Corporations, Elections and Commissions, August 30-31, 2004.

TRANSCRIPT OF TESTIMONY FROM DOROTHY MELANSON, CHAIRWOMAN OF MAINE DEMOCRATIC PARTY
Public Hearing Before the Bureau of Corporations, Elections and Commissions
Augusta, Maine
August 30 and 31, 2004

HB = Attorney Harold H. Burbank II (Attorney for Ralph Nader and Peter Miguel Camejo)
DM = Dorothy Melanson (Chairwoman for Maine Democratic Party)

HB: Good Morning, or Good Afternoon I should say.

DM: Good afternoon.

HB: Well after going through all this testimony, and the reading I've done and the hearing of all the issues raised, I have but really one question. And that is why do you feel compelled to bring this challenge against Mr. Nader and Mr. Camejo, who represent, in my judgment, the views of not less than 4,000 signatories of petitions that attempt to place him on the ballot in Maine? And in your own words can you explain to me what your motivations are?

DM: We had heard from several people who felt that they were somewhat tricked into signing these petitions. We also were alerted to problems in other states—many other states. As I'm sure you're aware...

HB: No, I am not aware, but...

DM: So we started looking into the petitions themselves; we started looking into the electors, and just to make sure everything was okay. This is a nationwide process that many states are going through the exact same thing with the exact same problems.

HB: When you say it's a nationwide process, is it being coordinated from any central location?

DM: Um...the Democratic Party. The national Party is certainly looking at it. There's also an organization called stopnader.com.

HB: Okay. Are you affiliated with stopnader.com?

DM: I am not at all.

HB: Are you affiliated with the Democratic Party?

DM: I most certainly am.

HB: In what capacity is that?

10044270110

DM: I am the Chair of the Maine Democratic Party.

HB: The Chair of the Maine Democratic Party. Do you have any personal feeling or belief toward either candidate Nader or candidate Camejo that they personally are unqualified for the office of President and Vice President of the United States?

DM: I don't know one thing about the Vice Presidential candidate Camejo. I have no idea. In my personal opinion, Mr. Nader is not qualified for me.

HB: Right.

DM: In my qualifications.

HB: But is he unfit for office in any way that would disqualify him personally or legally to apply to be a candidate in any state due to crime, fraud, duress, placed on voters or persons?

DM: There were some states—I don't have the documentation in front of me now—that many many of his signatures were removed.

HB: I'm talking about Mr. Nader personally now.

DM: Personally?

HB: Yes.

DM: I think he's old enough and a citizen, and he meets all the qualifications in the Constitution.

HB: You're not aware that he's ever committed any crimes...

DM: I'm not aware.

HB: That would disqualify him for running for office?

DM: No.

HB: You're not aware of any campaigns he's run to discredit people on a false basis or lend the air of fraud to the careers of other candidates for public office?

DM: I'm not aware.

HB: Or mistake or lack of qualification due to anything other than perhaps their public positions—such as policy decisions, election records, that kind of thing? You're not aware of Mr. Nader being disqualified for any reason that the public can scrutinize through the media, through libraries, through records of any kind, other than perhaps, you know, on a petition basis that you brought your petition on today?

DM: There are many states that have the same questions. But other than that, I'm not aware of any fraud that Mr. Nader has committed.

HB: Or any other basis he should be disqualified as a candidate for President of the United States?

DM: No.

HB: He has committed no treason against the United States?

DM: Not that I'm aware of.

HB: He has committed no other act of national security depreciation that would disqualify him from becoming a candidate for President of the United States?

DM: Not that I'm aware of.

HB: Can you describe in your own words what kinds of discussions you had prior to filing this petition with members of the Democratic Party that encouraged you to become involved—I assume encouraged—you to become involved in this process of challenge?

DM: There were a great many discussions other state party chairs have had discussions regarding their own state's process looking at the Nader petitions.

HB: Have you seen these petitions yourself?

DM: Yes I have.

HB: All—everything that's in this box here?

DM: (Inaudible)

HB: And you and your attorneys have worked—I mean, you've worked—with them to examine each of these signatures?

DM: Mmmm Hmmm.

HB: And do you have any objections—I mean, are you going to personally raise any objections to some of these petitions or are you going to rely on your attorneys to do this for you?

DM: My attorneys.

10044270112

HB: To do this for you. How long have you been Chair—you're Chair of the Maine Democratic Party? How many years have you held this position?

DM: Nine and a half.

HB: And have you ever held a political office prior to this?

DM: I've...

HB: Party office?

DM: Many party offices out of the Democratic National Committee...(inaudible)...prior to that.

HB: In the—from the state of Maine?

DM: Yes.

HB: Okay. Any other states?

DM: No, just Maine.

HB: Maine? You're from Maine?

DM: I moved here when I was a child.

HB: But you were raised here?

DM: I was.

HB: You went to school here?

DM: I did.

HB: And you worked here and you've lived here since?

DM: Uhhh Huh.

HB: You've never moved away for any length of time?

DM: No.

HB: Did you instruct your attorneys to make contact with the Democratic Party of the state of Maine for information about the challenges that they would like to see brought regarding these petitions?

10044270113

DM: No.

Opposing Attorney: I'm going to object to this—attorney-client communication.

DM: Yeah.

HB: Did you contact the Democratic Party in the state of Maine and the members thereof and ask them whether they would like you to bring the challenges we see today in these petitions?

DM: The question being did I contact other members of the Party and ask them...

HB: Yes. Did you...

DM: I did not.

HB: You never asked any member of the Democratic Party whether you could, should think about bringing a challenge as a resident citizen of the state of Maine, as to the quality of the petitions that have been submitted?

DM: Many members of the Democratic Party urged us to look.

HB: My question is did you ask them if you should do it.

DM: For permission? No.

HB: Did you ask their opinion if you should do it?

DM: No.

HB: You've done this completely of your own volition and will and independent mind?

DM: Correct.

HB: Did you make the assumption that your Party would support your work in this regard?

DM: My Party has supported that work.

HB: It is acting in concert to help you?

DM: My state party...

HB: The state party or the national party—either level.

DM: Members of my party—state and national—support this work.

HB: And do they support you?

10044270114

DM: Well they certainly have.

HB: Do they contact you personally?

DM: Great many members.

HB: Do they send you funds?

DM: (Silence) Uhh—we get funds from state and national—from our members and from the national party.

HB: Do you get them personally?

DM: Do I get them personally?

HB: Yeah.

DM: From the national party?

HB: Yes.

DM: My salary? Is that what you're talking about?

HB: Well does the national party pay you for this—I didn't realize this was a paid position?

DM: It is a paid position.

HB: Okay. Did they send you a separate fund to bring this challenge? Did they send you specified monies to pay attorneys to bring this challenge?

DM: There has been an arrangement, but it is not with me. I believe that comes under client.

HB: I'm asking you if the Democratic Party has contacted you personally and said we will support with money with other supports that as you need them to bring a challenge against the petitions of Ralph Nader and Miguel Camejo in the state of Maine. Has the Democratic Party contacted you personally and asked you to do this?

DM: Yes.

HB: And have they said they will help you pay for it?

DM: They said they would help in many ways.

HB: Did they say they would help...

10044270115

DM: Financially.

HB: Did they say they would help you pay for it?

DM: Yes.

HB: Did they tell you how much money they would give you?

DM: No.

HB: Did you ask them?

DM: No.

HB: Are they paying for your attorneys?

DM: They are.

HB: Do they expect that you should make a response to them in your capacity as state Democratic Chair once these hearings are concluded and a decision is rendered by the Secretary of State's office?

DM: Are they expected to hear what the decision is?

HB: From you personally?

DM: Yes.

HB: Was this part of the agreement that you made with them, I mean, I characterize what I've heard so far as an agreement between them and you to perform certain deeds for funds and to make a response as part of this agreement. Is that correct? In other words, they're expecting a report?

DM: There are members of the Democratic National Committee who certainly want to hear what the outcome of this.

HB: They're expecting to hear this from you and from no other person?

DM: Or from my attorneys.

HB: Well, do you expect that they will call you and ask you to provide this information? Once these hearings are concluded...

