DEMOCRATS INCREASE SPENDING BY 89% IN THE '92 CYCLE -Still lag behind Republican counterparts-

WASHINGTON -- Despite dramatic gains in Democratic party fundraising and an 89% increase in spending, Republican party committees still raised $89.6 million more and spent $84.2 million more than Democratic party committees during the 1991-92 election cycle, according to the Federal Election Commission's Final Report on political party committees.

The Report, which confirms previously released preliminary figures, shows that national, state, and local Republican party committees raised $267.3 million and spent $256.1 million, while Democratic committees raised $177.7 million and spent $171.9 million during the two-year period.

Republican committees contributed just over $3 million to federal candidates and spent $33.9 million in coordinated expenditures.* Contributions by Democratic committees totalled $1.9 million, while coordinated expenditures totalled $28.1 million.

The following chart provides a comparison of political party activity during the past eight election cycles:

		1991-92	1989-90	1987-88	1985-86	1983-84	1981-82	1979-80	1977-78

(figures in millions of dollars)

While Republican party committee debts have increased 76% over 1990, to $13.4 million, Democratic committee debts have shrunk by 16%, to $4.8 million. Republicans ended 1992 with $5.1 million cash-on-hand; Democrats reported $6.8 million cash-on-hand.

Individuals accounted for 83% of Republican party receipts, contributing almost $223 million. Democratic party committees received 68% of their funds from individuals, $121.4 million. Democrats relied more heavily on PAC contributions, receiving $15.1 million (8%) versus Republican PAC receipts of $4.5 million (2%).

- more -

In terms of soft money, Republicans raised and spent $15 million more than Democrats in 1991-92. Full disclosure of this money was required by the FEC beginning in 1991; therefore, comparable figures for prior election cycles are not available.

Republican non-federal accounts reported raising $52 million and spending $50 million, compared to Democrats raising $37 million and spending $36 million.

As to how this money was spent, Republican non-federal accounts transferred $8.6 million to state parties, contributed $1.2 million to state and local candidates, and spent almost $24.5 million on activities which had a joint federal and non-federal purpose. An additional $15.4 million was spent for "other" expenses (i.e. building funds, etc.).

Democratic non-federal accounts transferred $9.5 million to state parties, contributed $746,000 to state and local candidates, spent $19.6 million in shared federal/non-federal activities, and $5.2 million on "other" expenses.

State and local committees for both major parties reported significant increases over the previous election cycle. State and local Republican committee receipts rose 84%, to $72.8 million, and spending increased by 67%, to $68.6 million. Democratic committee receipts increased 78%, to $63.9 million, and spending increased 65%, to $60.2 million. Presidential election cycles generate more activity at the state and local party levels than non-presidential election cycles. Moreover, changes in the FEC's rules governing the combined use of federal and non-federal funds could have resulted in increased federal fundraising.

Attached to this release are various charts, graphs and tables describing overall political party financial activities during the cycle:

- One table details contributions and coordinated expenditures by candidate status, i.e. incumbent, challenger and open-seat;
- Party contributions and coordinated expenditures are provided in a listing of each 1992 general election candidate;
- Summary information is provided for all non-federal activity;
- Pie charts portray the various categories of receipts for federal and non-federal accounts;
- National party committee transfers to state party committees are listed for both federal and non-federal accounts.

The four-volume FEC Reports on Financial Activity, 1991-92, Final Report, Party and Non-Party Political Committees is available for purchase from the FEC Public Records Office, 999 E Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20463. The cost is $10 per volume, payable in advance, with Volumes I and II containing information on political party committees. A computer tape of political party activity is also available for $50 and may be ordered through the FEC Data Systems Development Division at (202) 219-3730.
