what voters to target with political messages and 8 what messages to deliver to them,” while also offering additional services such as “fundraising, 9 planning events, and providing communications strategy[.]”¹⁵ Wylie asserts that he and other 10 foreign nationals working for Cambridge “weren’t just working on messaging” but “were 11 instructing campaigns on which messages go where and to who.”¹⁶ Other employees have 12 supported this assertion, claiming that Cambridge “didn’t handle only data” but worked on 13 message development and targeting strategy.¹⁷

14 During the 2014 election cycle, Cambridge worked for several political committees,

B. Legal Analysis

1. Foreign Nationals May Not Directly or Indirectly Make Contributions, Donations, Expenditures, or Disbursements

The Act and Commission regulations prohibit any “foreign national” from directly or indirectly making a contribution or donation of money or other thing of value, or an expenditure, independent expenditure, or disbursement, in connection with a federal, state, or local election.³¹ The Act’s definition of “foreign national” includes an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States and who is not lawfully admitted for permanent residence, as well as a “foreign principal” as defined at 22 U.S.C. § 611(b), which, in turn, includes a “partnership,

³¹ 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(1); 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(b), (c), (e), (f). Courts have consistently upheld the provisions of the Act prohibiting foreign national contributions on the ground that the government has a clear, compelling interest in limiting the influence of foreigners over the activities and processes that are integral to democratic self-government, which include making political contributions and express-advocacy expenditures. See Bluman v. FEC, 800 F. Supp. 2d 281, 288-89 (D.D.C. 2011), aff’d 132 S. Ct. 1087 (2012); United States v. Singh, 924 F.3d 1030, 1040-44 (9th Cir. 2019).

1 association, corporation, organization, or other combination of persons organized under the laws
 2 of or having its principal place of business in a foreign country.”³² Commission regulations 3 implementing the Act’s foreign national prohibition provide:

4 A foreign national shall not direct, dictate, control, or directly or indirectly 5 participate in the decision-making process of any person, such as a corporation, 6 labor organization, political committee, or political organization with regard to 7 such person’s Federal or non-Federal election-related activities, such as decisions 8 concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or 9 disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political 10 committee.³³

11
 12 The Commission has explained that this provision also bars foreign nationals from “involvement 13 in the management of a political committee.”³⁴

14 In light of these provisions, Commission regulations permit any person or company — 15 foreign or domestic — to provide goods or services to a political committee, without making a 16 contribution, if that person or company does so as a “commercial vendor,” i.e., in the ordinary 17 course of business, and at the usual and normal charge, as long as foreign nationals do not 18 directly or indirectly participate in any committee’s management or decision-making process in 19 connection with its election-related activities.³⁵ For example, in MUR 5998, the Commission

³³ 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).

Reg. 69,928, 69,946 (Nov. 19, 2002); see also Advisory Op. 2004-26 at 2-3 (Weller) (noting that foreign national prohibition at section 110.20(i) is broad and concluding that, while a foreign national fiancé of the candidate could participate in committees’ activities as a volunteer without making a prohibited contribution, she “must not participate in [the candidate’s] decisions regarding his campaign activities” and “must refrain from managing or participating in the decisions of the Committees”).

³⁵ 11 C.F.R. § 114.2(f)(1); see 11 C.F.R. § 116.1(c) (defining “commercial vendor” as “any persons providing goods or services to a candidate or political committee whose usual and normal business involves the sale, rental, lease or provision of those goods or services). The Act defines a contribution to include “anything of value,” which in turn includes all “in-kind contributions,” such as “the provision of any goods or services without charge or at a charge that is less than the usual and normal charge for such goods or services.” 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(d)(1); see 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8). Goods or services provided at the usual and normal charge do not constitute a contribution under the Act. However, soliciting, accepting, or receiving information in connection with an election

1 found that the foreign national owners of a venue did not make or facilitate a contribution to a 2 political committee by allowing the committee to rent the venue for a fundraising event.³⁶ The 3 venue at issue was rented out for events in the ordinary course of business, and the owners
 4 charged the committee the usual and normal amount for the service.³⁷ The Commission noted 5 that there was no available information to suggest — and the foreign nationals and political 6 committee expressly denied — that the foreign nationals had any “decision-making role in the 7 event.”³⁸

8 The Commission has found that not all participation by foreign nationals in the election-
 9 related activities of others will violate the Act. In MUR 6959, for example, the Commission 10 found no reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by performing 11 clerical duties, such as online research and translations, during a one month-long internship with 12 a party committee.³⁹ Similarly, in MURs 5987, 5995, and 6015, the Commission found no
 13 reason to believe that a foreign national violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 by volunteering his services 14 to perform at a campaign fundraiser and agreeing to let the political committee use his name and 15 likeness in its emails promoting the concert and soliciting support, where the record did not from a foreign national, as opposed to purchasing the information at the usual and normal charge or hiring a foreign national in a bona fide commercial transaction to perform services for a federal campaign, could potentially result in the receipt of a prohibited in-kind contribution.

³⁹ Factual and Legal Analysis at 4-5, MUR 6959 (Cindy Nava) (noting that the available information, which was based on two press reports that did not detail the foreign national’s activities, did not indicate that the foreign national participated in any political committee’s decision-making process). The Commission also found that a $3,000 stipend that the foreign national received from third parties resulted in an in-kind contribution from the third parties to the committee, but the value of the foreign national volunteer’s services to the committee was not a contribution. Id. at 4-5 (citing 52 U.S.C. § 30101(8)(A)(ii); 11 C.F.R. § 100.54; Advisory Op. 1982-04 (Apodaca)).