DM: I'm expecting that I'll probably call them first.

10044270116

HB: Okay. Have they ever promised to in some way notify you of the amount of funds they are willing to spend to complete this process?

DM: We have not spoken about specific amounts.

HB: Have they given you any indication they would not limit the funds?

DM: We have not had that discussion.

HB: I have nothing further.

Democrats' Legal Challenges Impede Nader

By KATHARINE Q. SEELYE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 - Ralph Nader's efforts to get his name on presidential ballots in important swing states are becoming mired in legal challenges and charges of fraud by Democrats who have mounted an extensive campaign to keep him from becoming a factor in this year's election.

Recent polls show that Mr. Nader could draw at least 2 or 3 percent of the vote in more than a dozen states where the race now appears close enough for him to alter the outcome, most likely to the detriment of Senator John Kerry, the Democratic nominee, and in favor of President Bush.

With Republicans in several states acknowledging that they are bankrolling and gathering signatures for Mr. Nader, local Democratic parties across the country, aided by a group of lawyers calling themselves the Ballot Project Inc., have initiated mini-campaigns to stop him, state by state.

"The Democrats are making this as difficult and as debilitating for him as possible, making him expend blood, sweat and tears for every inch," said Charles E. Cook Jr., a nonpartisan analyst who tracks races in every state. "He has only so many hours in the day and so many resources. And to the extent that he's tied up trying to get on the ballots, he's not getting any kind of message across."

So far, only three states have closed the door on Mr. Nader: Georgia, Oklahoma and Indiana. He seems close to getting on the ballot in 11 states, either on the Reform Party line or as an independent, though he could still face challenges in some. He has filed petitions in about 20 others and is awaiting rulings on their validity. He has yet to file in 18 states.

Most of Mr. Nader's deadlines come this month: the due dates for 23 states fall from Aug. 2 to Aug. 24, meaning he has had to meet almost daily deadlines across the country while fending off lawsuits.

He is entangled in an assortment of suits, many in states that may be the most contested in November. He is in court in Michigan, Pennsylvania, Arizona and West Virginia, and faces potential suits or administrative challenges in Oregon, Iowa, New Hampshire, Nevada and Maine. He is also in court in Texas and Illinois, which are not swing states but where his challenge to state ballot requirement is diverting his time and resources.

The legal strategies in most states are being developed by local Democrats, but the Ballot Project is helping them to find lawyers to work pro bono and share information. "We're doing everything we can to facilitate lawyers in over 20 states," said Toby Moffett, a Washington lobbyist and former Connecticut congressman, who, with Elizabeth Holtzman, a former congresswoman from New York, is overseeing the Ballot Project.

Because of federal campaign finance laws, the project cannot coordinate its activities with either the Kerry campaign or the national Democratic Party, but the party approves of the legal challenges, said Jano Cabrera, a spokesman, and is closely monitoring Mr. Nader's progress.

In 2000, Mr. Nader won access to the ballot as a candidate of the Green Party in 43 states. Now as an independent, he has to fight his way on in most states. The requirements vary from the minimal in Louisiana and Colorado, which require only that a candidate pay $500, to the more onerous, like Texas, which required 64,000 signatures as early as May 10.

"There is no other country in the world that has free elections that forces a candidate for chief executive to have to wrestle with 51 separate sets of laws," said Richard Winger, an expert on ballot access laws.

In Pennsylvania, a major battleground, Democrats have taken Mr. Nader to court, saying that more than 30,000 of the 47,000 signatures he filed Aug. 2 were of unregistered voters or were forged, fictitious or otherwise defective and should disqualify him from the ballot.

Similarly in Oregon, the Service Employees International Union, which has endorsed Mr. Kerry, said that an initial examination of signatures filed there found that at least two-thirds were forged, had the wrong address or otherwise constituted what the union called "overwhelming and systemic fraud," a charge the Nader campaign denied.

The fight has become fierce in Oregon, with anti-Nader forces telling people circulating Nader petitions that they could be jailed and fined if they submitted fraudulent signatures. The Nader campaign said that its circulators were being intimidated and that 30 had quit as a result.

"Where are the battles?" asked Kevin Zeese, Mr. Nader's spokesman. "Everywhere. It doesn't matter if it's a swing state or a safe state. The Democrats are doing their best to harass us everywhere. Their goal is to divert our resources and bleed our campaign."

At the same time, challenging the Nader petitions is "extremely difficult," said Dan Booker, a partner at Reed Smith, a Pittsburgh law firm that helped build the case against Mr. Nader in Pennsylvania.

The drive by Pennsylvania Democrats is one of the most extensive and offers a glimpse into what it takes to mount such a challenge.

Mr. Booker said that 8 to 10 lawyers in his firm were working pro bono on the case, 80 hours each a week for two weeks, and could end up working six more weeks. The firm also took on more than 100 volunteers.

Working with Reed Smith was a Philadelphia lawyer, Gregory M. Harvey, an elections specialist who has been detached from his firm while he organized 70 volunteers at his end of the state.

The state required Mr. Nader to submit 25,697 signatures by Aug. 2. To help gather them, Mr. Nader hired a professional firm to circulate petitions. In Philadelphia, he also hired homeless people, offering them 75 cents a name up to 300 signatures, then $1 a name, Mr. Harvey said.

Reporters for The Philadelphia Inquirer wrote that they had observed some of the circulators repeatedly signing each other's petitions and telling passersby that they could sign any name they wanted.

On Aug. 2, the Nader campaign filed about 47,000 signatures in Harrisburg. The Democrats responded with the equivalent of a statewide bucket brigade: Officials in Harrisburg, under the auspices of H. William DeWeese, the House minority leader, photocopied the 47,000 signatures and trucked them to Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, where volunteers began examining them line by line. They had one week in which to file their challenge.

In Pittsburgh, software programmers and data-entry volunteers occupied three conference rooms at Reed Smith, where they created a database of the 47,000 names that were checked against the state's list of registered voters.

In Philadelphia, Mr. Harvey sent volunteers to the city board of elections, where they compared the signatures from the petitions with those on voter registration lists.

In one week, the teams produced a two-foot-high stack of pleadings showing what their court papers called "a wide-ranging and extensive pattern of false and forged entries."

Mr. Zeese of the Nader campaign acknowledged that some of the signatures had been forged but said those were not filed.

"We discarded 7,000 signatures in Pennsylvania that were fraudulent," he said, before petitions were filed with the state. On Aug. 11, James Gardner Colins, president judge of the Commonwealth Court, ordered all parties to meet Thursday to set a date for hearing the evidence. He took the highly unusual step of ordering at least five judges in courtrooms throughout the state to hear the individual signature challenges simultaneously. That means at least five cadres of lawyers for the challengers and for Mr. Nader and probably handwriting experts for each side in each courtroom.

Samuel C. Stretton, a Philadelphia elections lawyer who represents Mr. Nader, said Wednesday that he was "getting nervous" because his own spot check of the signatures was showing that, just as the Democrats had charged, many were not those of registered voters.

"They've put together one of the best organized petition challenges I've ever seen," Mr. Stretton said of the Democrats. He said he would ask the court on Thursday to order a check of the signatures and that if a large percentage were not those of registered voters, he would recommend that Mr. Nader drop the case.

Mr. Zeese said it was "crazy" to have to appear in five courtrooms at once. "This is a perfect game plan for how to destroy independent politics in this country," he said, accusing Democrats of "antidemocratic activities."

Cynthia E. Kernick, another Reed Smith partner, said that there was nothing undemocratic about the effort. "Our role is not to challenge the valid voter, but Nader ought not to be treated differently from anyone who wants to get on the ballot," she said. "He can't just get on because he's a legend. That doesn't give him the ability to make shortcuts."

Nader Still Unsure of Ballot Spot in Many States

By Jonathan Flear and Brian Falar
Washington Post Staff Writers
Tuesday, August 24, 2004; Page A09

Ten weeks before the 2004 presidential election, Ralph Nader is mired in an arduous struggle to get his name on the ballot in a host of states he contested four years ago.

