FEC RELEASES FINAL PAC REPORT
FOR 1979-80 ELECTION CYCLE

WASHINGTON - PAC's spent more than $131 million during the 1979-80 election cycle, according to a final study released today by the Federal Election Commission.

There were 2,785 PAC's included in the FEC Report. Of that number, 2,155 actually made contributions to federal candidates. By the end of 1980, their number had been reduced to 2,551 as some committees concluded their federal activity.

PAC's began the 1980 election cycle January 1, 1979, with approximately $15 million cash-on-hand. They raised an additional $138 million during the two year period. As of December 31, 1980, they had $22 million on hand for 1982 activity.

Of the $131 million spent, $55.2 million, or 42%, was contributed to 1979-80 Congressional races.

An additional $1.8 million was given to Presidential candidates and $3.2 million, to prior Congressional campaigns for debt retirement or to future election campaigns, the FEC Report showed.

Contributions by PAC's to all federal candidates therefore totalled $60.2 million. This figure represents 46% of the total $131.2 million spent.

In addition to contributing to federal candidates, PAC's spent more than $14 million independently for or against candidates. Independent expenditures are monies spent to advocate the election or defeat of a candidate and are made without consultation or coordination with any candidate's campaign.

Most of the PAC independent expenditures were made with regard to the Presidential race -- $12 million out of $14.2 million. The combination of PAC contributions to Presidential and Congressional candidates and total PAC independent expenditures totalled $74.4 million -- 57% of all money spent by PAC's during the election cycle.

FEC data shows that PAC activity (contributions and independent expenditures) on behalf of 1980 Congressional candidates alone totalled $57.4 million, or 44% of all money spent by PAC's. Similar PAC activity for 1977-78 Congressional races totalled $34.3 million and represented the same 44% of total PAC activity.

PAC's also contributed $4.6 million to political party committees.
