FEC RELEASES 18-MONTH PAC FIGURES FOR THE 1987-88 ELECTION CYCLE

WASHINGTON — With receipts of nearly $267 million and disbursements of about $215 million between January 1, 1987, and June 30, 1988, financial activity of PAC's continued to grow, but at a slower rate than in previous years. The figures, released today by the Federal Election Commission, showed a 5 percent increase in fundraising and spending when compared to 18-month figures for the 1985-86 election cycle. By way of comparison, fundraising rose 30 percent and spending increased by more than 38 percent between the 83-84 and 85-86 election cycles.

Federal candidates received $95 million in contributions from PAC's, the bulk of which, about $78 million, went to incumbents.* PAC contributions to challengers increased slightly, while contributions to open seat candidates declined, due partly to the fact that there are fewer open seat races this year than there were in '86. During the 18-month period, PAC contributions to Democrats in the Senate and House grew by 58 percent and 25 percent, respectively. Republican House candidates received 8 percent more in PAC money than they did during the same period two years ago, while GOP Senate candidates saw a drop of 19.5 percent. [Note that any comparison of Senate activity is affected by the fact that different seats are up for election each cycle. Also, be advised that these figures include contributions to all federal candidates, whether or not they are seeking election in 1988, as well as roughly $3 million in funds to Presidential candidates.]

Financial activity showed increases for all categories of PAC's, except those with no connected organization. While receipts and disbursements were down for non-connected PAC's, contributions to federal candidates still rose 12.5 percent.

In its survey, the FEC looked at 4,578 PAC's, of which 2,729, or 60 percent, actually made contributions.

The first chart on the following page provides summary information on PAC finances, by committee type, for the 1987-88 election cycle. The second chart compares receipts, disbursements, contributions, cash-on-hand and debts for each committee type over the past 5 election cycles. A third chart details contributions made by PAC's during the 18-month period ending June 30, 1988, by committee type and candidate status for all Congressional candidates and for those seeking election in 1988.

Following the charts are rankings of the 50 largest PAC's, overall and by committee type, in terms of receipts, disbursements, contributions to federal candidates and cash-on-hand as of June 30, 1988.

*Figures and percentages on this release differ from those on the FEC's summary of 18-month Congressional activity. This is because the totals come from different reports. While PAC's may have reported making a contribution, candidate committees may not have to report receipt of those funds until the next filing deadline. Also, the line on candidate reports indicating PAC receipts may include money from other sources, such as state and federal candidates' committees or unregistered groups. It is important to remember that this release includes only activity through June of the election year, before some challengers and open seat candidates are identified.