Yesterday, Michigan election officials deadlocked over whether to accept Nader's petition to be on the ballot as an independent candidate, which Democrats argued was riddled with fraud, sending the issue to an appeals court.

Earlier in the day, a federal court in Illinois denied Nader's challenge to state election laws. He contended they are too hostile to independent candidates, in part because the June 21 deadline for submitting a petition to get on the ballot is earlier than those of almost every other state.

Dogged by an unprecedented public relations and legal campaign against him by the Democratic Party and like-minded groups — which fear that his candidacy will swing the election to President Bush — the longtime consumer advocate has failed to meet qualifying standards for the ballot in Arizona, California, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, Oklahoma, South Carolina and Texas. He faces other challenges to his petitions in numerous states: 17 more state filing deadlines occur in the coming weeks.

"We wanted to neutralize his campaign by forcing him to spend money and resources defending these things," said Toby Moffett, a lobbyist and former Nader supporter who co-founded Ballot Project Inc., which is assisting with legal challenges to Nader by Democrats in a number of states. "But much to our astonishment we've actually been more successful than we thought we'd be in stopping him from getting on at all."

A clear picture of which state ballots will list Nader — who in 2000 was on ballots in 43 states plus the District — may not emerge until early October, when most ballots are finalized.

Many states' ballots are still in flux because of the likelihood of further challenges and appeals, such as in Virginia, where the State Board of Elections rejected Nader's petition last Friday. Attorney General Jerry W. Kilgore (R) reversed the decision yesterday.

Despite efforts to thwart Nader, his campaign said he will likely succeed in several closely contested states, including Florida, where he received 97,000 votes in 2000, while Bush beat Democrat Al Gore by a few hundred votes.

"We believe we will be on the ballot in the vast majority of states," said Nader spokesman Kevin Zeese. "But it takes away from media attention we might get otherwise, and voters don't get to hear about the issues, only the ballot access fights. In 2000, we didn't have to waste so much time floundering off dirty tricks."

In his last run for president, Nader was nominated by the Green Party and received 2.7 percent of the vote. This year, at the urging of the Democrats and many former Nader backers, the party, which claims more than 20 automatic slots on state ballots, denied Nader its endorsement, leaving Nader to contend with a range of requirements to get on the ballot that vary from state to state.

He did receive the nomination of the Reform Party, which claims ballot lines in seven states, including Michigan and Florida. In Delaware, he has been nominated by the Independent Party, which has a ballot line there.

In several states, the ballot disputes have turned nasty, with Democrats lining up teams of lawyers to scrutinize petitions and allege rampant fraud, and Nader accusing the party of using dirty tricks to keep him off the ballot.

Moffett says his group has raised about $100,000 to fight Nader and is relying on pro bono work from lawyers across the country who have contributed up to $2 million worth of labor. The Nader campaign would not disclose how much the legal wrangles have cost.

In Oregon last month, Nader attempted to round up 1,000 supporters in a day to sign a petition — one way to get on the ballot in that state. But Democratic activists packed the hall and then declined to sign on, leaving his petition a few hundred names short. His campaign must collect 15,300 signatures by today, and it has accused local Democrats and union officials of threatening petition gatherers with jail time if they turn in names that prove fraudulent.

Democrats in Pennsylvania, where Nader submitted 47,000 names, have filed suit alleging that the vast majority are fraudulent.

Two new challenges were made yesterday to Nader's petitions. In Maine, where he filed just 128 more than the requisite 4,000 signatures, anti-Nader activists are hoping to disqualify him. In West Virginia, state Attorney General Darrell V. McGraw Jr. (D) filed a lawsuit alleging that people collecting signatures for the candidate employed tactics — including concealing the fact that the petition was for Nader — that violated state election laws.

Challenges are also underway in several other states, including New Hampshire and Iowa.

In Michigan, Nader was forced to sue for recognition as the Reform Party candidate, after state officials ruled in July that the party's 2000 schism into two wings made it impossible to determine which branch could choose a nominee.

In a separate attempt to get on the ballot there, he submitted a petition to run as an independent, but it emerged that 45,040 of the 50,503 signatures submitted on his behalf were gathered by Republicans. The state requires candidates to collect 30,000 signatures to be placed on the ballot.

A brief filed by state Democrats with the Michigan Board of Canvassers contends that petitions circulated by Republicans were stamped "paid for by Nader for President 2004," which the brief calls "false and misleading," and that many of the people listed are not registered voters, and their signatures are therefore invalid.

The Nader campaign did not send a representative to the hearing, in which the four-member board was evenly split on whether to accept the petition. That meant Nader must make his case in court to run as an independent.

Zeese said the campaign is focused on making Nader the Reform

10044270151

Party candidate in the state.

Nader, whose support in some national polls has fallen as low as 2 to 4 percent, has raised just over $1.5 million as of June 30, leaving him with less cash on hand than accumulated debts, according to the Center for Responsive Politics. Nader has yet to run a television ad, but at least two Democratic-leaning anti-Nader groups — the Nader Factor and Stop Nader — have waged media efforts against him. The Nader Factor will launch a television ad today in New Mexico and Wisconsin, where Nader is gathering signatures, in which a voice-over states that "Ralph Nader is taking help from the right wing" as a bumper sticker reading "Bush-Nader '04" emerges on the screen.

While Republicans do not deny offering logistical support to Nader's petition efforts in several states, direct financial contributions from those who have also donated to Bush so far amount to $54,300, or 4 percent of the $1.5 million Nader has raised.

Others who have taken to Nader's cause include those who believe that attempts to block him undermine democratic principles.

"It is unprecedented, as far as I know to have a major party campaigning to prevent a candidate from simply being able to run, because it might hurt them in the election," said Harry Kresky, an attorney for the Committee for a Unified Independent Party, a think tank that has filed its own FEC complaint, accusing Democrats of improperly using public funds to try to stop Nader in several states.

Lawyers, aided by Democratic leaders, challenge Nader petitions

By The Associated Press
Tuesday, August 10, 2004

HARRISBURG (AP) — Lawyers in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia on Monday challenged independent presidential candidate Ralph Nader's petitions to get on Pennsylvania's Nov. 2 ballot, alleging that thousands of the signatures are forged, fictitious or legally flawed in other ways.

Pittsburgh lawyer Efram M. Grail, who challenged Nader's petitions on behalf of seven western Pennsylvania voters, said in his filing that more than 30,000 signatures were invalid because the signers were not registered voters — more than enough to prevent Nader from competing against President Bush and Democratic nominee John Kerry for Pennsylvania's 21 electoral votes.

Gregory M. Harvey, a Philadelphia lawyer who conducted a tandem review on behalf of a Philadelphia voter, said he found "a wide-ranging and extensive pattern of false and forged entries, entries obtained through deception of signers and whole pages of outright forged signatures."

The lawyers, who were aided by Democratic leaders in the state House of Representatives in a weeklong review of Nader's petitions, filed the challenges in state Commonwealth Court in Harrisburg on behalf of several individual voters. No hearing was immediately scheduled.

Both lawyers also cited examples of duplicate signatures, illegible signatures or addresses, and other alleged defects that they said invalidate the entries.

Nader campaign spokesman Kevin Zeese dismissed the allegations as "absolute nonsense."

"They're grasping at straws," he said yesterday in a telephone interview from Washington.

Zeese said the Nader campaign reviewed the signatures before they were filed and discarded all that seemed legally questionable. He acknowledged finding "more than we would like to have found," but maintained that there remained more than enough valid signatures to get Nader on the ballot.

Less than three months before the election, Nader is on the ballot in New Jersey and Nevada, and he is entitled to be listed as the Reform Party nominee in six other states. He hopes to qualify in more than the 43 states in which he competed as the Green Party's presidential nominee in 2000.

In Pennsylvania, Nader supporters turned in more than 47,000 signatures, according to the lawsuit — far more than the 25,000 that are required. Under state law, people who sign the petitions must be registered voters and list their addresses in order to be considered valid.

Most of the signatures were collected in Philadelphia, including many that were gathered by a contractor who paid petition circulators between 75 cents and $1 per signature, the lawyers said.