1 indicate that the foreign national had been involved in the committee's decision-making process
2 in connection with the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or disbursements.⁴⁰ By 3 contrast, the Commission has consistently found a violation of the foreign national prohibition 4 where foreign national officers or directors of a U.S. company participated in the company's 5 decisions to make contributions or in the management of its separate segregated fund.⁴¹

6 2. There is Reason to Believe that Wylie Violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 7 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i) When He Participated in the Decision-Making 8 Process Regarding Election-Related Activities of Several Political 9 Committees During the 2014 Election Cycle :

10 Cambridge's usual and normal business involved providing data analytics and message 11 targeting services, and there is no specific information suggesting that Cambridge charged any 12 committee less than its usual and normal rate for such services. Even if Cambridge, which was 13 organized under the laws of Delaware and therefore appears to be a domestic company, was, 14 arguendo, a foreign company, it could provide services to a political committee as a commercial 15 vendor without thereby making a contribution to that committee, but foreign nationals may not 16 directly or indirectly participate in any committee's management or decision-making process in 17 connection with its election-related spending.

18 Wylie, a Cambridge foreign national employee, appears to have participated in the ⁴¹ See, e.g., Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6093 (Transurban Grp.) (U.S. subsidiary violated Act by making contributions after its foreign parent company's board of directors directly participated in determining whether to continue political contributions policy of its U.S. subsidiaries); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 6184 (Skyway Concession Company, LLC) (U.S. company violated Act by making contributions after its foreign national CEO participated in company's election-related activities by vetting campaign solicitations or deciding which nonfederal committees would receive company contributions, authorizing release of company funds to make contributions, and signing contribution checks); Conciliation Agreement, MUR 7122 (American Pacific International Capital, Inc. 1 decision-making processes of Cambridge's clients with respect to their election-related activities.

2 Wylie reportedly admits that he "worked on all of the company's U.S. political campaigns in 3 2014,"⁴² and that he was personally part of "multiple conference calls in 2014" with Nix and 4 Stephen K. Bannon, a Cambridge board member, in which "strategic campaign matters were 5 discussed."⁴³ During this period of time, Cambridge not only provided political committees with 6 communications and targeting advice, i.e., advice about how to effectively craft tailored 7 communications and target them to receptive voters in order to maximize the messages' impact, 8 but "directed" the committees in their messaging.⁴⁴

9 According to Wylie and internal Cambridge documents, he and other foreign nationals 10 were embedded in political committees and were "instructing campaigns on which messages go 11 where and to who."⁴⁵ By providing strategic advice to committees on both the content and target 12 audience for their campaign communications, Wylie may have helped shape political 13 committees' election-related spending decisions.

14 The available information supports a finding that Wylie may have participated in the 15 decision-making processes with regard to election-related activities of the Robinson Committee.
16 In contrast to the circumstances presented in Advisory Opinion 2004-26, it appears that foreign 17 nationals were "managing or participating in the decisions" of the Robinson Committee, because 18 Cambridge, which employed mostly foreigners in 2014, assumed "comprehensive" 19 responsibilities for the Robinson Committee during the 2014 election cycle, including managing

1 basic campaign functions and providing strategic advice.⁴⁶ Even if the Robinson Committee's 2 staff made all final decisions regarding the committee's management and electoral strategy, the 3 record indicates that Wylie participated, either directly or indirectly, in the Committee's 4 management or decision-making process in connection with the its expenditures.

5 The available information also supports a finding that Wylie may have participated in the 6 decision-making processes in connection with election-related spending of the Tillis Committee, 7 Bolton PAC, and NCRP. Cambridge reportedly provided "polling, focus groups and message 8 development" services for these committees during Thom Tillis's 2014 campaign for the U.S.
9 Senate in North Carolina.⁴⁷ Wylie reportedly claims to have worked on all of Cambridge's 10 political campaigns in 2014, including Thom Tillis's campaign.⁴⁸ Wylie reportedly admits that 11 "his largely foreign team" instructed the Tillis campaign on its messaging by crafting and 12 targeting the messaging, and that "his" team instructed campaigns on "which messages go where 13 and to who."⁴⁹

14 Wylie reportedly claims that "three or four full-time [Cambridge] staffers embedded in 15 Tillis's campaign on the ground in Raleigh [and all] of them were foreign nationals."⁵⁰ Another 16 former Cambridge employee also claims that most of the Tillis campaign's messaging team was 17 composed of foreign nationals.⁵¹ These assertions indicate that Wylie may have worked with not

1 only the Tillis Committee, but also the NCRP and Bolton PAC in support of Tillis's campaign
2 for the U.S. Senate. Wylie and other Cambridge employees may also have been embedded with 3 the NCRP to provide targeting advice used to create and distribute communications supporting 4 Tillis's campaign.⁵² Wylie and another former Cambridge employee also contend that 5 Cambridge helped develop data models and message concepts for the Bolton PAC's
6 communications supporting Tillis during the 2014 election.⁵³

7 The key issue is not whether Wylie had final decision-making authority or final say
8 regarding any analysis, but whether he participated, directly or indirectly, in a Cambridge client's 9 management or decision-making process in connection with its "election-related activities, such 10 as decisions concerning the making of contributions, donations, expenditures, or 11 disbursements . . . or decisions concerning the administration of a political committee."⁵⁴ Here, 12 the available information supports the conclusion that Wylie may have done both by 13 participating in the committees' decision-making regarding their communications strategy and 14 expenditures.

15 Based on all of the available information regarding Cambridge's conduct, and Wylie's 16 personal involvement in that conduct while working for Cambridge, the Commission finds 17 reason to believe that Wylie violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121 and 11 C.F.R. § 110.20(i).