The lawyers submitted affidavits from people who said Nader's petition circulators made false statements to prospective signers, such as telling them their signature would simply confirm their voter registration or that it was necessary in order for them to get a registration card.

Democrats have said they are concerned that Nader's presence on the ballot could drain away support from their own nominee, and potentially cost him a crucial battleground state with the fifth-largest electoral prize.

"Unlike the Nader supporters who used deception and mischief to collect thousands of invalid signatures, we are being completely open about our intentions. Our goal is to help elect John Kerry the next president of the United States," said state House Minority Leader H. William DeWeese.

An independent Quinnipiac University poll conducted last month showed Kerry leading President Bush in the state, 48 percent to 42 percent, in a two-way race. Adding Nader to the equation showed Kerry's support dwindling to 46 percent, compared to 41 percent for Bush and 5 percent for Nader.

Although DeWeese and Minority Whip Michael Veon had publicly vowed to challenge Nader's petitions since before they were filed, Grail and Harvey said they themselves recruited volunteers to review the petitions and did the legal work for free. Grail said the House Democrats provided a statewide list of registered voters and paid some of the copying expenses.

He is one of the last true radicals in American public life and the man who single-handedly created the politics of consumer rights. So, after a disastrous result this year, will Ralph Nader run for the nation's highest office again? Julian Berger asks him

Defeat comes in many guises. There is the narrow loss the Democrats are now reeling from, made all the more bitter by their fleeting, deceptive, taste of impending victory on election day. Then there is the absolute, obliterating rout that Ralph Nader suffered on November 2, when even some of his diehard supporters seemed to abandon him in the solitude of the polling booth. From nearly 3% in 2000, his share of the national vote evaporated this year to a third of a percentage point, a political presence so vanishingly small that the Democrats are not even bothering this time to blame him for their loss.

You might think such a political annihilation would destroy the confidence of even the most thick-skinned politician. But Nader, one of the last true radicals in American public life, thrives on this kind of setback. In an interview at his Washington offices, he shows not a flicker of self-doubt or self-pity. He feels sorry instead for the American electorate and the liberals who deserted them. He fears they may be sick. "They became anyone-but-Bush," he recalls. "We called them viral liberals - liberals whose brain closes down to any kind of tactics, strategies and alternative ways of defeating Bush other than letting the Democrats decide. It was an absolute brain-closing - a state of being a political zombie."

Nader is now 70 but appears to be in top form. In a campaign office still buzzing with enthusiastic young volunteers, he lolls in a plastic office chair, doing what he never tires of - dissecting America's political culture in both amusement and outrage.

George Bush and John Kerry both took holidays after the election. Not Nader. He leapt immediately into his next battle - calling for a recount in Ohio. He thinks Kerry may have been robbed of the presidency there. The Kerry Democrats decided the day after the election that the Ohio margin was too great (more than 130,000) to challenge realistically. But in Nader's eyes they are just too gutless to stick up for themselves. "You don't concede something like that. We are the ones doing what the Democrats should be doing," he says contemptuously.

Asked whether he had taken any time off lately, Nader appears not to understand the question. He thinks for a moment and offers that he likes hiking and sees the occasional film. For Nader, there is nothing outside the ceaseless campaign. He has never been married or had children. He does not play brash, risky sports like Kerry, or hole up at a ranch like Bush. He has none of the usual politician's hinterland. His causes, the often lonely battle against the mega-corporations and their dominance of American politics, and his quixotic, four-yearly tilts at the presidency, are all there is. "It's a full commitment. That was decided a long time ago," he says, adding a favourite slogan: "The forces of injustice never take a day off."

Nader could once claim a legion of friends and admirers in the world of American progressive politics, of which he has been the patron saint for more than three decades. He single-handedly created the politics of consumer rights with his campaign against the ropy Chevrolet Corvair, and his 1985 book Unsafe at Any Speed revolutionised the car industry, forcing manufacturers to install seatbelts and stop building death traps.

At campuses across the country Nader inspired young people to form their own public citizen's groups holding corporate America to account. Since 2000, almost all that extended family of fellow travellers has deserted him. Half opposed his presidential bid that year, accusing him of splitting the progressive vote and allowing Bush to reach the White House. Four years on, the other half of Nader's circle pleaded with him not to run. The Green party, which nominated him in 2000, turned cool on him, and even the liberal Hollywood elite made their excuses and got on board the Kerry campaign. "There were so many of them," Nader sighs. "Jackson Browne called apologetically ... Susan Sarandon, Willie Nelson, Ani DiFranco, Paul Newman, Michael Moore - there was a real viral."

The maker of Fahrenheit 9/11 campaigned fiercely for Nader in 2000 but this year joined the chorus of calls for him to stay out of the race. All this made no difference, of course. Universal opposition only encourages Nader. It simply reflects the depth of the rot he has to scrape out of the American body politic. "That is how corrupt the system is, that good people turn against you," he says. "Our political system is an idiocracy. It's the laughing stock of the western world."

Nader's campaign pledge to drain the sea of corporate cash from party politics, withdraw from Iraq and slash the defence budget attracted 7% support in the volatile opinion polls. He walked into the Kerry HQ on May 19 and offered a non-aggression pact. If Kerry left Nader alone, Nader would spend 90% of his campaign time attacking the president. He would take the economic populist approach and focus on Bush's immersion in big-business interests - a line mainstream Democrats generally shy away from for fear of accusations of class warfare.

Nader refused to bow out of the swing states, but insisted he would not cost Kerry votes. Instead, Nader's participation would boost the leftwing turnout and both men would gain. To this day, Nader insists it was a good deal. "I said 'If I get a million voters out, you'll get 65% of them. Once they get in the voting booth they are going to want to be with a winner.'"

To Democrats the logic seemed counter-intuitive, to put it mildly. They remembered Florida, where Gore lost to Bush by 537 votes while Nader took 97,000 votes. At the May meeting, Kerry kept his thoughts to himself. Nader emerged thinking they had had a "noncommittal but cordial" session and describing Kerry as "presidential". Meanwhile, Nader's enemies on the left were gathering. Three pro-Kerry groups emerged over the summer dedicated to keeping Nader off the ballot in as many states as possible. The ballot war was nasty, a struggle of attrition fought in the courts over signatures and the technicalities of state law. After Florida in 2000, it was the next step in the transformation of American elections into a gladiatorial battle between rival armies of lawyers.

For both sides, means justified ends. Toby Moffett, an old friend and disciple of Nader's who has long since parted ways ideologically, spearheaded the ballot access campaign against him. He says it had to be done. "I talk about it without any glee because we lost the greater battle. It's a ridiculous little asterisk of history. But I think we had a role in the ballot challenges. We distracted him and drained him of resources," Moffett claims, but adds: "I'd be less than honest if I said it was all about the law. It was all about stopping Bush from getting elected."

Nader accuses his foes of "constitutional crimes" for their efforts to keep him off state ballots, accusing them of intimidating his signature gatherers with spurious threats of jail terms. "Not in a hundred years has anyone received the kind of ballot-access attack that we received," he said. "We showed that by stressing the Democratic party, the mucus, the pus and the political bigotry all came out."

Under pressure, and short of signatures supporting his candidacy in key states, Nader made some compromises of his own. He sought and won the nomination of the Reform party, a quirky and faction-riddled group united principally by its antipathy to immigration. He also accepted signatures collected by Republicans only too happy to help his cause. Nader insists that the Democrats' tactics left him little choice.

For Moffett and many of Nader's former admirers, his presidential campaigns have been an ego-driven vanity project that has sullied the legacy of decades of activism. "At the end of the day, it really appeared to be all about him. That's what people will remember. It's a very sad thing," Moffett says.

A handful on the left hold a more charitable view that, long after the unpleasantness of the past two elections is forgotten, Americans will have reason to think Nader whenever they strap on a seat-belt. "Nader's admirable accomplishments as a whistleblower and exposé of corporate greed will be remembered in history as far more important than his presidential aspirations," Howard Zinn,

America's pre-eminent radical historian, argued in an email exchange.

Nader himself professes not to be very interested in his legacy. His eyes are instead on the next fight. After contesting Ohio, he plans to assemble an anti-war coalition that will seek to impeach Bush for leading the country into war on false pretences. After that, the 2008 presidential race beckons, and another opportunity to infuriate mainstream liberals. Nader says he has not made up his mind whether to run for the nation's highest office once more.

If he is asked by enough people, he will consider it, but whether he does or not, he argues, someone will have to raise a banner to the left of the Democrats. "If every four years the progressive agenda is not placed before the electorate, then it atrophies," Nader says. "You have to keep the flame alive."

Our Mission

The Unity Campaign is a project of the Progressive Unity Voter Fund, a political cor the Federal Election Commission. The Unity Campaign unites, mobilizes, and infor beat Bush - and to counter the threat posed by Ralph Nader's divisive candidacy. T 2004, especially in swing states, in this incredibly close election, and with so very fi Progressives can make the difference. We can deliver Kerry the presidency, and g; table based on victory and results - instead of pious complaint, more electoral fallu catastrophic years of George Bush.

The Unity Campaign is a successor campaign to RalphDontRun.net, which no doul most successful "failed" internet campaigns in American political history. It drew 30 in six weeks, and reached 80 million Americans in four days via pervasive media c; candidacy announcement. Sadly, against the advice of nearly all those closest to h running and apparently in the race to stay. Other projects of the Fund include Dont PollWatch04, and the "Ralph, Tell the Truth" internet petition drive.

Our theme is unity among progressives of any description. Look at just a few of the Nader in 2000, but who see that this year is crucially different: Noam Chomsky, Bei Phil Donahue, Ronnie Dugger, Jim Hightower, Robert McCheaney, Michael Moore, fact, one is hard pressed to think of a single prominent Nader supporter from 2000 2004. Are we all members of Nader's derided "liberal intelligentsia?" Or is the Bush such a disaster that we realize there is only one responsible action for real progres: Nader's inevitable disagreement, we don't think everyone is out of step but Ralph.

The Progressive Unity Voter Fund is not affiliated with any candidate, party or orga; John Pearce and Kathy Cramer, with Flash development by Paul Erskine of Turtle I Francisco; Flash and movie development, measurement and delivery technology b; Newton, MA; website development and technology consulting from Aaron Murphy; from Gloria Totten, Executive Director of Progressive Majority, and Jeff Cohen, fom Director of Kucinich for President.

We invite your comments at info@dontvoteralph.net, and urgently request your co; our work by credit card, check, or PayPal. All contributions will be applied entirely t; campaign and its further promotion.

Check if your organization is covered by the General rule or a Special rule. (Note: Only a section 501(c)(7), (8), or (10) organization can check box(es) for both the General rule and a Special rule - see instructions.)

General Rule -

- For organizations filing Form 990, 990-EZ, or 990-PF that received, during the year, $5,000 or more (in money or property) from any one contributor. (Complete Parts I and II.)

Special Rules -

- For a section 501(c)(3) organization filing Form 990, or Form 990-EZ, that met the 33 1/3% support test of the regulations under sections 509(a)(1)/170(b)(1)(A)(vi) and received from any one contributor, during the year, a contribution of the greater of $5,000 or 2% of the amount on line 1 of these forms. (Complete Parts I and II.)
- For a section 501(c)(7), (8), or (10) organization filing Form 990, or Form 990-EZ, that received from any one contributor, during the year, aggregate contributions or bequests of more than $1,000 for use exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or the prevention of cruelty to children or animals. (Complete Parts I, II, and III.)
- For a section 501(c)(7), (8), or (10) organization filing Form 990, or Form 990-EZ, that received from any one contributor, during the year, some contributions for use exclusively for religious, charitable, etc., purposes, but these contributions did not aggregate to more than $1,000. (If this box is checked, enter here the total contributions that were received during the year for an exclusively religious, charitable, etc., purpose. Do not complete any of the Parts unless the General rule applies to this organization because it received nonexclusively religious, charitable, etc., contributions of $5,000 or more during the year.) ▶ $ _____

Caution: Organizations that are not covered by the General rule and/or the Special rules do not file Schedule B (Form 990, 990-EZ, or 990-PF), but they must check the box in the heading of their Form 990, Form 990-EZ, or on line 1 of their Form 990-PF, to certify that they do not meet the filing requirements of Schedule B (Form 990, 990-EZ, or 990-PF).

Part III Line a

The National Progress Fund recently completed a comprehensive, successful effort detailing the support Ralph Nader received from the right-wing Bush supporters in their hope of dividing progressives. Through TheNaderFactor.com website and paid television advertising, the fund focused nationwide attention on Nader's divisive candidacy and the assistance he was accepting from Bush surrogates.

Currently, the National Progress Fund's goal is twofold:

- 1) Defend critics of the Nader campaign from frivolous lawsuits filed by Mr. Nader in his ego-driven attempt to gain even more attention. One of Ralph Nader's minions even threatened to "bankrupt" one of Mr. Nader's critics.
- 2) Focus attention, thru television advertising, on the continued destructive policies of George Bush on the budget, environment, Iraq, terrorism, and the economy.

JOHN HLINKO

Long recognized as an innovator on the grassroots engagement front, John Hlinko founded and led "DraftWesleyClark.com," one of the most successful grassroots movements in American political history. Started in March, 2003, the effort generated nearly $2 million in pledges for a Clark candidacy, engaged tens of thousands of volunteers, earned massive coverage in national and international print, television, and online media, and prompted General Wesley Clark to run for President. Following the effort, Hlinko was named as the Director of Internet Strategy for the Clark for President campaign, and awarded the prestigious "Rookie of the Year" Pollie, an award for excellence in public affairs. A veteran of numerous other activist efforts, including MoveOn.org and ActForLove.org, Hlinko holds a BA from Wesleyan University and an MA in public policy from Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government.

About The Nader Factor

The Nader Factor is dedicated to building a dynamic grassroots community of former Nader voters, Nader supporters, progressive Democrats and others who are uniting to change the destructive White House policies.

The stakes are extraordinarily high. As former Kucinich aide Jeff Cohen said, "It's not about Coke vs. Pepsi." There are real, fundamental differences between Democratic policies and Republican policies. George Bush and his radical right wing agenda are destroying our country.

We believe the Democratic Party needs moderates, independents, Dean Democrats, Clark Democrats and most importantly, a new wing - Nader Democrats.

Our Open Letter...

To Concerned Progressives:

In 2004, the stakes are high. Progressives, liberals, and all Democrats must stand together against the dangerous, extremist policies of the Bush Administration. All of the issues we care about -- a clean environment, a sensible foreign policy, fair trade practices, corporate responsibility and civil liberties -- will continue to be undermined if we are divided. Ralph Nader and his many supporters can make the difference in the fight to change our country...but only if we fight together.

And as we all now know, the Bush Administration has led to the destruction of the environment, the disregarding of international agreements, a war based on deceptions, a tax-policy that has caused record deficits and an assault on the rights of women, minorities, gays and lesbians. Democrats and Progressives need to come together now to fight for the issues we care about. Indeed, George Bush and Karl Rove are dreaming of a divided opposition.

I am writing to ask you to become involved in a new, groundbreaking political organization designed to reach out to past Nader voters and progressive Americans in opposition to George Bush's radical extremist agenda. Through the website www.TheNaderFactor.com, we are reaching out to former Nader supporters, progressive activists, and concerned Democrats to help with this important effort.

The goal of www.TheNaderFactor.com is to build a dynamic grassroots community of former Nader voters, Nader supporters, progressive Democrats and others who are want to unite to change destructive White House policies. We will 1) create an online community to make the voice of progressives heard by the Democrats 2) raise funds for TV and Radio ads in targeted states and 3) work to unite the opposition to George Bush's right wing agenda. The simple fact is this: if Democrats and Nader Progressives are divided the issues we mutually care about will suffer.

David Jones, John Hlinko, Chris Kofinis and Karl Frisch and I have launched this effort. Karl and I worked on Governor Howard Dean's historic run for the Presidency. John and Chris started the DraftWesleyClark movement and David has led finance efforts for Congressmen Dick Gephardt and Charlie Rangel, Senators Tom Harkin, President Clinton, and Vice President Gore.

Go to www.TheNaderFactor.com today and join the movement to unite the opposition to George Bush's destructive agenda.

Sincerely,

Chris Kofinis
Chief Strategist

Our Mission

To be honest about the impact Nader will have. We'll keep folks up to date on polls and other key news and developments about the Nader factor. And, we'll talk about the real, fundamental and stark differences between the Democrats and Republicans.

To harness that power. We are going to work hard to reach-out, to change minds, to create a real interactive community where a new wing of the Democratic party - Nader Democrats - can help change the direction of this country and the policies of our party. Whether its television ads, blogs, or carrier pigeons ? we will use any means to create this new movement and force for change.

And channel it. Let there be no doubt, in the end, this group has one goal ? to bring progressive change to America.

Convictions Intact, Nader Soldiers On

By KATHARINE Q. SEELYE

Correction Appended

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Aug. 1 - To Ralph Nader, the Democratic convention in Boston was a hollow charade that made Senator John Kerry, the Democratic presidential nominee, seem more like President Bush than ever. He said it gave him no reason to drop out of the race, even if he costs Mr. Kerry the election in November, as many believe he cost Al Gore in 2000.

"This isn't unity," Mr. Nader scoffed in an interview here on Saturday, referring to the message from the Democratic convention. "This is repressed conformity in order to create the show."

He called the Democrats a "decadent" party and, in a reference to Mr. Gore's populist war cry in 2000, accused Mr. Gore of "taking my language away from me" and "costing me more votes than I cost him." Mr. Kerry, he noted, voted for the war in Iraq, would not put a deadline on withdrawing American troops, voted for the Patriot Act and, he said, "won't touch the bloated, corrupt military budget."

So Mr. Nader, who does not concede that he has little chance of winning the presidency, is preparing for battles ahead - for ballot access in most states (he is on the ballot in six states so far, including Florida), for credentials to the Republican convention this month (he was denied credentials to the Democratic convention), and for a seat at the table in the fall debates, which requires a standing of at least 15 percent in national polls.

Andrew Kohut, the director of the Pew Research Center for the People and the Press, said that Mr. Nader, who won 2.7 percent of the vote in 2000, was polling at about 3 percent in most national polls now but could spell trouble for Mr. Kerry in some swing states.

While Mr. Nader digs in his heels, the Democrats are trying to sideline him. The party has enlisted Howard Dean, the former Vermont governor, who has declared an "extraordinary emergency" to stomp out Nader votes. And some former associates of Mr. Nader are organizing an extensive, well-financed national campaign against him. Organizers include Toby Moffett, a former congressman from Connecticut and onetime "Nader Raider," who lost a close race for the Senate in 1982 after his former boss endorsed his opponent.

Mr. Moffett, now a lobbyist in Washington, worked against Mr. Nader in six states in 2000, an informal effort that he now calls amateurish. With that experience under his belt, he said, "we're vowing not to let it happen again."

Mr. Moffett and others from labor and feminist organizations spent their time at the Democratic convention coordinating six or eight anti-Nader groups. Calling themselves United Progressives for Victory, they are raising money through an independent political committee known as a 527, named for the section of the I.R.S. code that governs it, and are working with other 527's that are already identifying sympathetic voters. (By law, such committees can raise unlimited amounts of money but cannot coordinate with the Kerry campaign.)

The group is armed with a poll conducted by Stanley Greenberg, who was President Bill Clinton's pollster. The group includes Roy Neel, a former Gore associate who worked for Mr. Dean and is now preparing the computer model for finding the 2.8 million people who voted for Mr. Nader in 2000 and might vote for him again.

Mr. Moffett said there was no chance that Mr. Nader would drop out, so the only way to stop him from throwing the election to Mr. Bush is to discourage his supporters.

Mr. Nader's determination to stay in the contest was evident on Friday night in Los Angeles, when Michael Moore, the filmmaker, who backed Mr. Nader in 2000, appeared with him on the HBO program "Real Time with Bill Maher." Mr. Moore and Mr. Maher dropped to their knees to beg Mr. Nader to drop out, with the audience cheering them on.

Mr. Nader was unmoved, saying only, "We're going to help defeat George W. Bush" and dashing off the set at his first opportunity.

Nader supporters, Mr. Greenberg's polling shows, are generally older and angrier than other voters. They are fiercely against globalization and corporate dominance, and they are largely indifferent to social issues like abortion and gay marriage.

They are also hard to find, and the Moffett group is debating how to track them down and shape and deliver a message that will reach them.

Two early clues from the polling: when Nader supporters learned that Mr. Nader had accepted help and money from Republicans to get on the ballots in various states, they dropped away. And one of the few public figures who has credibility with Nader backers is former President Jimmy Carter, who is perceived as not compromised by or profiting from the political system. So some of the group's officials say they have discussed redeploying Mr. Carter, who they say has indicated a willingness to help.

The briefings in Boston drew dozens of donors, lawyers and activists, including Arianna Huffington, the columnist. "My main message is that when your house is on fire, it's not time to talk about remodeling," said Ms. Huffington, a former Republican who is now supporting Mr. Kerry. "First you put the fire out."

Mr. Moffett said that he and Elizabeth Holtzman, the former congresswoman from New York, were coordinating with election lawyers in several states to challenge Mr. Nader's ballot petitions. Their strategy, he said, is to try to undercut Mr. Nader not only in swing states where he could make a difference but in safe states, "to drain him of resources and force him to spend his time and money."

To Mr. Nader, these challenges are all part of a "dirty tricks" campaign, which is becoming a major theme for him as he speaks around the country. At a news conference in Los Angeles on Friday, Mr. Nader asked Mr. Kerry, through the cameras, to "call off your dogs."

Mr. Nader and Peter Camejo, his running mate, met here on Saturday with three dozen volunteers who have until Friday to gather 153,035 signatures to get Mr. Nader on the California ballot. As in other states, paid professionals are doing most of the petitioning, but volunteers are seeking extra signatures as a cushion against challenges.

In a low-key chat, Mr. Nader advised the volunteers exactly how to present his case when seeking signatures.

"The question you ask people is, 'Do you think California voters who want to vote for Ralph Nader and Peter Camejo should be able to?' " he told them. "Most people are fair enough that they will sign the petition to get us on the ballot."

Mr. Nader has raised $1.5 million, tens of thousands of it from Republicans, who also collected the signatures to get him on the ballot in Michigan. But he shrugged off the significance of their help, saying, "We had nothing to do with it."

Mr. Camejo said last month that he was disturbed about donations from Republicans and told The San Francisco Chronicle that Mr. Nader should reject their money. But on Saturday, he said in an interview that he welcomed such help.

"I wish Republicans who support us would send us some donations," Mr. Camejo said. "In polls, 25 percent of our vote is from Republicans and only 5 percent of our money." Mr. Nader and Mr. Camejo and the volunteers met at the Green Party headquarters here, a small storefront in a relatively low-rent area of this prosperous beach town. The Green Party backed Mr. Nader in 2000, but rejected him this year. Still, some overlap remains and when the Nader volunteers had nowhere else to meet, the Green Party turned over its offices.

Pam Brown, 59, a retired state highway worker who was here to gather signatures, said she backed Mr. Nader because she resented the Democrats trying to suppress him.

"My vote is my vote and I'll go where I want to with it," she said. "If they don't keep that door open for a third party, some day the ballot is going to say 'yes or no' and it's going to be one name, and that's my fear if we limit our choice now."

Ms. Brown said that people had yelled at her because of her Nader bumper stickers. "The hate campaign that the Democrats have against Nader has created a lot of hostility," she said, but she said she tried to ignore it.

In the interview, Mr. Nader was asked why he persisted at such risk to his legacy.

"Who cares about the legacy?" he responded. "Are they going to tear out seat belts from cars? We're looking to the future."

He said that Democrats "should be happy that someone is going all over the country taking apart their opponent, but instead, they are employing dirty tricks to keep us off the ballot."

And what of those who accuse him of running simply to feed his own ego?

"For 40 years, I've been giving members of Congress credit for things that I could take credit for," he said. "Ego? I don't know the meaning of the term."

He gestured to the cramped storage room where he sat for the interview. "Isn't this fun?" he asked sarcastically. "I invite anyone to travel with me and see how much fun it is, from their point of view."

ANTI-NADER FORCES COORDINATE STRATEGY

On the 15th floor of a Holiday Inn just off a construction site, Ralph Nader's running mate Peter Camejo held court in an empty party room Monday morning. Only one reporter came.

Two hours later across town in the second-floor ballroom of The Four Seasons Hotel some of the Democratic party's political elite gathered to re-shape their anti-Nader campaign. Only one reporter showed up there, too. But it was private, invitation only, no publicity.

The two scenes captured the essence of Nader's independent presidential campaign. While polls show it is becoming statistically irrelevant nationally -- an effort mired in logistical battles to get on state ballots and on the defensive about its relationship with Republican backers -- it has never been more of a threat to the Democrats.

The Four Seasons group, which does not necessarily want to publicize its fear that Nader will siphon off crucial votes in swing states, is spearheading an attack on Nader that promises a new coordination and sophistication. It is using the Democratic convention as a way to combine its previously independent efforts and focus them more effectively.

"We're not going to let him do it again," said Toby Moffett, a former Connecticut congressman and former Naderite who is now working to coordinate the anti-Nader groups that have sprung up after the 2000 election. "We'll do whatever it takes within the law."

Moffett was among those gathered at the Four Seasons -- a group a few dozen in size that included Democratic pollster Stanley Greenberg; former New York congresswoman Liz Holtzman; Roy Neel, former campaign manager for Howard Dean; and Arianna Huffington.

Behind closed doors for more than an hour, they shared their research and strategies to undermine Nader. Neel, for instance, is working on voter models that help identify exactly who is likely to vote for Nader.

"It's now our job to find those voters and educate them," said Neel after the meeting. "Kerry and Edwards don't have the time or resources for this targeted approach. We do."

They also discussed the results of polling that found when they publicize Nader's acceptance of money and help from Republicans, it erodes his support.

It's a claim Nader and Camejo call overstated and misleading. They say the amount of money they've collected from Republicans is far less than donations from traditional liberal and independent voters.

The Nader campaign also defends the Republican effort in a few states, such as the swing state of Michigan, to help them collect signatures to get on the ballot.

"We'll accept the help of any registered citizen who wants to defend our right to be on the ballot," Camejo said Monday.

But the attacks seem to be working with voters. Polls have dipped from a high of about 7 percent to as low as about 3 percent nationally in some surveys.

Democratic anger toward Nader is at least four years old, the bulk stemming from the tissue-thin margin between Al Gore and George W. Bush in states where Nader won a small but significant number of votes.

When Nader announced he would run in this election, the response was immediate and disparate.

There were bloggers and traditional Democratic activists. There were also former Nader devotees such as Moffett, who owes much of his own political career to Nader, who chose the young Moffett to head the Connecticut Citizens Action Group which served to launch his congressional bid. Moffett broke with Nader during his 2000 presidential bid and tried to convince him not to run this year.

This year, Moffett said, the Democrats have to be smarter by working together. They see the convention as the perfect platform to do so.

The newly mobilized anti-Naderites plan to fan out at the convention and brief the Democratic delegations in states where their research shows Nader may harm Kerry most: Arizona, Florida, Iowa, Michigan, Nevada, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin are all concerns.

"It's a total manipulation of political discourse," said a visibly angry Camejo when told about the plans. "They tear down our posters; they fill our meetings. They do everything they can."

David Cobb, who beat out Nader to become the Green Party presidential candidate this year and appeared with Camejo at the Monday press conference, offered a rare defense of his former opponent: "Look, the Democrats and the Republicans have conspired to create ballot access laws to prevent alternative voices. But what the Democrats are doing here is unprecedented."

The official party line is that although the Democratic National Committee supports the anti-Nader efforts, it is not expressly involved.

This week, the most combative swing the DNC took at Nader was to deny him a floor pass to the convention.

When Nader spokesman Kevin Zeese asked for one Friday, he was quickly turned down. "The answer is no," said DNC spokesman Jane Cabrera. "This is a convention for Democrats."

The strategists, for their part, are quick to defend their efforts. They say it is Nader who should be on the defensive about his complicity in jeopardizing the progressive values he previously championed.

Bob Brandon, the former Naderite who coordinated the Four Seasons session, said of Nader's campaign, "It's not about more choices. It's about re-electing Bush."

BOSTON — As Democrats move toward nominating John Kerry to run against George W. Bush, an independent group is lobbying party members and donors to launch a campaign against independent candidate Ralph Nader.

Ralph Nader calls effort a smear campaign.

Trying to learn from what they say were mistakes in running a low-budget, casual campaign against Nader four years ago, organizers are pitching Democratic donors, lobbying state party leaders on the convention floor and promising a professional operation guided by research from one of the Democratic establishment's leading pollsters. Many Democrats blame Nader's 2000 Green Party run for Democrat Al Gore's loss to Bush, saying he pulled liberal votes from the vice president in key states.

Major donors here for the Democratic National Convention were given a briefing on the anti-Nader effort this week, said Toby Moffatt, a former Connecticut congressman and Nader protégé who is among the leaders of the group. The donors were shown polling on what drives voters to Nader, what turns them away the quickest and which public figures can best make the case against the consumer activist.

Anti-Nader groups have been organized for months. But the efforts have taken "a huge move" recently in fund raising, research and a detailed attack plan, Moffatt said.

"This guy is still a huge threat," he said. "We're just not going to make the same mistake we made in 2000."

Money will be raised by an independent political committee that can accept unlimited donations, referred to as a 527 group for the section of the IRS code that governs them. Democrat-affiliated 527s have raised about $200 million so far this year.

A memo given to potential supporters said Moffatt's group, United Progressives for Victory, will do research, community organizing, media outreach and Internet marketing aimed at weakening Nader's standing.

Last night, Nader called it a smear campaign and said, "It's the Democrats' undemocratic attempt" to quash third-party candidates.

The honorable thing to do

"When John Kerry said he wants to take away my votes by taking away the issues, that's the honorable thing to do," Nader said in a telephone interview. "When he says, 'A vote for Nader is a vote for Bush,' that is an attitude that the two parties own the voters and everyone else stay away."

Nader made vague pledges of retaliation if Kerry repeats that claim. "I'm waiting for him to say it once more and I will unfurl my epithet against him that will stick for the rest of the campaign," Nader said.

Moffett got his start with the Nader group Citizen Action in the 1970s before being elected to four terms in the U.S. House. He works for a D.C. lobbying firm. Robert Brandon, another former Nader acolyte, plied party leaders from several states, including Washington, where Nader is seen as a threat. They want to have an organization in full operation for the final two months of the campaign.

UP for Victory will organize appearances by liberal figures, celebrities and former Nader associates who can counter his message.

At the top of the list is former President Jimmy Carter. The polling, Moffett said, showed that Carter is immensely popular among Nader supporters, even more so than former Vermont Gov. Howard Dean, who has been seen as a key draw for Nader-leaning liberals.

The group's polling, by former Bill Clinton pollster Stanley Greenberg, shows that economic issues most attract voters to Nader.

"We were worried about attacking Ralph," Moffett said, but no more. The polling found that Nader support drops precipitously when supporters are told "he is in bed with Republicans," a reference to the GOP helping to get Nader on the ballot in some states.

Only Kerry can fix problem

Nader replied: "The only way they can provide cover for their dirty tricks is to cry out that Republicans are propping us up, and that attracts the media's attention."

Moffett said that, in the end, only Kerry can fix the Nader problem. He said Kerry needs to address the issues of job loss and the economy in a way that resonates with those voters.

10044270290

Washington state Democratic Party Chairman Paul Berendt said polling he has seen shows Nader's candidacy to be "the difference between being a safe state and a state that is in play for the Bush campaign."

There is one question George Bush does not want to be asked. It is the one question that will define his presidency.

"Are we safer now than we were four years ago? Well...You decide....

Every day the bloody chaos in Iraq grows
 Al Qaeda still threatens us at home and abroad
 America's ports, it's borders - our cities - remain Needlessly vulnerable to terrorist attack
 And after three years...Osama Bin laden, the murderer of thousands of innocent Americans...is still at large...
 Are we safer now than we were four years ago?
 The answer, Mr. President...is no.
 Your policies have failed us.

"Something strange is happening in American politics. George Bush's right-wing Republicans are now helping Ralph Nader. It's true: Bush supporters are now giving Nader tens of thousands of dollars. Republicans are helping Nader get on the ballot...in Oregon, Nevada, Michigan, Iowa, New Hampshire, New Mexico...even Florida. Why? Because the right-wing believes that helping Ralph Nader helps George Bush. But now, even though Republicans have tried to destroy the very progressive cause he has fought for, Ralph Nader is taking help from the right-wing. Strange, isn't it? Bush and Nader. Nader working with Republicans. Who knows--maybe Republicans and Nader know something we don't. Visit TheNaderFactor.com and tell Ralph Nader to stop taking help from Bush supporters."

But now I know that Ralph Nader's candidacy in 2000 undermined all the issues I care about -- education, a clean environment, and a sensible foreign policy -- and actually helped put George Bush in office."

Radio Ad : Right-wing Republicans will do anything to stay in power. Remember Florida and the 2000 election? Well the same right wing Republicans that are anti-choice and anti-environment - are suddenly pro-Nader. Right wing extremists are even trying to help Nader's campaign in Oregon, Wisconsin and... Yes... Florida Again! Even one of President Bush's friends and top donors, billionaire Dick Egan, gave money to Ralph Nader. And other Bush donors are pouring tens of thousands of dollars into Nader's campaign. Why? Because the right wing knows that helping Ralph Nader helps George Bush. As one right wing group says... "Nader could peel away a lot of support from Kerry... Let's give Nader what he wants and just watch what happens. After all the good he has done, Ralph Nader's legacy could be reduced to four more years of George Bush. Mr. Nader: Declare your independence from the right-wing extremists. Visit TheNaderFactor.com. THANK YOU!

CNN is reporting that Nader gathered 400,706 votes, down from 2,882,955 in 2000. The AP is reporting that he received 0.3 percent of the vote, down from 2.74% in 2000.

Thank you to the 2.4 million Americans who voted for Nader in 2000 and who saw through his fraud-riddled, Bush-supported, attention craving effort in 2004. Also, thank you to the thousands of donors and members of TheNaderFactor.com. theLAST CHANCE TO STOP NADER

I write you this blog post with an urgent request.

State after state continue to show Bush & Kerry in a virtual tie with Ralph Nader making up the difference. This may be our last chance to STOP Nader and Bush from perpetuating the destructive policies of this White House.

DONATE NOW - CLICK HERE

Over the next few days we must raise an additional $20,000 to put our new ad targeted at Nader supporters up on television in important swing states. If you have not yet seen the ad, please take a minute to view it now:

--	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

With less than a week to go we must show swing state Americans that

10044270298

Ralph Nader is deceiving them when he says there is no difference between Bush and Kerry. The stakes are too high in 2004 - there are real differences.

With George Bush as President (thanks for 2000 Mr. Nader) thousands have been killed or injured in Iraq, more and more Americans are falling below the poverty line and millions have lost their jobs and healthcare. With George Bush in the White House our environment and civil liberties face daily threats. With George Bush making judicial appointments, we may end up with the most conservative Supreme Court of all time.

DONATE NOW - CLICK HERE

Still, day in and day out, Ralph Nader criss-crosses the country telling anyone who will listen that there is no difference between Bush and Kerry. Perhaps he's just too ashamed to face the truth.

Since 2000, Ralph Nader's myopic campaign of deception has allowed George Bush's White House to destroy many of the causes he has championed for more than 30 years... something no one should be proud of.

With the help of thousands, TheNaderFactor.com has been able to expose Ralph Nader's ties to many of George Bush's most loyal contributors and supports. Just last month he was caught red handed accepting money from donors close to the discredited GOP front group "Swift Boat Vets for Truth."

DONATE NOW - CLICK HERE

That's just the tip of the ice berg. After making your donation, please be sure to check out our recent MEMO detailing Ralph Nader's strange alliance with the right-wing of the Republican Party by CLICKING HERE.

In 2000 few thought Ralph Nader would have the impact he ended up having on the election. In 2004 we know better and this is our last chance to show we will not be duped again.

Please take this final opportunity to give what you can - $40, $80, $150 or even $1000 - any donation you make will go a long way towards assuring our presence in the swing states this week.

DONATE NOW - CLICK HERE

Thank you for your past support... together we can make certain the right-wing policies of the Bush White House are stopped and The Nader Factor is nothing more than a blip this fall.

Nader's "big lie" exposed!

Ralph Nader, and many of his staff and RM on this site, continue to push the false notion that somehow what remains of his supporters would split equally between Bush and Kerry if Nader were not running. The fact that Ralph would make the case for this absurd notion is beyond explanation. Any Ideas?

Last week, in The New York Times, the respected Zogby International Polling Co.'s spokesperson, Shawnta Walcott, said Zogby polls showed Nader drawing far more from Kerry. She said the polls, aggregated from March through September, showed that, if Nader were not an option, 41 percent of his supporters went to Kerry, 15 percent went to Bush.

Also, recent research from the non-profit Nation Institute confirmed this with extensive new information. The Nation's research says One-third of Nader voters don't have a second choice for president, but the two-thirds who do pick Kerry over Bush by 49-17 percent, with 11 percent undecided.

NADER at the scene of the crime-FLORIDA

Greetings from Florida--Ace, the conscience of Penn State, and I travelled last night to a sparsely attended Nader speech at the University of South Florida at St. Petersburg. Once again, Ralph is pushing the "big lie" of his candidacy: that there is no difference between Kerry and Bush. We, along with a great duo from United Progressives, spread the word about Nader's hypocritical acceptance of funding from "Swift Boat Vets" and the "volunteer" assistance he is getting in Florida from Ken Suhlka, George Bush's attorney. A few of the Pat Buchanan supporters from the Reform Party showed up to show that they actually do exist in Florida.

A number of attendees in the crowd said that they just could not support Ralph in good conscience and urged solidarity with Greens and Democrats. Sadly, Nader seems to care more about personal attention than he does ending the extremist Bush/Cheney agenda.

On a personal note, we went to see the great reggae band, Steel Pulse, after the speech.

Press & Media

United Progressives for Victory is a group of Americans who believe that the reelection of George Bush in 2004 would be a disaster for Americans at home and abroad. We represent a spectrum of progressive constituencies in the United States, and we know the power of our vote.

We are progressives concerned that Ralph Nader's candidacy has the potential to undo his legacy and help re-elect George Bush by dividing the progressive vote. We believe that a united progressive vote for Kerry will empower the progressive agenda and allow us to hold a Kerry administration accountable to progressive interests.

Many of us have worked closely with Ralph Nader in the past. We represent concerns for the environment, women and people of color, consumer advocates, workers, civil liberties, international security and global engagement. In many ways, our work on this project is a testament to the contribution Ralph Nader has made in inspiring and training so many activists and organizers over the years. This effort is aimed at promoting everything that Ralph Nader has said he has stood for during the past forty years. The best way to support Nader's agenda this year is to oppose his candidacy for President.

Our mobilizing effort is designed to convince likely Nader supporters that the dangers of a second Bush administration are too great for any of us to cast a throwaway protest vote in 2004. The destruction and long-term damage to progressive causes Bush has wreaked over the last three years is, simply, shocking. For the sake of the country and the world, we need to unite now to keep Bush from winning another four years in the White House -- four years which would further separate us from allies, encourage new enemies, and undermine our ability to build a safe and better world.

UP for Victory is serving as a nationally coordinated network, sharing technical assistance, information, and other resources among coalitions of progressives in targeted states.

Progressives across America need to unite in common purpose to defeat Bush. JOIN US AND HELP PROTECT THE PROGRESSIVE AGENDA.
